Rebekah meets great-great-grandmother

By Maryann Harey

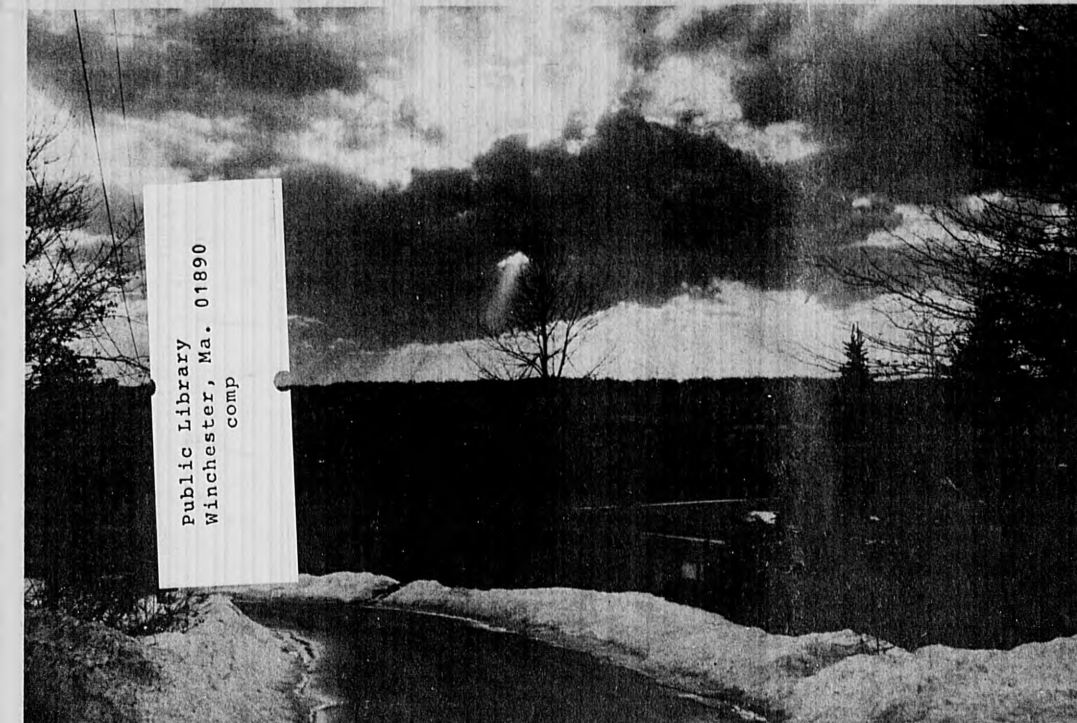

Three-month-old Rebekah Schwimmer, the first daughter of the first daughter of the first daughter of Mrs. Alma Herlan, came with her parents, Martin and Nancy Schwimmer, to see her great-great-grandmother for the first time during the Washington's Birthday holiday weekend.

The Schwimmers took a train from Alexandria, Va., to visit Mrs. Herlan at 3 Summit ave., who, they claim, has been waiting expectantly for her first great-great-grandchild since their marriage a year and a half ago.

Mrs. Herlan, who will be 95 on March 28, arrived in America in 1896 from Westfahlen, Germany. She and her family ran a German restaurant in New York, and later she raised Nancy's mother Colette, and aunt Susan and uncle William when their mother died while they were quite young (their father was a Merchant Marine).

Mrs. Herlan came to visit her granddaughter, Susan Keats, last June, but when she became ill, her grandchildren decided it would be best for her to establish permanent residence, because of the availability of Winchester Hospital. She is now living with Susan and her husband Lawrence Keats, a civil engineer in Manchester N.H., and their three children Matthew, Adam and Lesley.

The family is planning a reunion for Mrs. Herlan's birthday. Expected to attend are her five grandchildren and fourteen great-grandchildren. Her son William, who has not seen young Rebekah, is expected to come from Miami, Fla.

Over resignations

Board invites DPW to meet; manager protests

Amid protest from Town Manager Thomas Groux the board of selectmen agreed to invite two DPW employees to the board's meeting in two weeks to discuss the "harassment" which they said forced them to resign from their jobs.

Michael Louise, a resigned garage mechanic of the DPW, said he would "absolutely not attend the meeting," and that the "whole situation has been blown up by the press. (Daily Times)."

"My director (Walter Tonaszuck) knows my feelings. I was not forced to quit my job. I left by my own choosing. I don't know what they mean by harassment," he said.

He went on to say he had "no pros or cons" with the director and that "if the board wants to talk to me they know where to get me."

DPW Director Walter Tonaszuck said he "was very upset" about the board's decision to invite the workers to a meeting.

"I think it's very unfortunate that we should have to defend every move we make to the board," he said. "It's a poor reflection on management and I'm taking it very personally."

Tonaszuck further stated that the charges were unrealistic and that the actions of the board proved the DPW hasn't achieved a state of credibility with the selectmen.

Former Charter Commissioner Clara Hewis told The Star that a warrant article would be scheduled for town meeting requesting the establishment of an elected public works board to oversee the department. The board would have both management and administrative responsibilities, Miss Hewis said.

Co-sponsors of the article are Vincent Carroll and Michael Saraco. The article is one of a number of Charter changes that will be requested, Miss Hewis said.

Both Louise and Robert Scholl, the other employee who resigned, were quoted by the board as saying the working conditions at the town garage were deplorable and part of the harassment of their jobs.

Mechanic Robert Scholl, said he was "all for a meeting with the board."

"I quit because of the working conditions at the garage, and they haven't changed," he said.

A public letter by former Charter Commission member Vincent Carroll listed some indications of harassment and cited the board of selectmen as responsible to find out about the claims.

Carroll said the working conditions at the garage are intolerable, the employees receive inhumane harassment, and the morale is low. He said he received information for his letter from several DPW employees.

Chairman Barbara Hankins said she had not heard of the DPW worker's claims when she was interviewed by the press and "wanted to talk directly to the men" because she found it difficult to "conduct business through the newspaper."

Selectman Edward O'Connell said he too would like to talk to the men.

"I would like to dispel the continuing allegations that we have an ineffective board of selectmen," he said.

Town Manager Thomas Groux was against bringing the men before an open session of the board and denied the claims of harassment made.

"At some point you'll have to start putting confidence in the people you've delegated responsibilities to," he said. "The whole situation has been investigated by us. I see no point in dignifying exaggerated claims which may cause other kinds of morale problems."

Groux further stated he "would not put one dollar into garage reconstruction until the building had been surveyed by an engineer."

"These problems have existed for 10 years," Groux said. "We only do necessary repairs that won't be wasted if the building gets torn down."

The garage is currently under evaluation by an engineering firm, Groux said.

"Now at least some positive planning efforts are being made," he said.

Some of the problems at the garage that were mentioned by selectmen included bad drainage and improper ventilation. Groux said exhaust fans have recently been installed in the garage.

Director Tonaszuck agreed that the working conditions at the garage were very poor.

"It's an unfortunate situation," he said. "But we're doing the best we can with the limited funds we have."

"Could go down" -- Groux

Taxes up $5.14; budget submitted

Winchester's tax rate is projected to be up $5.14 for fiscal 1979, according to the town budget prepared by Town Manager Thomas Groux.

This increase will raise taxes to $78.54, compared to $73.40 last year.

Groux said "I absolutely can't see the proposed rate going up, but I can see it going down. I could have projected a tax increase of only $2, but that would be prejudging the Cherry Sheet. I've been very conservative in the revenue projections."

Groux said that when the Cherry Sheet is available in two to three weeks, accurate revenue figure will be known. He predicted the tax hike could be cut in half at that time.

Groux said in his budget report, released last week, "Much of the $5.14 increase is due to mandated costs over which the town manager and the town of Winchester have little or no control."

Reasons for the hike, Groux said, included increases in the Middlesex

County tax, Regional Vocational school budget, and employee benefits. Also cited was the decrease in state reimbursements of federally funded programs.

Middlesex County taxes, up $170,000 over last year, will add 85 cents on the tax rate. A 65 percent increase in the Voke school budget, or $81,000, will result in an additional 40 cents on the rate.

Employee benefits are up $198,000. The benefits will include the costs for unemployment compensation. They are reflected in a 97 cents increase in taxes.

Groux also stated in his report that "projecting a tax rate in February was very difficult."

"I feel that projected revenues will be significantly higher and projected charges and assessment will be significantly lower," he said.

These factors, "will combine to allow for a recalculation of a tax rate by May that is substantially lower than the figure I have proposed in this budget," Groux concluded.

SC lashes teachers

No vote yet on storm days

An overflow crowd of teachers and parents attended Monday night's school committee meeting expecting to hear a decision on making up snow days and extending kindergarten hours.

What they got was a ringside seat at some verbal lashing between the teachers association (WEA) and school committee members and, somewhat secondarily, a 15-minute extension on the kindergarten day.

School Superintendent William C. MacDonald presented the choices he thought the committee could discuss in light of the waiver from the state department of education. Commissioner of Education Gregory R. Anrig reduced the required number of school days from 180 to 176 because of the declared state of emergency during the recent blizzard.

Communities have the option of going along with the waiver without needing to seek permission of the state or of coming up with their own plan for remaining school days.

It was MacDonald's recommendation that the school day be lengthened by 15 minutes and, if necessary, that Tuesday release afternoons be curtailed to some degree.

Both recommendations are subject to negotiations with the WEA and it was this matter which WEA President Bernard Silva spoke against.

"There are complications and options which have to be considered," he said, recommending that Winchester follow Lexington's example and go along with the waiver.

"The length of the Winchester school day has always been above the state minimum," he pointed out. Winchester students go to school five and a half hours at the elementary level, while the state minimum requirement is five hours. Similarly, the junior highs here are in session 5 hours and 45 minutes and the senior high for five hours and 53 minutes. The state minimum at the secondary level is five and a half hours.

School systems have a choice of conforming with either the minimum number of days or number of hours per school year.

Silva said, in response to the option of cancelling April vacation to make up the lost time, "It is not educationally sound to cancel the vacation and there would be a high number of absences and a change of plans with a possible loss of money for some families."

Silva also noted that snow days not connected with the blizzard, fell on release Tuesdays and under the teachers contract these afternoons will have to be made up.

It was the WEA recommendation, based on a poll of teachers, Silva said, that the town accept the waiver.

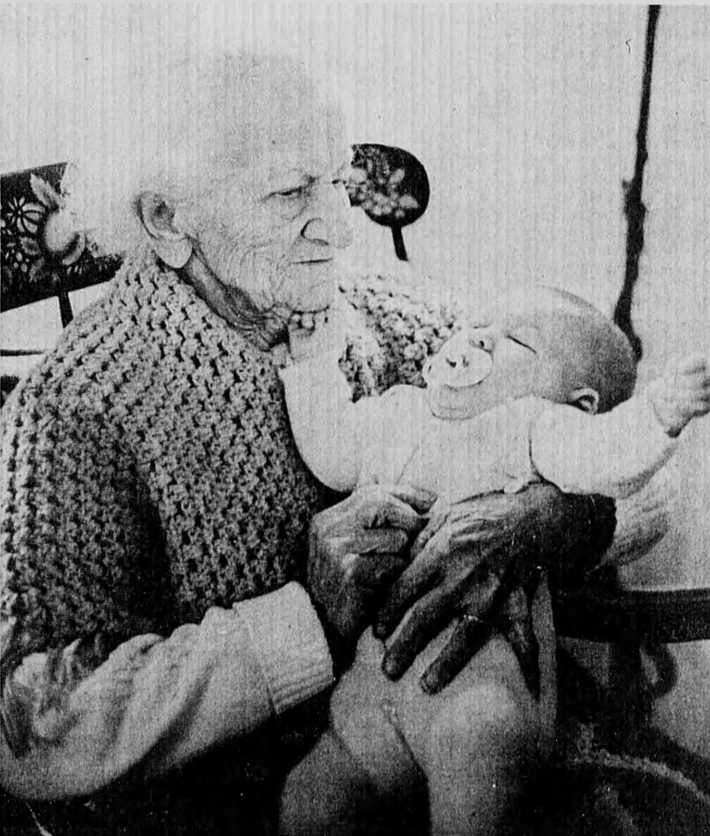

In response to a question from School Committee Chairman Robert S. Frank on the educational benefits of 174 school days instead of the 180, Silva said, "I don't want to get into hours as opposed to quality."

Committee member Catherine Alexander said, "I am surprised and disappointed that you want us to accept the waiver." Silva responded that it would be "punitive" to the teachers to extend the school day.

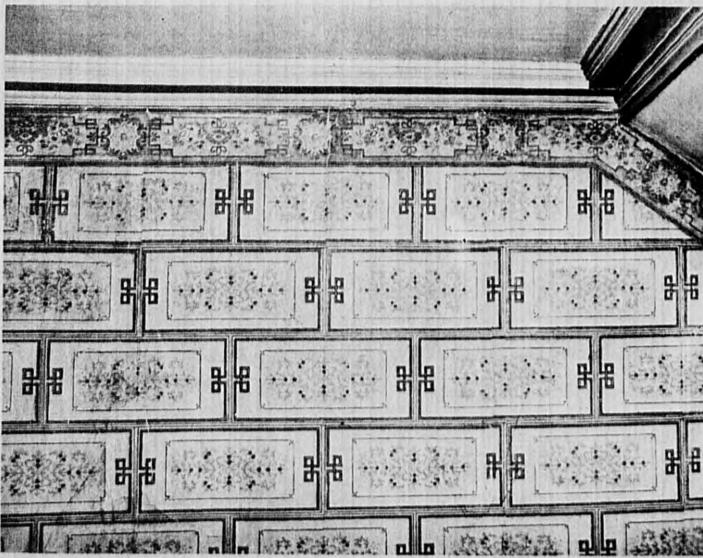

Member Constance Papas expressed her disappointment at Silva's word "punitive" and suggested that "this discussion is about the quality of education of our kids and not about punitive action against teachers."

Robert Frank, remarking that the WEA had been somewhat slow in making its recommendations known, lashed out, "We (the school committee) have not been fairly

Selectmen's notes

Dean Road
Selectmen voted to defer their recommendation of approving the layout of Dean road as a town meeting warrant article until further investigation of the engineering involved with the layout of the road.
At a public hearing Monday night, abutters of Dean road cited drainage in the area as a major problem and safety hazard.
Town Engineer John Ciarcia said the planned road would alleviate drainage problems by installing a 24 inch pipe on Dean road. The cost of the drainage system, $16,000, would be paid for in total by the town. The cost of paving the road will be absorbed by the abutters.
Out of the eight abutters of Dean road, four families do not use the road. These people stated they would be opposed to the layout of the road for economic reasons unless the town could provide close to 100 percent abatements.
Selectman Edward O'Connell said he would favor the layout of the road and press for maximum abatements for people the road did not affect directly.

Selectman Harry Chelero was against the layout of the road because of the engineering involved. The proposed 24 inch drain pipe would drain into a 12 inch pipe on Chisholm road.
"I'm afraid we're subjecting the town to liability because we've accepted something that wasn't right," Chelero said.
The board agreed that Chelero would look into the engineering problems before a final decision was made.
Other board members stressed the need for the road because of safety conditions.
"I think it's an intolerable situation up there," board member Richard Wilsack said.
Joseph Murphy of 7 Dean rd., said he was most affected by the drainage problem.
"We're getting the brook right down our throats and no one seems to care," he said.
"This has been going on since 1975. I don't think the abutters who are not affected should be assessed, the town should pick that up. We're not asking for anyone than an approved road with proper drainage.

Licenses

Selectmen approved the granting of two licenses at their meeting Monday night. They approved the Winchester Jaycee-ettes, Children's Movie, to be held March 15 at Lincoln School and Winchester Youth Hockey, Monte Carlo night, to be held at St. Mary's School, March 4.

Warrant for Town Meeting

Selectmen voted to officially open the warrant for town elections and town meeting. The warrant article deadline for town meeting will close April 1.

Recreation office revives old time roller skating fun

Every Saturday evening the old tunes of Ken Griffin at the organ can be heard echoing off the walls of the Lynch Junior High School gymnasium where roller skates are available for junior high students from 7:30 PM to 10:30 PM.

Donald L. Spinney, director of recreation, states that under the supervision of Joe Mozzicato and John Carucci 90 pairs of clamp-on skates are available to the first 90 skaters each Saturday evening. According to Spinney, the roller skating is so popular that the recreation department is looking into the possibility of opening up other schools to accommodate more skaters, as there are skates available which belong to McCall Junior High School.

Spinney says that roller skating is meeting one of the needs of the junior high age group and with the possibility of a recreation center in the future, structured programs could be offered on the weekends for this age group.

Spring theatre workshops for children start

Spring Theatre Workshops have resumed this week, co-sponsored by the recreation department and Winchester Community Theatre, Inc., Children's Theatre.
To facilitate the handling of the 40 children participating, three groups have been set up. All workshops are held at the Lincoln School auditorium with younger children meeting Mondays 3 to 5; older boys and girls ages 12 to 16 meeting Thursdays 7 to 9, and two groups meeting Saturdays from 9 to 12.

The staff includes Peggy Sawyer, who will direct and teach acting on Thursday evenings; Celia Shneider, dancing instructor; Melody Arberry, professional mime; Lana Reed, professional juggler; Nancy Warnock, acting improvisation and chairman of the board; and Carlene Samoiloff, artistic advisor.

Lana Reed is one of the four instructors in movement and body development for the stage. A professional juggler, she made this statement:

Juggling is a skill that almost anyone can learn — like riding a bicycle or whistling. Once learned, the ability to juggle is always there, no matter how young or old you are when you learn or how many years later.

In the basic movements, the beginning juggler will develop better control of mind, body, and energy. The eye-to-hand coordination, dexterity with both hands, sense of rhythm, and ability to concentrate will improve with juggling practice.

This workshop is a chance for the children to discover in themselves the ability to perform this ancient amusement-mind and body training.

treated. The teachers have not been above board on this matter."

Frank was referring to the two attempts to discuss make-up time in negotiations with the teachers. Both times proved fruitless, according to Frank, because there was no response from the WEA. Silva said that a survey of teachers had been conducted and showed "overwhelming" support for extending the school day, but that make-up days were not discussed at length because of the February vacation which interfered.

The verbal retorts continued as Connie Papas said, "This is not a question of punishment; it is a question of doing life's work."

Silva maintained he had no intention of pitting the school committee against the teachers.

The result of this lengthy and loud discussion was that the school committee is not going along with the state waiver and that, after negotiations with the WEA, a mutually agreeable way of making up the time lost will be found.

Other options which Superintendent MacDonald proposed, but did not support, included making up days on Saturdays (member Jack Noble called that "penalizing" the children), adding days to the end of the school year, shortening lunch period by 15 minutes, and combining the choices in some way.

Silva invited the school committee negotiating team to meet with the WEA Tuesday night to work on the question of making up days or hours. The committee expects to vote next Monday on its method of making up time.

Kindergarten hours

As to the length of kindergarten sessions, the school committee adopted an interim measure as a step toward its final goal of having two sessions of three hours each.

Beginning in September, the morning kindergarten will begin at 8:45 and run until 11:45 and the afternoon session will start at 11:45 and run until 2:45.

The apparent three-hour sessions are, Superintendent MacDonald said, dependent on clerk aides or teacher aides for 15 minutes of the block.

Under his recommendation, the kindergarten teacher would be scheduled for 2 hours and 45 minutes and an aide would be on duty for the last 15 minutes of the a.m. session and the first 15 minutes of the p.m. session.

The aides in the morning will be responsible for routine clean-up and helping the children with dressing and other usual end-of-day activities. The afternoon aide will assist the children in getting ready for their class and preparing the rooms and children for their teacher.

MacDonald said that this arrangement would not involve hiring any personnel and would fulfill the contractual agreement which gives the teacher the lunch time. In cases where the kindergarten teacher has a half-time assignment, aides will not be required.

An extra 15 minutes of aide time will be required in cases where one kindergarten teacher has to travel between buildings for the morning and afternoon sessions.

Committee member Cathy Alexander, who worked on this problem, called it "a workable compromise for parents" and said it would equalize the kindergarten sessions. Now the morning class runs three hours while the afternoon kindergarten is two hours long. Most schools with double kindergartens flip flop in the middle of the school year, with a.m. children attending afternoons and vice versa.

As a final note, MacDonald said that the school department has temporarily abandoned plans for an extended kindergarten program in a centrally located school for the 1978-79 school year.

Police blotter

Winchester police investigated a break in progress at a Pilgrim road home, following a call to police from the resident early Saturday morning.

Officers Richardson and Gallant chased the suspect from the back of the home into a wooded area. The suspect was lost in the vicinity of Old Village drive.

Officer James Gallant was hurt during the chase. He was treated and released from Winchester Hospital for a head wound.

The officers recovered a mink coat and a pillowcase filled with silverware and jewelry in the woods.

Another house break was reported to police on Feb. 26. Jewelry, silverware, antiques vases, paintings, and an Oriental rug were taken from a home on Calumet road. Police said the thieves also apparently tried to open a small safe.

A wallet was reported stolen from a car parked on Mt. Pleasant street. Police said Medford police had picked up a youth with the wallet containing $100 in cash. The incident is still under investigation.

Vandalism was reported at Cutter Village, 780 Main St. on Feb. 24. Police said two lights on outside poles had been smashed and two 18 by 48 thermopane windows were broken.

A Rangle road resident told police a tape deck was stolen from his automobile while it was parked near the home on Feb. 24.

An attempted break was made to a Cross St. home on Feb. 26. The cellar door was forced but no entry was made.

Five local youths were arrested for idle and disorderly conduct on Feb. 25. The youths were arrested at a house party on Ardley road.

A house break was reported on Clearwater road Feb. 21. No damages or missing property were reported.

Read your own water meter

Because of the snow emergency and the resultant clean-up operation, the regular February water meter reading program is far behind normal.

Water and Sewer Division employees with the assistance of CETA people are therefore, leaving meter reading cards at each residence in the area in which normally meters are read in February and early March.

You are requested to fill out the card and mail it back promptly. No postage is necessary.

Out in the open

Should the selectmen of Winchester take an active interest in the resignation of disgruntled town employees?

This question came up at the board's meeting Monday night. The issue involves two DPW employees who recently resigned from their jobs because of "harassment" by the department and "deplorable" working conditions.

On one side, the town manager feels the public works department is his responsibility and the buck should stop there. But selectmen have been pressured by citizens to take a closer look at the problems that exist. They have been termed ineffective in a public letter written by a former Charter Commission member.

The town Charter itself could be helpful in resolving this question.

True, it states in the Charter, the town manager "shall supervise and be responsible for the efficient administration of all functions under his control." The problems at the DPW certainly fall into this category.

But the Charter further states under policy formation of the Department of Public Works, "the Board of Selectmen, acting through the town manager, shall be responsible for the overall supervision of the department of public works and for the establishment of priorities and policies to govern the operation of the department."

In order to act "through the town manager," the selectmen must have first hand knowledge of what is really going on.

It seems that bringing the issue out in the open would be the best thing for all parties involved.—KAW

The Senate

Tax Cut Resolution: Senate unanimously approved, resolutions urging a tax cut for the citizens of the State. Supporters noted there was a projected $410 million surplus in the Governor's fiscal 1979 budget which should be used to reduce taxes only, and claimed it was essential and meaningful for the Senate to go on record in favor of the resolutions. Senator Rotondi voted for the resolutions.

The House

Worcester County Budget Amendment (H1003): House defeated, 110-93, an amendment to the fiscal 1978 $17.2 million Worcester County budget. The amendment would have eliminated the 17 new positions in the budget at a cost of $160,000. The budget was to take effect July 1, 1977, but has been delayed because of the controversy over the 17 new jobs. Representative Saltmarsh voted against the 17 new jobs.

$17.2 Million Worcester Budget (H1003): House approved 132-76, the 17.2 million Worcester County Budget for 1978. Because of the controversy over the 17 new positions, the County has been operating without a budget since July 1, and by law has been operating under a monthly budget equal to one-twelfth of last year's budget. Supporters argued the budget was a reasonable one and pointed out it has been delayed too long and should be approved. Opponents argued the budget contained 17 unnecessary new positions costing $160,000, and noted the County has been operating successfully without the new positions during the budget delay. Saltmarsh voted against the budget.

Special Report: A few days ago, Federal energy official warned Massachusetts that the State might possibly lose up to $1.2 million in conservation aid if it does not permit drivers to make right turns on red lights at most intersections. The right turn provision is part of a five-part package states are required to draw up and implement to be eligible for the funds.

Forty-eight states have approved and begun instituting the program which studies have indicated will save some 150 million gallons of gasoline a year since cars would no longer waste gas idling at red lights.

Massachusetts has asked The Department of Energy to waive the right turn requirement and the U.S. Department of Transportation is in the process of evaluating the waiver.

In August of last year, the Massachusetts House of Representatives held a roll call vote on the red light-right turn proposal. The measure received initial approval, but never received a final okay.

Red Light-Right Turn (H6319): House gave initial approval 161-57 to a bill allowing drivers to make right turns at red lights. Supporters noted many other states allow the turns and have had no increase in accidents, noted the proposal would save thousands of gallons of gas and pointed out the bill has safeguards allowing communities to prohibit right turns at certain dangerous intersections. Opponents argued the bill would be a dangerous disaster for drivers and pedestrians, and claimed it would lead to an increase in accidents. Representative Saltmarsh voted for permitting the turns.

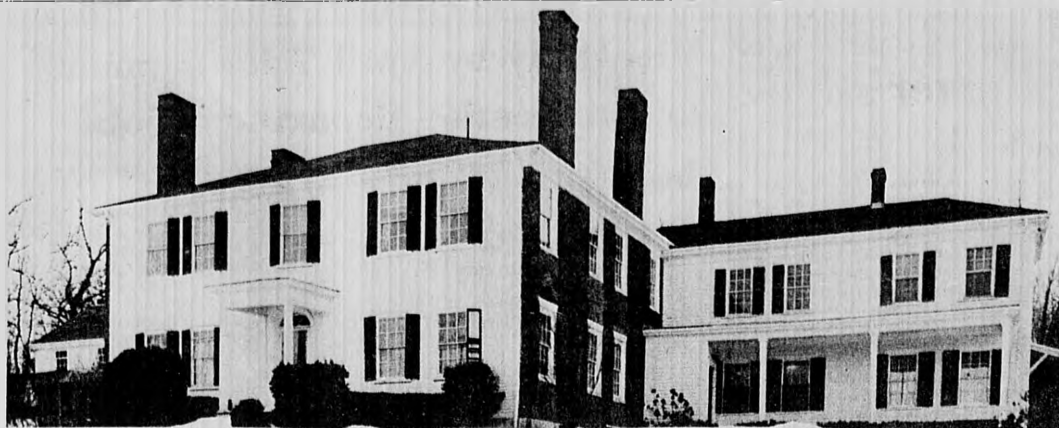

Hike Fuel Assistance (H2328): House defeated 122-87, an amendment increasing the amount of money in the proposed emergency winter fuel assistance program from $1 million to $2 million. The program is designed to help low income, elderly and unemployed people who are having difficulty paying oil and utility bills. Saltmarsh Voted against.

$25 Million Additional Aid (H2328): House rejected 186-31, an amendment to add $25 million to the winter fuel assistance program budget, to provide more storm-related assistance. The two-part amendment would provide $10 million to fund low interest loans to residential property owners in coastal areas of the State for the repair and reconstruction of homes damaged by the storm, and would also provide another $15 million to be distributed by the State Treasurer to reimburse cities and towns for snow removal costs. Saltmarsh voted against the $25 million amendment.

"General Fund"—"Solvency Fund" (S1354): House barely defeated 110-100, an amendment to the bill waiving the one-week waiting period ordinarily required of unemployed persons to qualify for unemployment benefits, and thus allowing payment of benefits to persons who obeyed the ban and didn't report for work during the storm emergency. The amendment would have funded the benefits from the State's "general fund" supported by all the taxpayers, rather than from the "solvency account" which is financed solely by employer contributions as insurance against unemployment.

Saltmarsh voted for funding from the employers' "solvency fund."

Unemployment Funding (S1354): House gave final approval 209-9 to the bill providing unemployment benefits to people unable to work during the storm, by waiving the usual one-week waiting period for persons to qualify for benefits. Saltmarsh voted for the package.

The Locke House, built in 1803 by Josiah Locke, also known as the Vinson-Owen House, has been nominated for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places because of its important historical and architectural qualities.

The house that Locke built

Many people in Winchester remember the family for whom the Vinson-Owen School was named.

Winchester native Maribel Vinson-Owen was a member of three Olympic figure-skating teams, nine times National champion and a very successful skating instructor who coached her two daughters to reach her own high standard. All three were traveling to the World Championship meet at Prague in 1961 when their plane crashed and the entire U.S. team was tragically killed.

The house that the family owned is the first local building to be nominated for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places because of its important historical and architectural qualities.

It was built in 1803 by Josiah Locke whose family name is remembered in Lockeland Park.

Maybe he was more conscious of status symbols than we expect a Yankee farmer to have been. In any case he arranged that the side of the house which was visible to people who were approaching it from town would have bricks laid with the expensive technique called "Flemish bond" while on the other side, which faced farmland, the cheaper common bond was used.

The house as a whole is unusually well-preserved. The few changes that were made in the past 170 years were carried out in such a way that the basic character of the house was not altered. This is not a case of a house that has been "restored" to someone's idea of what may once have existed. Instead, the original fabric has never been removed.

For example, the wallpaper in the front hall has probably been there since before 1818. The pattern has survived all the changes in taste that came and went in the nineteenth and most of the twentieth centuries until now we can look at the simple Federal period design and think that it looks quite like something that we might choose to buy today.

The house changed hands several times in the nineteenth century and tracking down its various previous owners involved much painstaking work. Allen Hill, a professional in the field who volunteered his time, spent many hours at the Registry of Deeds and with the Winchester and Woburn libraries' microfilm collections of nineteenth century newspapers.

A copy of the National Register nomination form which contains detailed information about the house is available at the Winchester Archival Center. The archivist, Ed Galvin, will be happy to show it to anyone who is interested. He can be reached at the center or by leaving a message by telephoning the public library.

The Winchester Historical Commission plans to nominate three more buildings for inclusion in the National Register during the coming year.

Lost pets

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Having lost (and found) my cat recently, and having taken in a stray shortly after, I have had extensive dealings with the Winchester SPCA. This organization, which is not affiliated with the Massachusetts SPCA, is a group of volunteers who house and feed abandoned pets until homes can be found.

Their premises are small, so they can usually accept only animals in dire need of shelter or medical attention. These are the animals people throw out of car windows on Route 128, and these are the animals the SPCA accepts without question.

There are far too many of these abused, cast-off pets. And after the Winchester SPCA has taken them in, they have no room for healthy strays. If they do have room, they ask the person who brings in a stray cat to contribute about $30 to go toward the care and feeding of the cat.

It strikes me as ironic that when I find someone else's cat and am trying to locate its owner, I must pay to bring it to an animal shelter. It would be far cheaper to let the cat out again. But of course, someone has to subsidize the cost of running the shelter, and people who abandon pets don't do it. Besides, it is the cat's welfare we should be most concerned with.

Here are a few ways to cut down on the lost pet problem in Winchester:

1. If you accidentally lose your pet, try to find it promptly. Advertise in newspapers and on supermarket bulletin boards. Call the SPCA and other animal shelters. Someone may have reported finding your pet. Many animal shelters other than the Winchester SPCA hold pets for a few days only. If you delay calling, your pet may be gone by the time you contact the shelter.

2. If you find a lost pet, watch for lost and found notices and place some yourself. Notify local animal shelters.

3. Never abandon a pet. If you have in the past, however, the Winchester SPCA may have taken it in. You may wish to make them a belated donation since it costs them about $30 to have a cat examined, altered, and given shots, plus $2 a day to board it.

Praise firefighters

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like at this time to extend praise to the firefighters of our town.

On February 8th, during our "Blizzard of '78" an emergency call to our police department, was handled in an efficient manner by Officer Roland Roy to the fire department to administer medical aid and transportation to the Winchester Hospital.

Firefighters Francis Mawn, John Sarrell, Kevin Yore, and George Moran extended excellent care and ambulance service to the hospital.

We in this town are so fortunate to have such capable fire and police departments and at a time like this we realize it more.

Gross criticism

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The criticisms of Dr. McClintock's letter on the Water Purifier ad is criticism in the wrong direction. It is most needed in our outdated water works system to improve the quality of our tap water.

The fact remains that there is a definite correlation between chlorinated drinking water and cancer. This has been reiterated by many doctors — water experts and EPA studies.

The Government would not be planning to spend billions to filter chlorinated water supplies with carbon if there were no cancer causing agents in their water supply.

The Winchester water supply and its water treatment system is as old as the Kitty Hawk's first flight. There has been outstanding advancements in aviation and space flights while the water quality in Town has made a steady decline without any improvements.

What is needed is some public reaction on this election year to get something done in this regard.

The ads were meant for promoting home water purification but mostly to educate the Public to spark some Public reaction.

Selling Home Water Purifiers on a home demonstration is far more effective and much less expensive than newspaper ads. The simple water quality test that shows what comes out of the tap is more impressive when seeing it than reading about it in an ad.

The point I'm trying to get across is that filtration plants only make a slight improvement in cleaning the water supply. The government needs to do more than just make some improvements in water quality. The Cambridge water supply is a good example of this. MIT is on the Cambridge water supply and as most people know, the water in Cambridge has poor water quality. Cambridge has a Municipal Water Filtration Plant which uses carbon filtration and yet has a 42 PPB of cancer causing agents, known as chloroform in their drinking water and their water tastes like it came directly from a chlorinated swimming pool.

This is not my idea of clean safe drinking water.

In closing I would like to say that Winchester's chlorine treatment and its residual in the distribution system is erratic — uneven and outright dangerous. While most homes are getting an overdose of chlorine, some homes are not getting the proper protection with a very weak chlorine residual and at times, none at all.

I have made many chlorine residual tests throughout the Town and found this to be a fact. The chlorine distribution is only one of the many problems with our present Waterworks system.

Recreation space

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Superintendent William MacDonald: CONCERN feels that now is the time to study plans which include permanent space for Recreation.

We would like the Task Force to consider making space available for youth and/or family activities while it is planning on future consolidation of schools.

The building which was formerly the Medford High School is now used for both business offices and recreational space. With the expected reduction in the number of Winchester's students in the near future, could there be space made available, for either offices or classrooms and recreational facilities, all in one building?

We look forward to hearing from you and are available to be helpful in any way we can.

Residents praised

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester Firefighters, IAFF Local 1564, would like to express their sincere gratitude to the residents of Winchester for their assistance during the "Great Blizzard of 1978". The people who shoveled snow away from hydrants and assisted firefighters in locating buried hydrants, certainly deserve a special thanks. Your efforts were greatly appreciated by our organization.

Where am I?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Where am I? I must have suddenly become disoriented during the great blizzard of '78 and for the longest time I had no idea where I was. But alas, Sunday morning a newspaper (obviously well-known to this region) was thrown onto the squeaky boards of my front porch. Quickly I snapped back the comic strip section to see if I recognized the paper's name. Yes, it was the Sunday Globe! My eyes actually began to "salivate" as they chewed at page after page of important (and newsworthy) information when suddenly — wuf? I noticed there was an exclusive interview with Mr. Congeniality (reputed organized crime honcho Joseph Bonanno) inside, along with cigarette advertisements with bare-chested sexy men, a portrait of Sylvester Stallone's armpit, one-sided liberal editorials and lastly, but most importantly, the never ending bargain-priced pages of the automotive section.

How interesting, I thought, until suddenly it all began to come back to me. Obviously with great material like this, I could only be in America (somewhere near Boston of course)!

Exam for police

By The Observer

Senator Samuel Rotondi (D-Winchester) announced today that a new civil service police examination date has been set for those interested in applying.

"The next examination will be given on May 20, due to the expiration of the present police civil service list. Applications must be filed no later than April 14," Rotondi said.

This examination will be held to establish eligible lists for capitol police officer, metropolitan police patrolman, MBTA patrolman as well as all city and town patrolmen to fill vacancies in these positions.

"To be eligible for this examination all men and women applicants must have attained the age of 19 and not have reached their 30 birthday at the time of application excluding certain Vietnam veterans. A birth certificate must be filed at the time of application," stated Sen. Rotondi.

"Other requirements include filing of a discharge release (DD214) at the time of examination for veteran's preference, graduation or its equivalent from high school, passage of a medical examination, possession of a valid state driver's license and the exclusion of any height requirement," continued the senator.

In cities and towns, the salary for police officer will vary depending upon the compensation plan of each individual city and town. The minimum rates for other patrolmen are as follows: $11,755.00 for capitol police; $11,078.00 for M.D.C. police; and $11,970 for M.B.T.A. police.

"Applications may be obtained and filed in person at the Division of Personnel Administration, One Ashburton pl., Second Floor, Boston, or by contacting my office," concluded Sen. Rotondi.

The Comptroller Screening Committee recommended four candidates to the selectmen for interviewing for the position of town Comptroller.

The four candidates were narrowed down from a field of 92, committee chairman John McElwee said. They are Robert E. Burke, Alfred J. Faggiano, Guy V. Lapriere, and Sarah Saccoccio.

McElwee urged quick action by the board in the interviewing process. McElwee said that one of the candidates was the subject of an emergency meeting of the board of selectmen in the town he is presently working.

McElwee also said a reevaluation of the salary level may be necessary. The job was advertised at a salary level of about $23,000.

"Winchester as a community seems more demanding of its comptroller than other communities," he said.

The board set the dates for interviewing as March 8 and 14.

McElwee said that of the four candidates "at least one has experience in municipal government, at least one has experience in a town similar to Winchester (Framingham), and at least one has extensive EDP experience. All candidates have extensive budget preparation experience and all are active members of professional societies."

In the wake of the recent storm which left thousands along the Massachusetts coast homeless, one fact has been made painfully clear: information for property owners about federal flood insurance and other disaster programs needs to be presented more thoroughly. Because of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council's (MAPC) past involvement in assisting local communities with federal programs, the Council is preparing a series of bulletins on disaster relief. MAPC seriously urges citizens to consider the national flood insurance program's advantages.

The National Flood Insurance Program, established by Congress in 1968 in an effort to save lives and protect property, is administered by the Federal Insurance Administration under the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. This program enables property owners, living in those communities which choose to participate in federal emergency programs, to purchase flood insurance at federally subsidized rates.

Property owners should be cautioned that if they have not already purchased flood insurance, they naturally are not eligible for this form of compensation for flood damage incurred during last week's storm. Purchasing the insurance now, however, will enable those living in special flood hazard areas to qualify for other federal relief and disaster assistance programs for acquisition, construction or reconstruction of buildings damaged from the storm. And since flood insurance covers property or contents damage from surface water flooding, it's a good investment against possible flood damage during the coming spring thaw.

The responsibility for securing coverage under the National Flood Insurance Program lies solely with the individual property owner. Flood Insurance policies may be purchased from any properly agent or broker licensed to do business in Massachusetts. Your broker will be able to explain the extent of coverage available as well as the rates.

Call your local insurance agent or broker for more information about Federal Flood Insurance policies. Insurance agents with questions about policy servicing may call 800-638-6620, toll free or write: National Flood Insurance Program, P.O. Box 34604, Bethesda, Maryland 20834.

Questions about the Federal Flood Insurance Program in general, should be directed to Edward Thomas, Regional Director, HUD Flood Insurance Program Office, 15 New Chardon st., Boston 02114. Telephone: 221-2616.

Curtain & Cue rehearsing

'Kate' is Cole Porter's best

By George Parker

"Kiss Me, Kate," Curtain and Cue's winter musical, was Cole Porter's greatest production, and in recognition of its excellence, it garnered Porter the Antoinette Perry Award, for the best musical of the season in 1948.

This musical was not expected to be as successful as it was, for Porter had recently been in a severe accident, and had been required to undergo 30 operations in an attempt to save his legs. Because of this physical debilitation, and the accompanying mental strain, all of Broadway considered Porter to be through, despite his immense talent.

This skill had shown itself repeatedly in Porter's earlier works, after the failure of his initial production. Preceding "Kiss Me, Kate" were such successes as "The Gay Divorcee," in which Fred Astaire sang "Night and Day"; "Anything Goes," regarded as second only to "Kiss Me, Kate," largely because of its opening number, sung by Ethel Merman in the Broadway production; "I Get A Kick Out of You," and "Leave It To Me," a spoof of the USSR, in which Mary Martin sang "My Heart Belongs To Daddy."

However, all of these accomplishments faded before the triumph of "Kiss Me, Kate." This work was one of the few musicals that ran for more than 1,000 performances, and it sent a national company on tour for three years. This fame was not limited to the United States, though, for it also became a smash overseas, and was translated into 18 languages.

A German version, playing at the Volksoper, ran longer than any production that the Volksoper had staged in 58 years, and remained in repertory for more than a decade. A recording of the original cast became a best-seller, and four of "Kiss Me, Kate's" songs made the Hit Parade. Not only was "Kiss Me, Kate" successful on stage, but it also was a box-office smash as a movie.

Clearly, there has to be some basis for all of these achievements. However, when one considers the play, there is no one aspect that stands out from the rest; every part of the show is matched in quality with the other parts. This unique accomplishment caused the comments that "Kiss Me, Kate," "was the best score that Porter ever wrote, and one of the best ever written for the American musical stage." This sort of sweeping statement not only applies to the score, but also to the text, written by Bella and Samuel Spewack.

Thus, this year's selection is as high if not higher in quality as any of the other musicals that the high school has staged in previous years. Curtain and Cue's production of this masterpiece, though it will have a much shorter run than the Broadway original, promises to be of no lesser quality.

'March Fourth for Scouting' is at Burlington Mall Sat.

To many people, scouting still means a short boy, four feet tall, in short pants helping across the street a little old lady who doesn't really want to go. Nothing could be further from the truth and the Cubs, Scouts and Explorers of the Minuteman Council will be out in force on Saturday, to prove it. That day they will present their annual show, appropriately titled "March Fourth for Scouting" to be held at the Burlington Mall from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

More than 3000 Scouts will present a dazzling panorama of boy-planned, boy-run displays on topics from a 50's revival to a multi-media glimpse of scouting's future, with everything from astronomy to zoology in between.

Local scouting units planning to participate include: Pack 524, Parkhurst Parents Association, Troop 503, 1st Congregational Church, Troop 506, Unitarian Church, and Post 8, Winchester Police Department.

Tickets to the "March Fourth for Scouting" can be purchased from any Cub, Scout or Explorer. The doors open at 9:30 A.M. and the public is cordially invited to attend and view the scouting program in action.

CLEAN WATER NEEDED

"We in America have long considered safe drinking water as our natural heritage. Indeed we have accepted it much as we have regarded the air we breathe - unlimited, free and clean. But it is neither limitless nor free nor a product that somehow is immune from the pollution which affects other aspects of our lives."

Russell E. Train, Administrator
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency

Having a Multi-Pure Home Water Purifier has 2 important advantages:

First, it will protect the aspects of the lives of those who use them and second, it will make the water used for drinking and food preparation a real pleasure.

Drinking sparkling clean water without the constant concern of impurities is well worth the price of a Home Water Purifier for the family.

WORLD CLASS SOCCER COMES TO NEW ENGLAND

We call our team the New England Tea Men and that's a name to remember, because we're putting together a first class operation to challenge the best NASL squads.

First class means a winning coach and we've hired one of the best. Noel Cantwell once stood before 100,000 cheering fans as Queen Elizabeth presented him with the coveted Football Association Cup, symbolic of English soccer supremacy. He was playing Captain of Manchester United then and has since become a successful coach, having won Manager of the Year honor for England's Peterborough United team.

First class means winning players, and the Tea Men are signing them quickly. Players like Ringo Cantillo, last year's American Soccer League MVP, who has won four other MVP awards, and David D'Errico, 1977 Captain of the U.S. National Team. Our internationally-known coach is now using his connections overseas to sign a host of other stars.

Soccer is a sport that's watched and played by more people than any other in the world. It's also the fastest growing U.S. spectator sport. Now, New England fans will be seeing such visiting stars as Franz Beckenbauer, George Best, Gordon Banks and Rodney Marsh.

Most important, soccer is fun. It's simple, the object is to kick the ball into the other side's net. The whole family can understand it. It's also constant action; you won't see a series of boring time outs. Prices are reasonable, where else could mom, dad and two youngsters get reserved seats to a major league event for a ten spot.

Games are Sunday afternoons and Wednesday nights during the best weather period of the year. We play at Schaefer Stadium, same as the NFL Patriots. Facilities are first rate, plenty of parking is available and there is easy access from a number of main roads.

The first to order season tickets will get the best seats, that's only fair, and you'll have the option of renewing these good seats year after year, even if the Tea Men attract capacity crowds.

Hockey team ends season — nothing more to be said

The Winchester High School hockey team ended its season on a losing note. They lost their last four games.

After a layoff of a week from games and practices due to "Bizzard 78," the Sachems met Stoneham at the Stoneham arena. Winchester lost this game by a score of 11-0 but the score sounds worse than the game actually was. The puck did not bounce well for the Sachems but it managed to bounce very well for Stoneham.

The game started out fast with both teams hustling and checking well but Winchester, as so many other times this season, could not get the puck into the net. This was not because they took bad shots, but because the puck would get lost from the view of the referee either in front of the net or under the goalie so the whistle would blow. It was just the opposite for Stoneham. Whenever the puck was lost from view in front of the net it seemed always to end up in the goal.

Mark McGoldrick and Mark Carzo had a good rush down the ice together but were unable to score. With ten minutes to go in the third period when Winchester had the puck in the Stoneham zone putting a lot of pressure on the Stoneham goalie, Mark McGoldrick was pulled down hard injuring his knee. Despite the score Winchester played hard. To watch Winchester's hustle throughout the game a person would not have guessed that Stoneham had such an insurmountable lead.

The next game for Winchester was against the Wakefield Warriors. Again the puck did not bounce well for the Sachems. The two goals they did score they really had to work hard for. The score of this game was Wakefield 4-2.

Five minutes into the first period Wakefield scored on a blistering shot that Vozzella was unable to stop.

Sachem Jack Collins had a nice scoring bid when he received a pass from the Winchester defense and took the puck into the Warrior zone faking a Warrior defenseman only to have the goalie make a glove save on his shot. Three minutes after the first goal Wakefield scored another goal. Winchester did not want to lose another game like the last one and so they really started playing hard.

Jack Collins had another chance for a goal, shifting his body around the Warrior defense. When he got by, it looked as though he was tripped, but the referee did not call a penalty. The score at the end of the first period was 2-0 Wakefield.

The second period began with the Sachems short-handed. However Wakefield could not do anything on their power play.

Frank Vozzella, playing another excellent game in goal, caught what looked like an unstoppable shot from the point.

With two minutes gone in the second period Captain Mark McGoldrick scored an unassisted goal. Showing his hustle, he picked up a loose puck and faked out the goalie. The Sachems were now ready to pull out the throttle and go full speed ahead.

A few seconds later however Wakefield returned the goal. The score was now 3-1, but Winchester was not going to play dead. The Sachems played their hardest trying to get a goal but were unable to. During the last minutes of the second period it was all Winchester. They kept applying the pressure on the Wakefield goalie. At one time it looked as though the puck was in the net but instead it was sitting on the line with Winchester trying to tip it in. The Sachems were not getting any breaks. Winchester had its momentum rolling in the last part of the second period. Too bad the period had to end.

In the third period the Sachems started out on the power play. Kenny Carlson had a blistering shot which the goalie did not even see but somehow he made the save and did not even know he had come up with the puck.

Winchester was playing its best period all year. Frank Vozzella had another good save when a Wakefield player had a breakaway. For a goalie it is hard to know which way the shot is going to go but Frank remained calm and judged it perfectly. The Warrior player was a bit surprised when it did not go in.

Jack Collins scored the Sachems second goal when he received a pass, skated fast around a Wakefield player and faked the goalie.

With 45 seconds left to play in the game Coach Berman pulled the goalie to get the sixth player on the ice in order to tie up the game. Winchester could not capitalize and, with three seconds left in the game a Warrior player cleared the puck out of his zone and it dribbled slowly into the net.

The Tanners of Woburn were Winchester's next opponent. Woburn started out well scoring two goals in the first ten minutes of play. Sachem Jack Collins scored the first and only Winchester goal on a rebound of a Bubba Sanford shot. This turned the entire period around. Winchester was overpowering Woburn but again the Sachems were unable to capitalize on their chances.

Woburn scored one goal during the second period.

At the beginning of the third period Woburn scored two more goals. Winchester goalie Vozzella was taken out a few minutes later after having played an excellent game and was replaced by Steve Ferullo. Moments later Ferullo had an excellent save on a three on one break. A Woburn player shot and Ferullo, with all three Woburn players jabbing at him, managed to keep the puck underneath him.

With two minutes left in the game a Tanner outmaneuvered a Sachem player and took a shot. The puck took a funny bounce and went into the net. The final score was Woburn 6-1.

Woburn was supposed to be the last game of the season but due to the storm the Melrose game had to be made up. The game was played during vacation and the Sachems lost that game by a score of 6-2.

Even though the Sachems did not win a game all season each and every member of the team must be admired. It takes a lot of determination to go out to play hard and hustle game after game when a team is not winning. And so to all the members of the team from your loyal band of fans a thank you for all your efforts.

Rec. basketball

Last Wednesday evening the Winchester recreation department started its men's recreational basketball league with two exciting games.

In the first game the Bucks, led by Bruce Hagopian, Chris Jones and high scorer Gary Pogharian (24 points), whalloped the Celtics 74-35. It was a fast and furious game as each team traded baskets but in the end the Bucks were just too strong. Leading the Celtics in scoring was Dick Ellis with 12 points.

In the second game the Rockets nipped the Blazers at the end of the buzzer 77-75. Leading the scoring for the Rockets was Carmen Patti with 26 points, and Jim Phillips with 20 points. Also chipping in with a dozen points was Steve Butz. Top scorers for the Blazers were Tom Dagio (24), Joe Bonasera (14) and Alex Pope (18).

This trio gobbled up the sausages and pancakes at the recent annual Noonan School breakfast. The three sisters are Renee, Lisa, and Nichole Downey.

Pancake breakfast held at Noonan

The Noonan School Parents Association recently held their annual Pancake Breakfast in the school hall under the direction of Tina MacArthur, Ways and Means Chairman. An enthusiastic crowd of parents, children, and friends arrived to enjoy a repast of gold pancakes, sizzling sausages, cocoa, and coffee.

This year's chefs included Dick Tringale, Fran Murray, Kevin Nolan, Neil MacArthur, and also George Flynn Noonan's principal.

Trip to Boston's Gibson House set Sunday afternoon

A field trip to the Gibson House in Boston has been planned for Sunday by the Winchester Historical Society. Dating from 1848, this is one of the first houses to be built on Beacon street in the Back Bay area.

According to Allen Hill, historical preservation expert, the Gibson House with furniture of the period is an opulent example of a Victorian mansion. It is also the only house in this neighborhood to be opened as a museum. Graduate students will act as guides.

Those interested in joining the field trip, which will leave the Archival Center at 1:30 Sunday afternoon, should call Mrs. Harold Gold, 21 Jefferson rd for reservations or further information.

St. Mary's hockey finishes season in second place

It was the second year that Steve Ferullo was picked and started in goal for the American Division. The goal tenders are selected by the director of the league. The American Division won the All-Star Game 3 to 2.

St. Mary's team is coached by Ken Donaghey, the team members are: D. Graham, D. Murphy, E. Doherty, D. McGovern, D. O'Neil, R. Mazzarella, T. Donlon, M. Simpson, J. Gagan, D. Hines, S. Simeone, I. Donaghey, R. Kimball, K. Conley, N. Fortin, B. Pronski, J. Ferullo, and goalies S. Ferullo and R. Surabian. Ken Donaghey and Father Curley are thanked for their devotion and support.

A fund-raising event is being sponsored by the W.Y.H. and St. Mary's C.Y.O. this Saturday evening in St. Mary's Hall at 7:30 p.m. It will be a Monte Carlo night and all are invited. There will be many prizes, and refreshments will be served. Attendance will help the entire Winchester Youth Hockey Program and St. Mary's C.Y.O. Hockey program.

Larkin takes state 600 in come-from-behind last lap

Three members of the indoor track team competed in the Massachusetts State Championships last Tuesday, and came in with very respectable finishes.

The three runners who qualified for the finals were Charlie Larkin, in the 600, Ed Kirkpatrick, in the 1000, and Scott Farrar, in the dash.

Larkin came into the meet with justifiably high expectations for he had run the second fastest time in Massachusetts for this season, and the runner who had run the fastest time was in another division. Thus, the Sachem fans were confident that Charlie could take the championship — and take it he did, for after trailing for the first three laps, he roared past Trevor Garrick on the backstretch of the last lap, and pulled away from the other runners, and came in with a time of 1:15.6.

In Class A competition, however, Jim McKenna turned in a 1:14.8 performance, almost a full second faster than Larkin's time. If both of these runners compete in the State Coaches' Invitational Meet the 600 should be a very interesting race.

Ed Kirkpatrick, though, was not as successful, and came in seventh overall in the 1000. This finish is largely the result of Ed's start, for he was stuck in the back of the pack, and had to fight past everyone in front of him. Naturally they made it as difficult as possible for him to pass, so he didn't finish with as fast a time as he has expected.

In the dash, Scott Farrar had to race twice: first in the semi-finals, and then again in the finals, for he had finished third in his heat, thus qualifying for the finals. In the finals, though, he was not as successful, and finished fifth, about a step behind the first four.

These two runners, Kirkpatrick and Farrar, will be the core of next year's indoor squad, and will be in all probability, the top point scorers for the team, for many of this year's stars will be graduating.

Included in this number are Charlie Larkin and Brian O'Connor, both of whom were undefeated this year in league competition, along with Tim Morgan and Scott Farrar, both of the Sachems' hurdlers. Tim was also the only high jumper late in the season, for Reilly Atkinson, also a senior, was slowed by injuries.

On the bright side, though, Winchester will be fairly strong in the distance events, for both Andy Wilsack and Jim Wilbur will be returning. The 1000 yd. run, obviously, is in good hands with Ed Kirkpatrick as in the dash, with Scott Farrar. In the 600, sophomore Ken Kirk has made excellent progress, and stands a good chance of having a winning season next year. In the remaining events, though, coach Tom Kline will have to pray for some surprises.

Practice starts next year, after Thanksgiving, in the gym.

First Frank Amico Memorial Bowl-a-thon is March 16, 18

The first annual Frank Amico Memorial Bowl-A-Thon in honor of the late Winchester fire chief will take place at the Winchester Bowl-A-Drome on Thursday, March 16 and Saturday, March 18.

Friends and colleagues of Amico, who succumbed to kidney disease last July, are organizing the event to raise funds for renal research in his name. All proceeds from the bowl-a-thon will benefit the Kidney Foundation.

"Perhaps, as a result of our efforts, a research advance may result in saving others afflicted with the disease which claimed Frank's life," commented Robert W. McElhinney, Winchester fire chief. McElhinney is a member of the Memorial Committee, along with Paul Andrews, assistant superintendent of schools in Woburn and Gus Galdacci, venerable of the Sons of Italy.

"We're hoping the entire community will help to make the event a success," said Andres. He explained that local businesses will be contacted for pledges and that youngsters participating in the bowl-a-thon will recruit the sponsorship of friends and neighbors.

Candlepin bowlers from St. Mary's Junior League will bowl during their regular Thursday session to generate funds and the Immaculate Conception Junior League will devote their regular Saturday morning bowling to the activity.

Winchester Bowl-A-Drome owner Joseph DiCarlo said, "We're happy to pay tribute to this great man and friend of the community." He added, "It's also a fine way for our young people to get involved in voluntary action against a major national health problem."

Bowl-a-thon participants will be raising funds for kidney research through the solicitation of pledges for each point scored. Any money amount may be pledged.

Youngsters are eligible for prizes based on dollar returns. Each bowler who collects ten dollars or more in pledges will receive a Kidney Foundation tee-shirt.

As a voluntary health agency, the Kidney Foundation relies entirely upon public financial support to maintain its commitment to renal research, patient care and public information programs.

Currently, the Foundation is sponsoring research studies at Beth Israel Hospital, Massachusetts General Hospital, New England Medical Center and Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Amico emigrated to Winchester from his native Sicily at the age of six. He was educated in Winchester public schools and served on the fire department for 40 years. He was fire chief for 12 years prior to his retirement in 1975.

"His life was the fire department," Amico's widow remarked. She stated, "I know Frank would be very pleased that people are remembering him in this special way."

Mrs. Amico recalls her husband telling her near the time he underwent a kidney transplant operation last April, "If this kidney works, I'm going to put all my energy into working for the Kidney Foundation."

The people organizing the Frank Amico Memorial Bowl-A-Thon and all those supporting it financially are making his unrealized wish become a reality.

States in sight for Sachemettes - next year

By Maryellen Kennedy

Take a before and after picture of a girl's basketball team. Last year, it was a young, virtually inexperienced, newly coached unit, with a 4 and 14 record. Now, after this 1978 season, it has become a competitive, enthusiastic team which has ended the season with a winning record. Such team growth is visible in the Winchester High girl's basketball team, and it is inevitable that in future years they are capable of much more. As they say, "you have definitely come a long way."

BELMONT

In a winning effort against Belmont, 51-38, the Sachemettes' enthusiasm and confidence proved to be a dominant factor in the game. Winchester was determined to win.

Winchester took control early in the game when starters Holly Stevenson, Linda Pierce, Barbara Jacobs, Diane Cullen, and Carol Holahan easily managed to score 17 points in the quarter to Belmont's 11 points. Belmont was unable to stop the inside shooting of the forwards throughout the period.

In the second quarter, however, Belmont took the initiative, relying on a press which caused numerous turnovers through bad passes and steals. Belmont, led by their top player, Linda Ralph, continued putting pressure on the team throughout the third and fourth quarters, drawing to within two, 38-36. It was then that the Sachemettes exploded. Two quick lay-ups by Linda Pierce and Barbara Jacobs started the outburst which led to 13 Winchester points while holding Belmont to 2. Final Score: Winchester 51 - Belmont 38.

Sachem scoring was led by Holly Stevenson with 24, Linda Pierce with 17, Diane Cullen with 7, and Barbara Jacobs with 8. While those who did score in Belmont's game earn the distinction of offensively leading the team to victory, so too, do those whose defensive skills, intuitive knowledge, and effort earn the acknowledgement of a well-played game. Such players were: Carol Holahan, Kelly Gately, Kathleen Driscoll, Christine Driscoll, Kathy Day, Terry Burns, and Laurie Redmond. The Belmont win was a great team victory.

STONEHAM

Winchester's dominance in all aspects of play assured their win against Stoneham, 59-44. First quarter scoring was somewhat lopsided as the Sachemettes rose to a 17-point lead, 19-2, over their opposition in the first quarter with co-captains Linda Pierce and Holly Stevenson, along with Christine Driscoll, directing the way. Their superiority continued throughout the second quarter and at the half, Winchester led, 29-13.

Every team seems to have one bad quarter, full of turnovers, steals, bad passes, and missed shots. The Sachemettes are no exception. Their period seems to be the third quarter. With 4:30 left in the third, the Stoneham players, led by Paula Doherty (14 points) and Theresa Kwiatkowski (12 points) started a surge that lasted for 3 minutes: a surge which accounted for 12 points and numerous Sachem turnovers. The Sachemettes, in fact, did not score again until there was less than a minute left and Linda Pierce dropped in two free throws. And so, at the end of the third quarter, it was Winchester 42 - Stoneham 36.

When the end of the third came, so too did the end of Winchester's problems. Sachem teamwork prevailed and pass combinations such as Pierce to Gately to Stevenson for two points were once again unpreventable. A final steal by Kathy Day with 33 seconds left capped the end to another successful victory. High scorers: Stevenson: 21, Pierce: 13, Jacobs: 8, Cullen: 5, Driscoll and Gately: 4, Burns and Day: 2.

WOBURN

This was THE game: the one that was more important than any of the others. This game was against Woburn and everyone on the Sachem squad exceeded all previous efforts in order to defeat the town rival. It was a game filled with outstanding defense and total team cooperation: it was Winchester's best.

As can be seen by the first quarter score, 4-4, both teams were on guard against each other. Winchester's starting line-up of Pierce, Stevenson, Jacobs, Gately, and Day scored first with 3:10 gone in the game on an inside shot by Linda Pierce. The Sachemettes then went on to hold Woburn scoreless until only 1:19 remained when Martin scored on a lay-up. The quarter ended on a buzzer shot by Hildegard Regan to tie it at 4.

The second quarter saw a confident Winchester team breaking the Woburn press with virtually no problems, and through their passing, driving and shooting (especially the 25 ft. shots by Diane Cullen), they were able to thoroughly outplay the Woburn team, ending the half, 14-9. They then retained the lead through the third quarter, finishing ahead, 22-21.

In the fourth quarter, Woburn gained control: and took over the lead. A quicker game tempo forced by Woburn's, Martin (11 points) and Regan (7 points) caused many turnovers by Winchester. While Winchester was in the game until the end, they were not able to regain the lead and lost 31-26. Sachem scoring was led by Holly Stevenson, Diane Cullen, and Barbara Jacobs (6 points each), with Linda Pierce and Kathy Day each sinking 4 points.

As the girl's basketball season winds to a close, there are many memories of upsets, close losses, and substantial growth throughout the team. The best of luck is wished for Seniors: Holly Stevenson and Diane Cullen, and many hopes will follow the upcoming '79 Team. Next year, the State Tournament is within Winchester's reach!

PeeWees top Malden, 8-2

The Winchester Pee Wee AA's spotted Malden two first period goals before roaring back for eight unanswered goals of their own en route to posting an 8-2 victory Saturday afternoon.

Late in the first period with the Hawks trailing, Steve Masiello alertly scooped up a loose puck at center ice, broke in alone putting a wrist shot into the right corner to put the Hawks on the board.

During the early part of the second period, the Hawks put the game away. Within a span of 31 seconds, Mike Griffin registered three goals coming as a result of his clever play and hard work around the net. During this brief time span, continued pressure and forechecking by Steve Masiello and Paul Tucci prevented Malden from clearing the zone following the ensuing face-off. Griffin capitalized as he scored the tying, winning and insurance goals with two assists credited to Paul Tucci.

The Hawks added two more goals to put the score to 6-2 late in the second period. Jimmy Coppins, playing his finest game of the season, led a rush into the Malden zone and placed a perfect pass on the stick of Paul Tucci who put it home. The Tucci-Coppins combination clicked again several minutes later as Coppins' good pass from behind the net led to Tucci's second goal from close in front.

In the third period, Bobby Engel's consistent forechecking and Paul Ferullo's fine passing led to the Hawks seventh goal, with Engel scoring from in front. Engel repeated several minutes later with a strong wrist shot that closed out the scoring with Malden a man short.

Ricky Parker and Scott Binding turned in solid efforts with their determined playmaking while Bobby Divencenzo's hard work in the corners was a contributing factor.

Defensively, the Hawks were effective in limiting Malden's scoring efforts particularly during the last two periods. Danny Sullivan and Bill Eaton turned in strong, steady games on the points and Andy Guleserian and Tim Donaghey took charge in front of the net. Goalies Pat Falla and David Boyle handled their chances well. Falla made several brilliant saves early in the second period and Boyle effectively thwarted several Malden breakaways during the final period as the Hawks rolled to a league victory.

Sunday evening the Hawks travelled to Tewksbury to do battle with Chelmsford. Playing a well-balanced game of good offense and defense, the Hawks notched their second win of the weekend by a 7-3 score. The Hawks were led by the hat trick contribution of Steve Masiello plus two goals by Jimmy Coppins. Single goals were credited to Paul Tucci and Bobby Divencenzo.

Bantams win, Cadets lose at Chelmsford meet

The outstanding defense played by St. Eulalia's Bantam team was the key factor in their victory at last week's Chelmsford Invitational.

John Meyers and Mark DeAngelis controlled the boards at both ends of the court. Billy Thomas, Tom Lee, and Paul O'Brien were devastating on man-to-man defense pressure.

The tournament's MVP, Tim Hoffman, led the team to a 24-18 victory with 15 points.

St. Eulalia's Cadets lost a close 65-63 match in last week's Chelmsford Invitational. Andover's key player, Ted Kelly, scored the winning basket with 17 seconds left to give Andover the victory.

St. Eulalia's boys, however, played their hearts out with Paul Williamson, Keith McCarthy, and Tim Hoffman controlling the boards. The outstanding player of the entire game was Chris Hoffman, who scored 32 points.

Women play indoor version

Local team has good shot at the soccer title

What's hard as a medicine ball, smaller than a soccer ball, bounces off of walls, and gets kicked around a lot these days?

It's an indoor soccer ball. So what?

INDOOR soccer? What's that?

It's the newest sport in town, and Winchester has the distinction of having one of perhaps a dozen women's indoor soccer teams in the country. And the team, made up of eight local athletes, has a good shot at becoming the first national champion.

Reportedly imported from England by promoter Max Spector, indoor soccer (which is still an all-women's sport, as far as we can tell) is a direct descendant of outdoor soccer. The women on the Winchester team all play outdoor soccer, and most are involved in the BAYS (Bay Area Youth Soccer) League during the spring, according to Martha McCully of Winchester, captain of the indoor team and a senior at Winchester High School.

McCully says it all started when her mother saw an advertisement in the newspaper looking for players and thought Martha and her teammates might be interested. They were, they got in touch with Spector, he gave them a time slot for practicing, and the race was on.

That was last fall. This weekend, the team will be entering the United States Women's Indoor Soccer Championship, to be held in Cousins Gym at Tufts University Saturday, starting at 2 p.m. The event is being sponsored by the Club Atlantic, a Cambridge-based sports organization.

The members of the Winchester team, who have been playing together in BAYS soccer for about three years, include Martha and six other WHS students, seniors Bitser Dexter, Maureen Berkley, Julie Kissil, and Laura Fitzgerald, juniors Mary Russo and Mary Claire McCarthy, and Harvard freshman Tricia Welch.

They have been practicing twice a week, one night at Tufts, one night at the Salvation Army gym in Cambridge, and they always play against a team from Tufts University.

Other teams in the tournament this weekend include squads from Brown University, Needham, Connecticut and other New England states, as well as teams from California, Colorado, and Illinois. There will also be an exhibition team coming down from Canada (who presumably have had more experience at this rather unusual sport). This is the first year the sport has been played on an organized level in the US.

The game is a bit different from the outdoor version: in fact, it looks like a squished up version, and the only way you can tell it's soccer is because they keep kicking the ball back and forth across the court.

Indoor soccer is played in gyms with a smaller, heavier ball and smaller goals than regular soccer. There are six to a side: a goalie, three forwards, two defenders. The ball is supposed to stay on the ground all the time, so there's no heading and less body contact than in the outdoor version of the sport. If the ball goes over the head, the other team gets a free kick.

There's one other important difference: the game is played non-stop until a goal is scored. The playing area is surrounded by walls, and the ball is played off the wall, so the ball cannot go out of bounds.

And what about substitutes? "It's not too clear when we get substitutes," says Captain McCully. She says the players switch about every five minutes. And the constant play is "very tiring."

Other than those differences, the tactics are similar to outdoor soccer: work the ball downcourt on the wings and try to center toward the goal. With their experience in the BAYS League, the Winchester team, dubbed the "Bostunners" by Spector, has done well. "We've never lost a practice session," claims McCully.

With all the walls involved, one might think the hazards would be manifold. But the only one to wear pads is the goalie. No one has been seriously hurt, other than a few scrapes or bruises, according to McCully. She notes simply, "You try to avoid running into walls."

Practices usually run for an hour. The tournament games this Saturday will run about 20 minutes. "That's where our practicing is going to come in," McCully says. The Winchester team has some advantage in having played non-stop during their practice sessions. She expects the team from Needham, who have been playing soccer together for five years, to be their toughest opponents. They haven't lost a game, says McCully, but then, they've never played the indoor version of the game, either.

The Winchester players haven't given up their love of the outdoor game though. In the spring, they plan to combine with the Tufts team they practice with to form a full team for the BAYS League competition.

Details about the championship this weekend are typically vague. Capt. McCully said she wasn't sure how long the tournament would last. One thing she was sure of, though, was that it wouldn't last TOO long. "We all have to leave; we're going to a semi-formal that night."

It may be a rather strange import, but indoor soccer is a fast game that seems to be catching on quickly. If you like to get a look at it, and perhaps cheer on the local stars of the sport, tickets are available at the Winchester Sports Shop or through calling Martha McCully or Bitser Dexter.

Clinic to be held for soccer refs

Boston Area Youth Soccer (BAYS) and Winchester Soccer will hold a three week Referee Clinic at the Winchester High School, room #12, on successive Wednesdays, March 8, 15 and 22. The clinic is designed to aid in the training of potential BAYS referees for the coming spring season and to refresh Winchester coaches with the official Rules of Soccer. Anybody interested in becoming a BAYS referee this spring, or in a refresher course is encouraged to attend. Further information can be obtained from Jim Earlam.

Soccer practice

Dr. Richardson will hold a practice of the girls' C-1 soccer team on Saturday from 6:30 to 7:45 at the high school gym. Call 729-7379 if you are unable to attend.

Girls beat Woburn as gymnastics season ends

Coming off a rout of Stoneham, 84.0-59.25, Winchester High girls' gymnastics team handily defeated a weak Woburn team 80.2-64.75 to finish with a winning 6-5 season.

In the Stoneham meet, Winchester averaged a 7.0 in each performance to Stoneham's 4.9 Winchester was led by Laurie Vincent, Maureen McCabe and Peggy McCabe as they all handed in first-rate performances.

Against archrival Woburn, Winchester clearly dominated in every event. They jumped out to take a quick lead by easily outscoring Woburn on the uneven parallel bars 18.1-12.1 Laurie Vincent's 7.35 guided Winchester to the victory with Peggy McCabe 6.2 and Eileen McCabe 4.55 coming to complete the score. Woburn's Debbie Bouley could only manage a 5.3 to lead her team.

Winchester continued to outclass the Woburn gymnasts by also taking the beam event 17.9-14.25. Laurie Vincent again received the top score with a 6.4 followed up by Teri Allard's 5.9 and Carrie Hosmer's 5.6

Debbie Bouley also received her team's high score finishing with a 6.0 as Cheryl Corcoran and Ann Veno completed the scoring with scores of 4.45 and 3.8 respectively.

Winchester then proceeded to rub more salt into Woburn's wounds by taking the victory in vaulting 22.5-18.45. Laurie Vincent, Maureen McCabe and Anne Bird combined for Winchester's score of 22.5 with scores of 8.05, 7.4 and 7.05 respectively. Woburn's Sheila McLaughlin captured her team's high with a 6.4.

In the floor routines, which was the closest of all the events 21.7-19.95, the Sachems delivered the coup de grace. Maureen McCabe and Laurie Vincent tied for high honors with a 7.45 while Peggy McCabe winding up the scoring with a 6.8. In Woburn's best effort of the day Debbie Bouley, Sheila McLaughlin and Karen Lynch closed out the scoring with scores of 7.0, 6.7 and 6.25.

Although Winchester did not qualify for post season team competition, many will have competed in individual competition Tuesday, Feb. 28.

Billy Ryerson enjoyed the recent annual pancake breakfast sponsored by the Noonan School parents.

Mites lose 5-1; drop to 3rd place

The Winchester Mites, in a disappointing loss, dropped into third place on Saturday at the Burlington Ice Palace, losing to Waltham, 5-1.

It was a must win for Winchester as both teams were tied for second place and only two top teams will make the playoffs this year. Previously eight teams were in the playoffs from each class, but Middlesex League officials changed their format to only the top two teams from each division for this season.

Waltham scored on the opening face off and never trailed in the game. Winchester was able to keep Waltham off the score board for the rest of the first period, but after 2:36 played in the second period Waltham scored the game winner.

Winchester's lone goal was scored by Greg Winn and Sukjong Chung early in the third period. Waltham later scored three more goals in the third period.

Kevin Boyle helped his team by stopping Waltham on a couple of breakaway shots. Timmy Day, Marc Falzano, and Ronny Settjane, playing together as a unit, played good, defensive, hockey. David Butt, Billy Coppins, Scott Paine, and Petey Regan were used on defense.

Mills injures ankle

Sachems out of state finals as they lose seventh game

By George Parker

The Sachem basketball team is now out of the state tourney, for they suffered their seventh loss last night, thus eliminating them from contention. The Final score of 45-57 is not however, an accurate indicator of the type of game that was played, for the Sachems had a very good chance of winning the game going into the second half. They had started a comeback in the second quarter; however, it was not to be so, for in defending against a fast break, Glenn Mills went down, hard, and didn't get up until he was helped off the court, with a severely twisted left ankle.

Up until that point, Mills was the key to the Sachems. "I thought he kept Winchester in the game," said the Woburn coach, for he scored almost half of the team's points in the first half. This came despite a hustling Tanner defense that allowed few intrusions into the lane. So Mills started shooting from outside, and consistently hit his shots. Unfortunately, he was the only Sachem that was hitting that night, for no other Winchester player had more than eight points.

Woburn, on the other hand, had two extremely hot players in Andy Clivio and Bob Swymmer, who scored 127 and 22 points, respectively. Behind the outside attack of these two, Woburn was in control throughout the game. However, this control was threatened in the second quarter, for Winchester put together a drive late in that quarter, running off 10 points, while Woburn was only able to put one point on the scoreboard.

"Unquestionably, Mills made the difference, with him in, it would have been a three or four point game," said the Woburn coach. "When Mills went out, there was no quakiness in the zone; it would have been a lot easier with Glenn," according to Sachem coach Doc Wheeler. With only 47 seconds gone in the third quarter, Mills went down, and out of the game.

After that event, the game seemed to turn into a free-for-all as the Sachems tried desperately to make up for Glenn's absence, and as the Tanners worked just as hard to take advantage of his departure. Woburn was more effective than Winchester, and though the Sachems were within six points at the end of the third quarter, it was clear that the Tanners were in the drivers seat.

This became painfully evident in the final quarter as Woburn out-scored the Sachems 12-4 in the initial stages of the quarter, and then hung on to that lead for the duration of the game, and thus ended up as the victors, 57-45, over their traditional rival, the Sachems of Winchester.

But fail to place

Costello, Romeo among top wrestlers at state tourney

By Terry Costello

Winchester High was well represented at last weekend's state championship wrestling tournament held at Milford High School in Milford. The Sachems qualified both Costello at 121 lbs. and Rob Romeo at 129 lbs. two weeks ago at the sectional tournament. Although neither of the two finished in the top positions in State Championship, both of them were certainly among the top 10 wrestlers in their weight classes.

The state tournament competition was fierce as Costello found out in the first round. Still hampered by a painfully injured elbow that seriously hampered him in the sectionals, Costello drew the number one seed in 1977 state and New England Champion from North Andover. Although he wrestled well, Costello lost by a fall late in the first period. Romeo didn't fair much better against his opponent from Granby, holding his own through the first period, he also lost by a pin midway through the second period.

Coach Ted Benton was generally satisfied. "I'm not discouraged by Sean's and Rob's elimination from the state championship. They both had fine seasons for us," Benton added. "I'm particularly pleased with our showing at the sectional tournament. In team scoring, we finished seventh out of 16, even though we only had seven wrestlers competing, while most schools had the full 12. If we had had a few more people wrestling for us, we probably would have finished in the top five."

Since wrestling seems to be a natural sport for a school with the athletic tradition that Winchester has, one has to wonder why more do not participate when the opportunities are so numerous. All in all, however, it was a job well done by this year's Sachem wrestling team.

Pack 503 holds annual game night

Members of each den in Cub Scout pack 503 were busy this past month constructing games used during their annual game night, held recently.

Games ranged from ring toss to fishing ones, and the boys and their families enjoyed a night of fun playing them.

Spagnuolo, Brian Ruby, John Perra, Leo Carayannopoulos, John Riley, Jason Boyd, Stephen Meade, Nate Osgood, John Bruno, Peter Pywell, Shanon Joslin, Matthew Williams, Louis Sampson, and Anthony Duros.

Parents and scouts are now constructing cars to be raced in the Pinewood Derby on March 11.

SOME BENEFITS OF AGE

If you want more house for your dollar, you have good cause to look over older houses. But there are other good reasons for shopping the old ones too.

For one thing, there are simply more old houses than new ones. For every new house that will go up this year there are some 45 existing homes already on the market.

Many older homes, especially those built before World War II, offer more abundant space than new homes do - a special attraction if you have a large and growing family, but a limited budget.

Most old homes are in well established, well-developed neighborhoods. There will be no waiting for streets to be paved, sewers to be connected or schools to be built. All that is going to grace the neighborhood is probably already there, so that worrying about the future will have been done for you already.

In all your real estate needs-buying-selling-rentals-appraisal-consultation, please phone or drop in at Ann Blackham Co., Inc., 11 Thompson St., Winchester. Phone 729-1663. We're here to help you!

For The BRIDES Of 1978

New bridal fashion story . . .

Now you never have to say 'never' to color!

Fashion pundits all agree that the bride's color is still and forever will be star bright, dazzling white. For the entire wedding event and the bridal party: the rainbow is the one thing that cannot be beat.

Color is the most beautiful expression of deepest personal feelings and excitement. For spring '78, every detail of the most memorable weddings will be expressed in hues from every corner of the spectrum.

A bride and her mother are the traditional choice for selection of color. It is their taste and effort that the guests enjoy, and will remember. Lucky is the man to be involved in any wedding as groom—"man of the day" indeed.

Luckier yet the man who marries this spring. His bride can choose, often with him, firmly in tow, from a fabulous choice of handsome tuxedos from After Six Formals, the world's largest manufacturer of formal wear.

According to Bob Rudofker, President of After Six Formals, "This spring we are represented by the widest range of colors ever offered the bridal market. For dazzling weddings: the choice is endless.

"Once, to select matching flowers and maid of honor gown and napkins was enough. No longer is this true. The finest special weddings have all the men, from the groom, to the ring bearer and the Father of the Bride, in superlative colors."

THE GROOM AND BEST MAN, stand-outs in the Bentley, a new, framed tuxedo with the texture of silk shantung from After Six, Inc. The tone on tone embroidered and ruffled shirt in white coordinates with the Bentley's colors of bamboo beige, canton blue, jade green and rice white. The matching tie with satin doeskin knot, tops perfection. The men of the wedding party are the keystone to completely color coordinated weddings that make the occasion a colorful and memorable one. The fondest memory, of course will be that of the bride in her Alfred Angelo gown in chantilly lace and imported organza. The high neckline coupled with long sleeves, chapel train, and pleated insert make the bride unique for spring '78 nuptials.

He continued, "Frankly, we see color as the ultimate self-expression and our designers have worked with that in mind, as they selected swatches." In a recent color-oriented survey of newlyweds, wide variety was found in the consideration and use of color for the wedding.

The bridesmaids, the men in the wedding party, and the honeymoon car were all coordinated beiges and browns in Phoenix, Arizona.

The point of departure? A beautiful, rustic church in which the parents of both the bride and groom were married and which lent itself handsomely to the almost monochromatic use of beige and brown tones.

Detroit, Michigan was the scene for a pale blue wedding and elaborate reception following at one of the cities most venerable private clubs. The selection of color grew quite simply from the startling blue and oft-noted eyes of the aristocratic bride!

Color is definitely HERE in a big way. A medley of hues is available for the choosing, to cover every aspect of a contemporary wedding.

From an all-out gala in a cathedral or a synagogue, to the simplest at home with a justice-of-the-peace—color is an essential part. It says so much about where, why, what—"WHO" we are. It is available as never before, in everything from linens to stationery to lingerie and garters—to the tuxedo for the groomsmen.

Color is a movable feast for the celebration of a modern wedding. Everything to make the coordination complete is available: flowers, at the top of the list, followed by clothing and costume for the entire wedding party, stationery, refreshments. These things together in a well-conceived plan, reflect the taste of the wedding principals and make a declaration and expression of innermost feelings.

How many ways can color choice be used for over-all coordination? In practically infinite variety, from clothing and flowers to the final thank-you notes for gifts, the entire wedding can be made to enhance one's choice and complete the chosen theme.

Invitations for the past decade have been increasingly liberated from the black and white format. The authorities in America's finest stationery shops agree, "express yourself". From the invitations and enclosures to the napkins at the reception, a wonderful range of color is available.

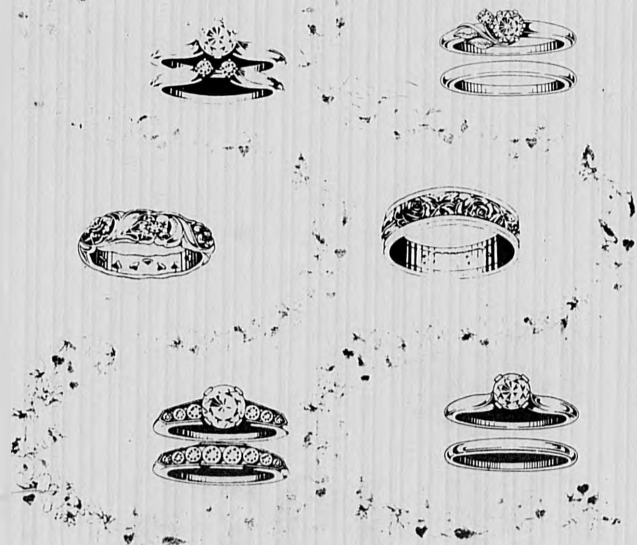

The best man's satin lapels, the bridesmaids' hats, the bride's garter all coordinated in lemon yellow, tangerine, or slate gray.

The flower girl's basket, the father of the groom's tuxedo, and the ribbons attached to a display of gifts can all be perfect russet or lime green or sandy beige.

Perfectly attuned handsome men and elegant bubbly punch, along with honeymoon lingerie and tiny bags of rice are a reality in all colors of the rainbow.

No contemporary wedding could, or should, resist the temptation to be colorful, and find the perfect expression of life's finest moment.

Happy marriage!

It begins with your selection from our ring styles to suit every shape hand and personality. Our wide selection of quality gifts for bridesmaids and ushers, gift wrapped beautifully to give with pride and complete the beginning of a happy marriage.

Equal-partner newlyweds share the housework, too!

Setting up house is no longer solely the bride's responsibility. In today's equal-partner households, selecting, decorating and furnishing that new nest may be the first joint project these mutual decision-makers undertake. However, the combined effort doesn't end with merely setting up their home.

Since most newlyweds are two-career couples, the majority share the housework, too. How do busy young marrieds achieve an amicable division of labor and keep housework to a minimum?

The Bissell Consumer Service Institute offers the following tips for setting up a mutual maintenance plan:

- Experiment with an established division of labor versus a more flexible system. Some husband-wife teams like to do the same chores every week, others like to alternate.

- Make weekly to-do lists, compare job and social responsibilities, then divide major housework chores accordingly.

- Share the routine, but share the fun too. Make team activities out of creative chores like cooking and party-planning.

- Make routine tasks as quick and easy as possible. For instance, don't drag out a full-sized vacuum for every carpet clean-up; use Bissell's new Sweep Master Dual Powered Lite-Vac instead. This modern tool is lightweight, easy to maneuver and powerful enough for major cleaning jobs.

DIVIDE AND CONQUER is the newlywed strategy for attacking housework. Today's couples rely on an equal division of labor plus modern time-saving equipment such as Bissell's Lite-Vac to clean that first apartment or home efficiently.

- Decorate with an eye for easy-care living quarters. Neutral or dark textured upholstery, wall-to-wall carpeting and a few accessories instead of a cluttered look are the best choices for minimal care.

- Don't overdo. Your new home should be a haven not a headache. Decide what chores need to be done to satisfy your mutual set of values and devote remaining at-home time to relaxing and enjoying your easy maintenance home.

Financial guide for the bride and groom

Who's responsible for what in a wedding? The bride and groom each have a number of financial obligations—which, incidentally, balance out very well if they follow this simple guideline.

Obligations of the Bride

- The bride pays for:
 - Her wedding gown, headpiece and veil.
 - Her personal trousseau.
 - The gifts for her attendants (the attendants purchase their own gowns).
 - The bridal portrait.
 - All decorations (including the floral decorations) and music for the wedding and reception.
 - The attendants' bouquets.
 - The wedding photographs.
 - The wedding reception, including the fee for the place in which the reception is held.
 - The fee for the place of the ceremony.

- The wedding cake.
- The wedding ring for the groom.
- The bride's personal wedding gift to the groom.

Obligations of the Groom

- The groom purchases:
 - The engagement and wedding rings for the bride.
 - The marriage license.
 - The bachelor dinner, if any is given.
 - Gifts to the best man and ushers.
 - Contribution to the clergyman or officiating authority.
 - The bride's bouquet and going-away corsage, as well as corsages for both mothers and all boutonnières.
 - The groom's personal gift to the bride.
 - Attendants' ties and gloves, if the wedding is formal.
 - The wedding trip.

Homemaking shortcuts

PRETTY PLEASURES OF THE BRIDE'S TROUSSEAU—Olga has now added soft, romantic luxury to lingerie with her introduction of the Secret Hug Long Gown and matching Peignoir in Olgalon. Only Olgalon, the fabric breakthrough of the 70's, has the look, feel and comfort of cotton with the easy care of modern miracle fabrics. Olga has designed this quick-drying, shrink-proof, non-creasing fabric into a "pretty peasant" midriff-shaping gown trimmed with soft stretch lace to define the figure beautifully. The matching Peignoir, with the same fabulous features, buttons to allow the shirt to swing open at the waist and reveal the gown underneath. Lucky the bride who has in her trousseau Olga's exquisite styling in exclusive Olgalon, with the look and feel of cotton.

For the bride-to-be . . . Give the perfect shower: great cake to great gift!

Something old . . . something new, something borrowed, something blue . . . Many traditions accompany the celebration of a wedding; these practices have very special and individual meanings. One much practiced tradition is the giving of a bridal shower. Here's a delicious cheesecake you can serve the shower guests and a terrific gift you can give the bride-to-be.

The cheesecake can be made the day ahead and is sure to be a hit. It is rich and creamy like old fashioned cheesecake. The gift that will be the hit of the day is a Farberware Food Processor. The food processor is one appliance that replaces many: a blender, mixer, dough kneader, ice crusher, meat grinder and peanut butter maker. When you see how pleased the bride is with her gift, you'll probably want one for yourself. It is a great gift for the couple just starting out.

Serve this cheesecake next time you host a shower or other party.

ENJOY A CREAMY, old fashioned cheesecake while surprising the bride-to-be with a gift she'll remember—a Farberware food processor.

Grown to be wed!

Every bride in the States carries flowers with her on her wedding day, but how many can say that they are carrying flowers that were planted especially for their wedding day on the day that they were born?

In Germany there are many young women who can make this claim, due to one of the loveliest ethnic bridal traditions of all.

When a baby girl is born in Germany her mother plants a tiny plant called myte. This will be grown and nurtured until her wedding day when the flowers will be used to decorate her headpiece (they are usually woven into a crown). The groom also wears a sprig of the same myte in his lapel.

Alas! Times do change and progress takes its toll. In today's busy world, many German girls now wear artificial myte, with urban spread cancelling out the possibilities of a wedding plant for every newborn Fraulein.

Yet the spirit of the myte—a symbol of continuity, unity, and love as a beautiful living and flowering entity—will continue to add its special touch of grace to German weddings.

Choose an instant camera as priceless wedding gift

As a member of the wedding or as a guest, one of the nicest things you can do for the wedding couple is to use your camera to save the memorable moments of the day.

When you take along an instant camera for color prints that develop minutes following exposure, everyone can enjoy the pictures practically as you take them. You can give some to the couple's parents as souvenirs, some to the bride and groom for enjoying on the spot, and some to Aunt Liz to take home to Cleveland.

'Indian gift'

Better still, you can help the newlyweds get a start on their own memories by making an "Indian gift" of an instant camera. Present them with The Handle, Kodak's newest instant camera; then borrow it back for the reception. This aim-and-shoot instant camera frees you from adjustments to capture all the picture-taking opportunities that happen between the first step down the aisle and the last step into the getaway car.

To help you enjoy the experience—and get good results—Kodak experts offer the following instant picture-taking tips!

When you're photographing indoors, use flash for good exposures making sure subjects are within four to 10 feet of the Kodak instant camera to receive the proper amount of light. You will want to check with authorities in advance to see if flash is allowed during the actual ceremony.

Before taking each shot, look through the viewfinder and check the picture background for distractions that might draw attention away from the main focal point. Often you can eliminate clutter by shooting from the side, or getting as close as the camera allows to crop distractions from the camera's field of view.

WITH AN ELECTRONIC FLASH on The Handle—Kodak instant camera, you can capture all the wonderful moments of the wedding reception including the bride kissing her favorite ring bearer. Be alert to capture a shot of his reaction as he watches the print develop.

Varied views

You can add variety to the picture collection by photographing from different distances. Shoot from afar for an over-all view that identifies the action—the receiving line, for example; move to medium range to show a specific activity such as the couple greeting a guest. If you spot the bride chatting with a childhood friend, get as close as the camera allows to portray with impact a special moment such as this.

Look for spontaneous facial expressions that "tell a story." Pictures showing the grimace on a youngster's face after sampling champagne, the smile of the bride's father as he watches the couple sharing wedding cake—such photos say a thousand words to make explanations unnecessary.

Nice 'n' steady

Always remember the basics. Hold the camera rock-steady and level. For even picture development, eject the exposed print by turning the hand crank smoothly.

When you attend the next wedding, take instant pictures—to fill a pocket with more than just cake.

Ultimate in radiance

FOR THE MOST DAZZLING, most sparkly engagement ring, consider the new Radiant Cut. Invented and patented by Henry Grossbard, a diamond cutter for 33 years, the Radiant Cut fuses the refractive qualities of the round brilliant with the elegance of the rectangular emerald shape. Grossbard achieves the extraordinary sparkle by using seventy facets as opposed to fifty-eight found in the usual brilliant cut gem. Because there is so much "fire," the stones are most attractive in a simple setting.

Professional photographers capture treasured moments

Dressed in white or flowered chintz, witnessed by many or a select few, accompanied by organ strains or the lilt of a recorder—weddings can take so many different forms.

Whatever the size and style of event, it is a day for the newlyweds to feel romantic, pampered and perhaps a little bit awed. And it's a day to remember and share with others during a lifetime to come.

That's why the occasion calls for the services of a professional photographer who can capture all the moods of the many moments—from the excitement of preparation right through to the quiet farewell to parents. These quality prints on Kodak paper will help keep alive the memory of the day.

To be sure you will have the type of photography you want, make your plans early. Talk to your local photographer as soon as your wedding date is set, and plan together what events you'll want recorded. He can show you many different styles of photography—from superimposed mood pictures to candid close-ups—that will help you decide what you will want.

From southern Mexico, bride carries on colorful tradition

Many of us are familiar with Mexico as a popular honeymoon resort and haven for newlyweds. The "Mexican wedding dress"—the lovely tiered gown of lace and cotton—is sought out by tourists in Mexico as a popular fashion to be worn for all special occasions. And the cosmopolitan centers of Acapulco, Guadalajara, and Mexico City send their brides to the altar in the most up-to-date of Western bridal fashions.

It is interesting, therefore, to take a look at that less traveled, less publicized part of Mexico where the wedding ceremony takes on a very different style, blending the primitive rites of an ancient civilization with the influence of modern culture.

Such is the case of the Tehuanas of southern Mexico. The Tehuanas are a relatively isolated group, direct descendants of one of the oldest civilizations in Mesoamerica.

The Tehuana women are known for their dignified beauty and proud bearing. They are also known for their colorful and distinctive native attire.

This may be seen in the wedding dress of the Tehuana bride, who goes to the altar of the local church garbed in all of her traditional finery. She will wear her best flounce skirt, the most popular garment among the Tehuana women, its body richly embroidered with colorful flower designs.

Her top is the traditional huipil. The lucky Tehuana bride will have a fine huipil that was made at the turn of the century and passed on to her as a priceless family heirloom. These fine huipiles are trimmed along the hem and the bottom of the sleeve with wide fringes of gold thread while the neckline is finished with white lace.

The wedding vows taken by the Tehuanas, now Roman Catholics, have still changed little from those of their ancient ancestors, who wrote of the duties of husband and wife with regard to the care of their children and devotion to each other as shown in a life of diligence and goodness.

Looking for paradise? It's listed on the map as Haiti!

Hypnotic and haunting, Haiti is a country unique in its history, its customs and its people. Once overlooked as a honeymoon spot in favor of the more popular islands in the Caribbean, Haiti today has become increasingly popular as an exotically beautiful and hospitable vacation retreat.

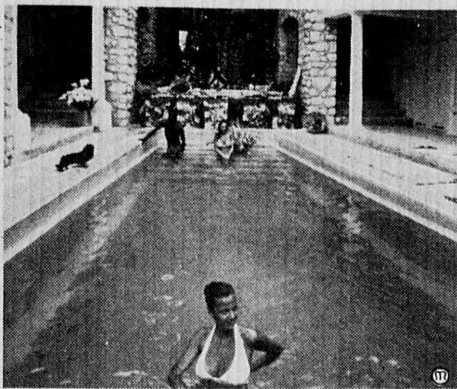

When Habitation Leclerc burst on the resort scene some four years ago, it certainly did nothing to impede the progress of tourism.

Nestled in the heart of Haiti's capital, Port-au-Prince, yet isolated from the noise, the heat and the frenetic movement of town, is this flawless little jewel of a resort called Habitation Leclerc.

Created on the legendary estate of Napoleon's notorious sister, Pauline Bonaparte Leclerc, it consists of 44 individual villas, each with floor-to-ceiling louvered doors that open onto either a small pool or lush landscaped jungle.

The elegance and sophistication that make this resort one of the idyllic wonders of the West Indies... not to mention the world... beckons the discriminating traveler. As a honeymoon retreat it is difficult to imagine anything lovelier or more ideal.

Unless you're budget-minded enough to get married when out-of-season rates are in effect, this idyll will run you a little more than a stay at a Ramada Inn. Any resort, however, that's catered to the whims of Jacqueline Kennedy-Onassis, Roger Vadim, Catherine Deneuve, Jean-Paul Belmondo, Rex Reed, Truman Capote and the Rothschilds is bound to set your bank account back a digit or two.

And it's worth every last digit if being pampered is your pleasure. Nothing so bourgeois as calling room service for breakfast or lunch or anything else for that matter. All that's needed to summon nourishment is the energy to ring a little bell for your own personal maid or butler.

The help, like all Haitians, are gentle, shy and lovely people who are never obtrusive. The villas, which can be called spacious to enormous depending on what one is accustomed to, are decorated in exquisite taste. One comes away with the impression that the beds alone are roughly a quarter acre in size.

The dining room is breathtakingly lovely; the food superior. At night a discotheque. Hippopotamus, thrives.

Sports include swimming (there's an enormous and quite beautiful main pool complete with sunken bar and slide), tennis, and horseback riding. Arrangements can be made for sailing and other water sports.

The only drawback to staying at Habitation Leclerc is a natural reluctance that seems to set in about leaving it. Do go sightseeing, if only briefly. In a world that's becoming more and more homogenized, Haiti is a country filled with delights, from the bazaar to the voodoo ceremonies to its famous art galleries.

Haiti is its own contradiction. Yes, it's primitive, but it's also sophisticated, highly civilized and chic. For a change, believe everything the brochures say. Go and enjoy.

Kitchen 'n recipe shower will delight a bride-to-be

It's the happiest party of the year—the shower for the bride-to-be!

This is the kind of party every girl adores, for it presents the best chance ever not only to reminisce about all those wonderful past experiences, but to share with the guest of honor her excitement and joy in planning for the future.

If you're the bride's best pal, you're probably planning to hostess this sentimental send-off for a few of her close friends. The party can be planned around several themes, but it's probably the kitchen shower that's most popular with guests and most appreciated by the guest of honor. The kitchen, after all, is the heart of the home, and almost any girl who's setting up housekeeping can stand a little help from her friends when it comes to getting organized.

As hostess and best friend, you want your own gift to be really special—something she'll love to use, and something you're proud to give.

One of the very best ways to do it is to choose one or more of the new non-stick skillet from France called T-Fal. The good looks and wonderful balance of these pans are reason enough to pick them—but it's that super interior that's the best part! These are the only pans in the world that feature interiors mechanically bonded with 100 per cent pure polytetrafluoroethylene (PTFE), the world's slipperiest substance. In other words, this is non-stick that really works! And when food doesn't stick, the new bride (or her husband) won't have to scrub. They'll both thank their lucky stars for having a friend who can pick such an inspired gift.

You can add even more fun to the party and the gift choices of your guests by specifying a "Kitchen-and-Recipe Shower." Ask each guest to bring a gift for the bride's kitchen, plus a favorite recipe that would involve the use of the gift later on.

For instance, one girl might bring an egg beater along with a soufflé recipe, and another a baking pan with her favorite recipe for brownies. (You might check with the bride first to find out what kitchen items she's already acquired, so that you can advise friends who may want suggestions.)

When all recipe cards are imprinted with the guests' names and the date of the party—and perhaps a personalized message or even a sketch—they'll be a lasting reminder for the bride of all her friends, and of the happy occasion.

For busy new lifestyle . . .

Casual, convenient cookware is perfect for working couple

More women are joining the work force. Not only singles, but married women. In fact, 41 percent of all wives now work either full or part time.

With this change has come many changes in lifestyles. There are more two-income families. There is a greater sharing of household responsibilities. There is a greater search for convenience in the home.

Gift of convenience
This is important when choosing a gift, particularly when it's a wedding gift. Often the recipients are planning a home that will provide the greatest opportunity for convenience.

In choosing gifts it is smart to consider the lifestyle of the couple. If both partners work, they will appreciate cook-and-serve cookware.

With more working wives using microwave ovens, the cookware should be appropriate for use in microwave ovens. This suggests heat-resistant glass and glass-ceramic cookware, such as Pyrex ware and Corning Ware cookware.

Casual trend
In selecting dinnerware, the couple may well lean toward a casual dinnerware like Corelle livingware, that can be used for every day as well as for formal dinners.

Today's couples are learning to use casual dinnerware for all occasions. They are learning the art of dressing it up for special occasions.

Some of the ideas for dressing up a table setting

FOR ENTERTAINING, families often use less formal buffets. They are both practical and popular. Cook-and-serve cookware is ideal for buffets because it retains heat, keeping foods warm. Many couples like casual dinnerware such as this Woodland brown Corelle livingware with matching cook-and-serve ware, particularly for more casual buffet meals.

can be items right out of the attic. The important thing seems to be developing one's own style—or theme.

The table setting can be given a special touch by using the tea service Grandmother handed down or some of the popular new Un-Candle floating candles.

For entertaining families often use the less formal buffets. They are both practical and popular. Again, cook-and-serve cookware is ideal for buffets because it retains heat, keeping foods warm. Many couples like casual dinnerware with matching cook-and-serve ware, particularly for more casual buffet meals.

Often you can find out what pattern the bridal couple prefers, as many couples utilize bridal registries in department stores to record some of their preferences. This has advantage for the store, too. It reduces gift exchanges when identical gifts or gifts with conflicting decorations are given to the couple.

Yes, the lifestyle of the couple should be considered in choosing a bridal gift. And the trend is toward cook-and-serve cookware and casual dinnerware.

French beauty of yore won diamond's rights for women!

You've good reason to be grateful to a ravishing young French beauty named Agnes Sorel if you now own or have high hopes of acquiring a diamond some day.

The reason? Way back in 1444, Agnes enterprisingly snatched diamonds out of the male domain and made them fashionable and romantic for women to wear.

It seems before Agnes, according to the Jewelry Industry Council, diamonds were considered strictly for masculine wear. Believing that the diamonds' unmatched hardness gave men extra strength and courage, kings and noblemen wore them into battle. Women, with the exception of a few liberated royal ladies, didn't wear them at all.

Patient plotter!

Then there was Agnes, daughter of a poor but noble French family. Through family connections, she was appointed a lady-in-waiting to the royal court of Charles VII while still in her teens. This was the same Charles for whom Joan of Arc had fought and died some years before.

Agnes, who idolized Joan and Joan's quest to free France from the English, was attracted to the young monarch.

While a promising beauty even in her teens, Agnes, try as she might, could not catch the eye of the King, who was constantly surrounded by beautiful women. It took several years—until she was 22, history reports, before Agnes could plot a scheme to impress Charles.

An important royal ball was to take place, and Agnes was determined the King would notice her this time. She borrowed all the diamonds she could from her male relatives, and took them to a Parisian jeweler requesting that he make them into a dazzling necklace.

She chose a lustrous low-cut gown that spotlighted her graceful neck, creamy white shoulders and comely curves.

When young Agnes swept into the ballroom, every eye in the room was riveted on her. The royal page announced her presence, and when the King looked up, he gave an appreciative smile and beckoned her near.

Whether it was the flashing diamonds, or the blooming beauty of the young maiden, Agnes caught the King's eye, and walked into his life to stay.

BREATHTAKINGLY BEAUTIFUL Agnes Sorel made her place in history in more ways than one, reports the Jewelry Industry Council. Mistress of Charles VII, Agnes Sorel not only used her charms to persuade the King to drive the English from France, but helped win him the backing and financing of influential merchants. It was she who literally snatched the diamond from the all-male realm to make it not only acceptable, but high fashion for women to wear.

Her lovely figure, chestnut hair, deep blue eyes and flawless complexion caused him to nickname her the court's "Dame de Beauté" (Lady of Beauty), and in fact, he built an impressive palace for her—the Chateau de Beauté near Paris.

Through the King's influence, Agnes was elevated to an enviable social position—she became a style-setter and popularized the custom of women wearing diamonds.

Not just 'pretty face'

Agnes Sorel was the first officially recognized King's mistress, and gained official status because of this. Historians say, reports the Council, that Agnes was more than just another pretty face. Remembering the goal of her idol, Joan of Arc—that of pushing the British out of Burgundy—Agnes is credited with aiding and inspiring Charles to do just that.

She not only provided encouragement, but cold hard cash as well, arranging loans from important merchants to help finance the King's armies.

While the beautiful Agnes lived a story book life—bearing four lovely daughters to the King, and remaining his favorite—she did not as they say, "live happily ever after."

Legend lives on

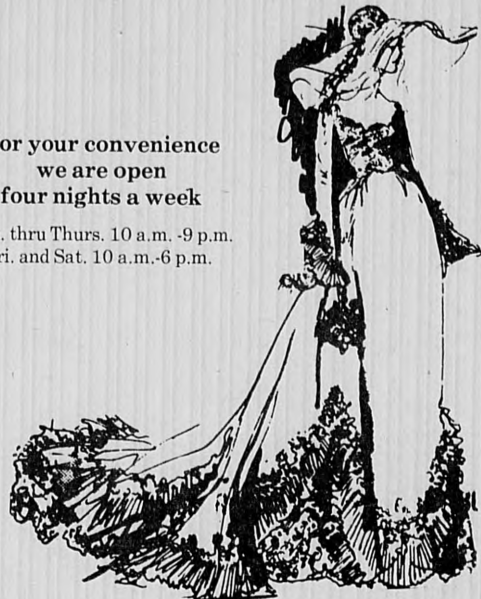

Some scholars believe she died in 1450, giving birth, while others hint darkly she was poisoned by someone. The guilty party, or parties, were purported to be everyone from the King's own son, who resented his father's mistress usurping his mother's place, to one of the merchants who had loaned the King money. The King was so indebted to the moneyman that Charles discredited and imprisoned the merchant to cancel his debt.

Whatever the cause of her death, Agnes Sorel to this day is a national heroine in France where she is honored for her beauty, fidelity and patriotism. But women the world over will remember her as the girl who was the diamond's best friend, making diamonds fashionable for the fair sex!

'Shop talk' on today's brides

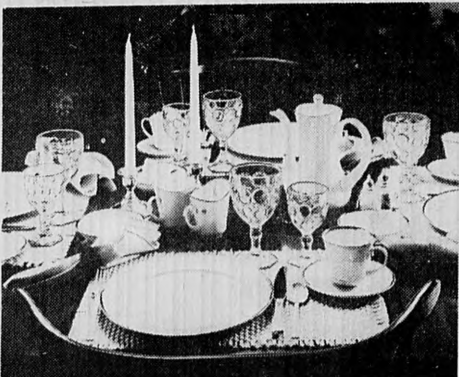

Who would know more about current trends of the modern bride than the manager of a popular bridal salon? From Sandra Yeakel, owner and manager of Brides by Sandra in Nazareth, Pa., come these interesting observations regarding bridal wear—and its wearers!

Ms. Yeakel finds today's bride somewhat older than the bride of 10 years ago.

Opening career opportunities and the influence of the women's movement seem to be having a direct effect on marriages, with young women "looking twice before they leap!" However, these same brides still want their wedding day to be "special."

Says Ms. Yeakel, "They may come into the shop in jeans, but they want to feel like a princess on that one special day."

Table top tips for brides

SHOPPING FOR STEAMWARE? Select a pattern that lends itself to casual or formal dining like classic "Moonstone" by Fostoria. Now you're set for breakfast, lunch or dinner for the two of you—or entertaining family and friends. Every meal is special, and good food even tastier, when served with your finest crystal china.

'Hair' rehearsal can save your show on the big day!

You're not making your Broadway debut—but it's your "big day"—so why not a rehearsal of your own wedding day hair style?

Knowing exactly how you want your hair to look, how it works with your veil, and some ideas as to how it will stand up to a full day of activities will save time and frustration at the last minute.

Start early

Don't leave a new style, or cut or permanent to the last minute! Ten days or so before the event, visit your beauty salon for a trim which will shape your hair and get rid of split ends and stray pieces.

If your hair is fine or very straight, you may want to have a body wave or a permanent. Be sure to take your wedding veil with you so your hair stylist knows the shape of the headband or cap. If he's used curlers, ask him about the direction to wind to achieve the look he has created.

Rehearse

After two or three days, wash and blow-dry or set your hair and "rehearse" the style you planned on. If possible, have a "complete" dress rehearsal. Move around your home to get used to your gown and veil.

See how the hair style will hold as you walk down the aisle and back, receive your friends and dance. At the end of your rehearsal you'll have a pretty good idea of what's right and wrong with your hair.

If you're planning the curly look but the curls sag too soon, you'll know you need to roll your hair on smaller curlers. If you feel the curls are too tight for your tastes, larger rollers are in order.

CURLS AND WAVES WILL ENHANCE the traditionally feminine look of the 1978 bride. For longer, better hold, comb out set gently and spray with Miss Breck Hair Spray. Curls will stay in place for hours. Dress and veil by Piccione.

On the day

Shampoo your hair and blow dry or set in the style you rehearsed. For a curly look, set wet for a longer hold. When dry, comb curls out gently, using Miss Breck Hair Spray to get stray wisps under control and hold curls in place.

Have someone take a brush and your hair spray along so you can refresh your hair between the ceremony and the reception.

Going away

If your hair begins to droop by the time you change to go, set a few key curls on instant rollers, spraying lightly with hair spray before and after rolling.

By the time you have donned your going away outfit and refreshed your make-up, your hair style too will have been renewed.

Put together a first aid kit for your hair to take along on your honeymoon. Include a small dryer and a curling wand or mini set of instant curlers. You'll also want your favorite shampoo, creme rinse and hair spray.

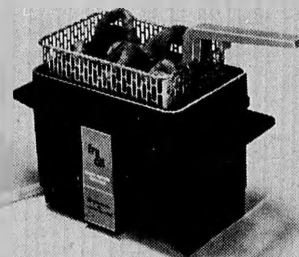

If you're going to be swimming in salt water, be sure to include Clean Rinse to apply when shampooing the salt out of your hair to keep it manageable and shining.

Finally, don't forget a few scarves and headbands for sports, combs and barrettes for quick hair style changes to fit the occasion and your outfit.

Shoeshining at Paneul Hall marketplace is an unusual new career for a former elementary school teacher. Jane Deering, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Van Dyke of Forest street, is believed to be the only female shoe-shiner in Boston.

Jane, who is living in Boston, said she started shoe-shining because, "I wanted to get into a small business, one that wouldn't demand a big outlay, and my husband and I kicked things around. We came up with the shoe idea. Something that offered service is what we wanted."

Jane and her unique venture have been profiled in the Boston Globe and on Channel 4's Evening Magazine.

Stolow joined the Tufts faculty in 1958 and was named a full professor in 1976. He received an S.B. from M.I.T. and a Ph.D. from the University of Illinois.

Marilyn Grant of Winchester was recently appointed senior nursing assistant, after completing special training at New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn. She received her nursing pin at a ceremonial luncheon.

H. Ch... to moderate at candidates' night

Candidates for all contested town-wide offices will have an opportunity to speak next Thursday night at the LWV sponsored Candidates Night. It will be held in the McCall Junior High School Auditorium beginning at 7:30.

Harrison Chadwick, former state representative and long time town meeting moderator, will preside. Questions from the audience will be addressed by the candidates following their formal presentations.

The League of Women Voters sponsors such an evening to offer voters an opportunity to make an informed vote for all offices at the election on Mar. 28. Hand-out sheets with responses from town meeting candidates from each district will also be available.

Take a guess: how much snow?

Okay, take a guess. How much snow has fallen on Winchester since the first storm way back in the beginning of winter?

Unless you've been keeping a record book, you might be surprised to know that we have gotten 105 inches of the white stuff so far.

That means 2376 tons of salt and 4275 tons of sand have been taken from the stockpile, but Public Works Director Walter J. Tomaszcuk isn't worried. "So far we're coasting pretty much regarding the use of sand and salt," he said. "We're in good shape in case of another storm."

The last storm, which started Friday last week and ended early Saturday morning, left nine inches of snow, but Tomaszcuk said hardly anyone noticed. "Usually a nine-inch storm is a pretty good sized one, but when people compared it to the big one in February, it just didn't seem to amount to much," he said.

To combat the last storm, Tomaszcuk dispatched five tri-axle plows, 10 three-wheelers, and four smaller trucks. The costs were $3385 for plowing and $9383 for overtime pay; sand use was 367 tons and salt amounted to 119 tons.

But didn't you notice the smell of spring in the air this week?

Public hearing at V-O Monday on school closings

The task force for long range school planning will hold a public hearing Mar. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Vinson-Owen School to discuss the two proposed plans for reorganization of the Winchester School System.

The task force, made up of parents, administrators, and representatives from other town agencies, has been examining numerous proposals for closing and consolidating schools. They have narrowed their options to two plans.

Both proposed plans would establish a four-year high school; and a grade 7-8 middle school at McCall. Lynch would be converted to an elementary school, and Ambrose, Vinson-Owen, Muraco, Mystic, and one other elementary school would be maintained. Noonan and Parkhurst would close down in the next few years, possibly beginning as early as this fall.

One of the plans names Lincoln, the other Washington as the third school to be closed. The move to close the schools has resulted from rapidly declining enrollments over the past several years. Projections show that the decline will continue for several years to come.

For elderly housing

And now, a new set of plans

"By the time this goes through, the people who really need it will be dead and buried."

Senior citizen Pauline McGuigan was responding to the latest set of plans for Arthur E. Ullian's Winchester House, a seven-story apartment building for moderate-income elderly.

"When will it go through? We've been trying so long to get this built," she said.

Ullian, representing Boston Investment and Development Company, presented a new set of plans for Winchester House at a well-attended board of appeal hearing last Wednesday.

The plans, which had not been made available to the board of appeal or the planning board before that hearing, indicated several changes from previous plans.

One change, made apparently in response to planning board request, moves the 108-unit structure back away from Waterfield road and closer to the Rangeley road area lots. At its nearest point, the building would come 40 feet from the abutting lots.

There would still be a buffer of trees, as indicated previously, but not as thick a one.

The planning board, in its Jan. 16 meeting with Ullian, had recommended that the building be moved back further "to relieve some of the choking of that site."

There would still be one access road as shown on previous plans. Fire Chief Robert W. McElhinney, concerned about the one road and about adequate fire safety precautions, suggested at last week's hearing that there be access around the entire structure and that sprinklers be located within the apartment units. The state law does not require such an extensive sprinkler system in a building of less than 70 feet under certain conditions.

Other changes include: reducing from 110 to 109 the number of units in the building, eliminating the direct third-floor access to the train station, although Ullian would still take on responsibilities of a landlord at the depot; changing the basic shape of the building from a U-form to more of an L-form.

The board of appeal asked Ullian to redraw the plans and submit them again as soon as possible so that appropriate boards persons can look them over. As of its meeting Monday night, the planning board was not in receipt of any new plans and could not discuss the matter in detail.

Included in the re-drawn plans will be site development, plantings and waste disposal, as well as a view of the building from the Rangeley area.

Another public hearing will be set up after Ullian submits a set of plans.

Beaton, Roy win meritorious service awards

Sgt. Roland Roy and Inspector Richard Beaton received top accolades for meritorious service in the apprehension of vandals who demolished century-old gravestones and toppled others in a spree at Wildwood Cemetery last summer.

A committee made up of Lt. Andrew Crawford, Selectman Richard Wilsack, Winchester Star editor David Funkhouser, and the late Charles J. Riley, Winchester editor of the (Woburn) Daily Times, awarded the two the 1977 "top cop" prize for their efforts last summer in finding and charging young vandals who ruined about 100 gravestones in the cemetery. The youths have been ordered by the court to make restitution for the damage.

The presentation of the plaques was made by Lt. Crawford at the annual Police Relief Association ball at the Montvale Plaza on March 3. Also honored at that time was Charlie Riley of the Times. It was the intention of the Relief Association to recognize Charlie at the ball and they had had a plaque made up to present to him. Charlie died suddenly February 4 and the plaque was given to Times Publisher Paul L. Haggerty in memoriam.

Groux evaluated:

Selectmen say manager's performance 'very good'

A four member board of selectmen evaluated Thomas Groux as "very good" in many of his duties as town manager.

The board held the special evaluation meeting at 6 p.m. Monday night. Other than members of the press, there were no members of the general public on hand to hear the evaluation.

Selectman Arthur Dunbar refused to participate in the open session merit rating discussion because he said personnel evaluations should not be held in public session. He did, however, have his ratings of Groux read for the record.

"Evaluation discussion held in public forum could be blown out of proportion," Dunbar told the board. He proposed written evaluations of Groux be submitted to the board for collective review.

Chairman Barbara Hanks said, "The open meeting law is quite clear on this. We must hold the discussion in public forum."

Hanks added two options to reviewing Groux without an open session including having written evaluation and foregoing the evaluation this year.

"I couldn't agree with you more, Arthur," she said. "I don't think the best evaluations result from an open meeting."

The board proceeded with the evaluation after it was agreed that oral discussion was more effective than written comments. The board members can supplement the discussion with written comments if they wish to do so.

Selectman Dunbar left the room for the discussion.

Groux was evaluated on 14 aspects of his role as town manager and his relationship with selectmen. A merit rating system from one to five was used. One represents poor, two-fair, three-good, four-very good, and five-excellent.

Question one concerned the town manager's budget. It asked, was it balanced, realistic, and well prepared. Groux received two "excellent's," one "very good" and one "good."

The board rated Groux "very good" on his ability to supervise town employees and supervisors.

Groux was rated "good" for his administration of the personnel system. He was given two "very good's," one "good" and one "fair" on his leadership qualities.

In a question on the execution of town policies and devotion and respect for town laws, Groux had a rating of one "good" two "very good's" and one "excellent."

Groux was rated with one "fair" and three "good's" for his fair and equal administration of the town departments.

Throughout the discussion, Selectman Harry Chelofsaid he felt Groux had not been working as a town manager long enough to evaluate him effectively.

All the board members noted Groux's improvement in most areas over last year's ratings.

A second set of questions concerned the role of the town manager with the board of selectmen.

Groux was rated "good to very good" in keeping selectmen informed of what is going on in the town departments. He was rated "fair to very good" for his ability to accept criticism of the selectmen.

His preparation of the agenda items for board meetings was rated with three "very good's" and one "excellent."

Groux was rated from "fair to very good" for administration of town policies.

As the operating representative of the town, Groux was rated "very good" by the board. Selectman Chelofs abstained from voting on the question because he said, "I don't know what other people in the town think of him."

On a similar question, Groux was rated "good to very good" in citizen relations.

Groux received four "excellent's" for respect and honor from his fellow town managers in other communities.

His scores ranged from "excellent to good" in intergovernmental relations.

Selectman Dunbar's ratings were read after the board's discussion. Dunbar rated Groux with nine "excellent's," four "very good's," and one "good" in the 14 questions.

FinCom hearing on budget set for March 21

The finance committee will hold a public hearing on the town manager's proposed budget in the Winchester High School auditorium Mar. 21 at 8 p.m.

This hearing is required in order for the FinCom to get as much input from the general public on the proposed budget as possible. The committee will be writing up its own version of the fiscal 1979 budget shortly before town meeting begins in May.

Last year the budget book combined the manager's and FinCom's budgets into one document which was released just before the annual spring town meeting. As a result of complaints last year about the late release date of the budget, the document this year is being prepared in two segments: the town manager's version, to be released Monday afternoon; and the FinCom version, to be released a week before town meeting.

Copies of the manager's budget will be made available to all town meeting members Monday afternoon. TMMs may pick up their copies at the selectmen's office, and the district captains will be notified to make sure all TMMs get a copy.

Boards, manager differ on salary for town comptroller

Conflicting opinions of what the salary level of the town comptroller should be could result in three different salary proposals from the selectmen, the town manager, and the personnel board at the spring town meeting.

The personnel board recommended to selectmen that the salary level for comptroller be lowered two grades to an M17 level.

The board was originally asked to re-evaluate the salary level following a recommendation from the comptroller screening committee that the salary level be raised.

Chairman of the Selectmen Barbara Hanks said, "We were astonished to see the salary level was lowered by the personnel board. This will make our task of interviewing comptroller applicants more difficult."

Chairman of the personnel board, Phyllis Williams explained to the selectmen their rationale in lowering the pay grade.

"We measured the level of responsibility, the supervisory duties, and the required education level," she said. "We feel on firm ground with the recommendation we've made."

The M17 level has a salary range of $17,400 to $23,900. The present salary level has a maximum of $27,000.

Williams said the personnel board also surveyed surrounding communities' salary levels for comptrollers and found Winchester was the highest. An average salary of the 16 communities surveyed for 1978 was $19,700.

Hanks said the difference of opinion results from the interpretation of the job description. One aspect of the job requirements is the data processing knowledge. The requirement is that such knowledge is "highly desirable" but was not listed as a supervisory position.

Selectman Edward O'Connell said, "This is what is known as an ideal environment for recruitment purposes. I can't see anyone being wildly enthusiastic about taking a job that has just been downgraded two notches."

The selectmen are interviewing three applicants for the comptroller position this week. The board agreed they would have to be "vague" on the salary level when interviewing the applicants.

The comptroller's salary level will be submitted as a budget item at town meeting.

by town manager Tom Groux. Groux has not offered any comments on what he thinks the level should be at this time.

If Groux disagrees with the personnel board's recommendations, he must submit their opinions along with his proposal at town meeting.

Selectmen have taken no definite stand on the salary level question. Selectman Richard Wilsack said he was "appalled" at seeing the level downgraded by Chairman Hanks said she found it hard to argue with the personnel board's recommendations after seeing the salary levels in other communities.

Four foremen win grievance over pay grade

The grievance between four DPW foremen and the town has been settled by classifying the men as W14a (Foremen) and paying them at a W14 wage rate. Selectmen met with Town Employee Association representatives and Local 285 Business Agent Michael Roberts at their meeting Monday night. The board supported the settlement. The W14a positions will remain in effect only as long as the four foremen are with the DPW. W14 classifications were phased out with reorganization of the DPW last summer. New classifications will go up to a W13 or working foreman position. The four foremen filed the grievance last fall when their job classifications were eliminated through reorganization. The grievance went to arbitration Jan. 24. The proposed settlement was recently agreed to outside of the arbitration hearing. The four foremen involved are John Dixon, Richard Horn, Joseph Bayuso, and John Horn.

Roberts said that with the selectmen's support of the settlement, the union considered the grievance closed.

The agreement provides the wage increase for the men to be retroactive to July 1977.

In report to board:

Parents say curriculum's ok

Most parents in Winchester feel the curriculum in the schools is adequate, according to a random survey conducted over the past year by a curriculum study committee.

The committee, made up of volunteers from the Community School Association and members of the school staff, began their work last spring and presented their report to the school committee Monday night.

Questionnaires were sent out to teachers, administrators, high school seniors and graduates of Winchester High. Because of the large number of parents involved, they were surveyed randomly by telephone, the sample included parents from each grade and each school.

Two questions were asked: "Does the Winchester curriculum meet the needs of your child?" and "If not, what changes would you suggest?"

While the study report claims approvals "considerably outweigh" disapprovals under the first question, there were a wide variety of concerns expressed under the second question. These ranged from specific requests for courses to general feelings about the system.

Dr. Walter Gleason, assistant superintendent for curriculum, commented, "Two trends emerged from the study, neither of which is specifically curriculum. One is the desire on the part of the secondary parents for more homogenous grouping. The other was the request for more difficult work for students...that they should be pushed harder."

"I find that the information contained in the survey has been a very good guide to help us decide on the nature of future programs, particularly as to those which should be given priority," noted Gleason. "In general, the suggestions seemed to reflect the countywide yearning for a return to basics."

Gleason identified seven "major threads" coming out of the suggestions for change in the curriculum, including:

1. There should be more emphasis on language skills, particularly in secondary English. This concern has been the focus of several school board discussions in the past year. Writing laboratories have already been started, one for the 10th grade, the other for the 7th grade at Lynch Junior High. These will be expanded next year at both junior highs. Teacher workshops are also focusing on how to integrate reading and writing skills with other subjects such as math, science, and social studies.

2. Assist teachers in the use of science kits. Gleason said his department is working to expand materials available for the science kits at the elementary level, such as additional reading materials.

3. Make elementary social studies kits easier for teachers to use. A committee has been appointed, stated Gleason, to work on revising the kits, starting this winter. Similar work is also planned for the summer.

4. Students should work harder, be challenged more, and have more homework. Noting the exceptional performance of Winchester students in standardized testing, Gleason commented, "There is a balance which should be made between pressure for achievement and a steady pace of learning."

However, Gleason said some study will be done of work assignments, and a teacher workshop is already planned on identifying and working with gifted students.

As for homogenous grouping, Gleason seems to feel there are more problems associated with that system than with putting students from various achievement levels together in one classroom. In fact, the trend over the recent past has been away from homogenous grouping and into more specialized programs, both in and outside the regular classroom, such as Title I, CLIP, and the Academic Extra program at the junior highs.

5. Health education should be increased and coordinated through a single health program. A committee is studying health education and is due in with a report this spring.

6. Teachers request more participation in the curriculum building process. The system of curriculum councils has been cut back due to budget restraints, eliminating much of the teacher participation originally built into the system.

7. Reinstate the eight period day at the high school. "When the seven period day was voted in after much conflict and discussion," commented Gleason, "there was at that time a large number opposed to the change. We assume they remain unconvinced. There are some advantages that have been realized by the change, and the administration will continue to monitor the effect of the seven period day for any strong adverse effects."

The curriculum study committee presented the school board with a list of recommendations, most of which reflected the points brought out by Dr. Gleason. They also felt that the department should examine the desire expressed by some respondents to the survey for more consistency of program from school to school.

Dr. Gleason felt that the system already "has an unusual degree of consistency in curriculum and program." However, he said, "...We plan for even more consistent results as the rest of the curriculum tests are revised and validated."

The study committee further recommended that:

-Health education and expansion under one program be considered;

-More homogenous grouping be considered in secondary schools;

-More challenging work at every achievement level be investigated;

-Better publicity for programs be developed to insure good communication between schools and homes.

Release time cut, school days 30 min. longer

The teachers, school administration, and the school committee have finally agreed on a way to make up the school time lost because of all this winter's bad snowstorms.

The changes went into effect this week and came about as a result of negotiations between the school board and the teachers.

In the elementary schools, released-time days have been eliminated, making Mar. 7, 14, 15, 16, 28 and Apr. 4 full school days.

Because some of these days had been set aside for report card conferences, these conferences will now have to be arranged individually between teachers and parents. The conferences will not be required, but teachers or parents who feel one is necessary should make arrangements through the building principal to see each other.

Starting this Monday past, 30 additional minutes of instructional time added to each day. The school day now begins 15 minutes earlier and ends 15 minutes later. Elementary hours run from 8:30 a.m.-3 p.m., grades 1-6. Kindergarten hours are, morning session, 8:30-11:45; afternoon session, 12-4:30.

At the secondary level, the release-time days on Mar. 7 and Apr. 4 were changed to full days.

Thirty-five minutes were added to the school day as of Monday for the secondary schools by adding 15 minutes in the morning, 20 minutes in the afternoon. Junior highs now run from 7:45 a.m.-2:35 p.m.; the senior high runs from 7:45 a.m.-2:43 p.m.

One other related change is that, for the remainder of the school year, the pay rate for substitutes will be increased from $22 to $24. The total cost is anticipated to be about $500, according to the school department's personnel office. The move was effective Monday.

Wedgemere train depot on March 3. The car belonged to a Woburn man.

Fifty dollars was stolen from a woman's pocketbook at the Parish of the Epiphany Episcopal church on Sunday.

A neighbor walking her dog reported a break on Grassmere avenue March 5. Police noted a window screen had been cut and silver had been moved in the dining room. The home owners are in Florida.

Howard Sample reported his $400 red Puch moped was stolen on Feb. 25 from Church street.

Police reported a car was towed from Hutchinson road in the interest of safety after the department had received complaints from residents in the area.

Jeffrey Marotta, 70 Century st., Medford, and Vincent Bement, 876 Main st., were found guilty in Middlesex Superior Court of possession of narcotics with intent to sell. The men had been arrested on the charges Sept. 29.

Marotta's case was continued without a finding. He was sentenced to two years probation with instructions to sever relations with Bement or violate his probation.

Bement was indefinitely sentenced to the Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Concord, which was suspended for two years. He was also fined $600 and had a two year sentence in the Billerica House of Correction suspended.

Charges of breaking and entering in connection with a larceny from the Old Colony gas station, have been dropped for two men originally charged with the crime.

William A. MacDonald of 50 Middlesex st. and David Heitz of 44 Middlesex st. had charges dismissed. Charges still hold for two minors picked up at the scene.

11 ambulance runs last week

The fire department responded to several electrical problems at local homes and made eleven ambulance runs for medical aid over the week.

The department responded to an electrical problem from a dishwasher at 15 Agawam rd. on March 2.

Winchester Drugs on Main st. reported a metal piece from their roof hanging over the sidewalk on March 2. The department corrected the problem at 2:20 p.m.

A chimney fire at 99 Wildwood st. was reported on March 1.

Electric trouble from a light dimmer switch in a dining room at 11 Russell rd. was corrected by the department on Feb. 28.

Also on Feb. 28, the department put out a fire at the railroad shelter on Cross street. A wooden bench had been burning.

Four in fight at pizza shop; no arrests made

Three local youths and an employee from Andrea's Pizza Shop, North Main street, were in a fight at the pizza shop Friday night. Police reported one of the youths received a nose injury and another had a severe head laceration after being hit with a pizza shovel by the employee. Police said no arrests were made, but the parties are filing complaints of assault and battery in Woburn District Court.

A doctor's office in the Medical Building on Church street was ransacked over the weekend. Police said a small amount of medication was taken.

Police received a complaint from the Old Colony gas station on March 3 that youths had stolen a carton of cigarettes. The incident is under investigation.

Enhance the town

There appears that the question of whether the town is going to allow liquor licenses is coming under fire from various people through a lack of understanding exactly what it is we are being asked to vote on March 28.

Once again, to set the matter straight, and to urge your support of this question, we will outline the basic facts.

If the town approves the question, the board of selectmen are empowered to issue NO MORE THAN THREE liquor licenses to restaurants having a seating capacity of at least 99 persons.

This does not mean three licenses a year, it means three altogether. This does not mean every pizza shop in town can sell beer, it means establishments of at least 99 seats can apply for a license.

Further, this does not mean that the selectmen have to grant any licenses or three licenses. They will discuss, mull over, and ultimately decide what is best for the town in the matter of issuing a license. Just because someone applies, that does not mean he or she will necessarily be granted the license.

The selectmen realize full well the implications of the legitimate sale of wines, beers, and liquor in a town which has been officially "dry" for years. They also realize that they have a responsibility to issue licenses in the best interest of the town.

A yes vote on the ballot does not mean the beginning of the end for Winchester.

It does mean that perhaps we have recognized that the proper use of alcoholic beverages can enhance a town and its people. —KLW-F.

Six Weeks needs you

It is hard to resist the sounds of laughter and fun coming from children playing and learning in the summer sunshine.

Their openness and willingness to learn new things at a summer camp, to swim with each other, and maybe work on an art project together, is something which we in town have been able to be part of for several years. For the past two years, however, the Six Weeks Adventure program has been without leadership and workers and so has been unable to happen.

The chance has come again.

The people who had previously worked to make this summer activity involving children from Winchester and children from the inner city, have decided to provide the spark needed for the program to resume this year.

What they need, though is a group of leaders and volunteer workers to make it happen. They themselves have given of their time and energy and are willing to be advisors to a new breed of interested citizen.

This new breed must be willing to work hard so young people of all colors and sizes can play hard.

They must be willing to put in many hours so that inner city children and suburban children can spend a few hours learning about each other.

They must be able to share themselves and their talents so that kids can have fun.

It's a good program, but it does need helpers from junior high age and up, with loads of talent or nothing special to offer but love. It needs community support.

A preliminary meeting to find out what Six Weeks Adventure is about and what you can do to be part of it is scheduled for Monday at 7:30 at the Unitarian Church. Martha Redding and Lois Anderson will be there to inspire you.

Won't you think about it? Won't you join in this community effort to build good will and friendship? —KLW-F.

'Tis spring!

We couldn't let this one get by — the selectmen approved the first garage sale license of the spring season.

The full impact probably won't hit until the birds chirp a little louder and the snow banks melt a bit more, but spring is coming! Truly!

Yes, the sign pointing the way to the garage was stuck in the snow, and yes, everything was inside, but there's a special "spring must be here" feeling to walk into that first-of-the-season garage sale.

Trouble is, I just don't need another electric frying pan. —KLW-F.

Town Watch...

Credit's due

We got some good reaction to the story in last week's paper about the Locke (Vinson-Owen) House and we'd like to give some credit where it's due.

Allen Hill, who has given innumerable hours in service to the Historical Commission, took the picture of that beautiful house which has been nominated for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

Some may have wondered at how the League of Women Voters, known for their activities around election time, could have left out one of the voter registration times in a letter to The Star last week.

Well the answer is simple: they didn't, we did. In case you ever doubted them, now their reputation may stand clear. Fortunately, there was also a story in last week listing the times, and that one was accurate.

Register of Motor Vehicles Alan Mackey announced that as of Mar. 3 the Woburn Registry Branch office will no longer open early for license renewals.

The office was opening at 8 a.m. instead of 8:45 for license renewals only but, beginning Mar. 6, the office will not open for any business until 8:45 a.m.

Help for women

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Many people have asked, "How can I help battered women and their children? There is a way."

As you may know, sometimes these victims desperately need a refuge from their homes. "Alternative House," an emergency refuge for battered women, especially those with young children, opened Feb. 1, 1978.

CETA-funded, and co-sponsored by Solomon Mental Health Center and the University of Lowell, Alternative House seeks, in particular, to serve women from the Greater Lowell area with limited or no financial resources. Alternative House will provide up to six-weeks food and shelter at little or no cost in a supportive environment with referrals to and advocacy for legal, medical and social services. Their goal is self-help.

Alternative House needs household goods for the women and children seeking shelter. During the next week, the Winchester Unit of the National Organization for Women is conducting a drive to collect suitable items. In particular they need women's and children's clothes, blankets, sheets, towels, cleaning implements, especially a vacuum, table and floor lamps, and home repair tools.

Cash donations may be sent directly to Alternative House, Box 2096, Highland Station, Lowell, MA 01851. If you can make any donations please call Binnie Backer, (729-6732) 124 Church st. or Fran McClintock 34 Fells rd. (729-7612).

Beautiful message

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Those who attended "Till All My People Are One" Sunday night at the Methodist Church will surely agree that it was a memorable experience. The folk musical was largely written by the young people who put it on, and the lyrics most often carried a beautiful message, a message of caring for our fellow man, and of awareness of the needs of our neighbors, near and far. The singing, the accompaniment, and the solos were outstanding.

A free-will offering was donated to UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund, a moving demonstration that there is caring and sharing going on among the youth in our town.

Sandy Thompson

Well informed

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a candidate for selectman, I feel that I should tell the voters of Winchester that for the first time a person running for the office of selectman can run on issues and feel that whatever comes out in the campaign can lead to a better informed voter.

We voted a new Charter a short time ago. There will be revisions sooner or later. We all must be well informed in order to make the Charter work well for us and in the long haul save us tax dollars. This has not been done thus far, but, with hard work, good common sense, and, I must repeat again, a well-informed public servant, the Charter can be made to serve us well.

Qualified?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In last week's "Star" Mr. Robert Frank, present Chairman of the School Committee, announced his intention of running for a second term. The article contained his high praise of the curriculum in our public schools, which certainly would indicate that much credit is due our Asst. Supt. for Curriculum, Dr. Walter Gleason.

Yet just recently I have been reading very derogatory remarks attributed to Mr. Frank relative to our curriculum and also learned of the premature retirement plans of Dr. Gleason, who has not made public his reasons for leaving. Assuming I have the facts straight, I do not understand you, Mr. Frank; just where DO you stand on this issue? It would seem you are speaking out of both sides of your mouth, to use a crude phrase.

And one wonders why a trial lawyer would feel he is better qualified to evaluate the program of instruction than those specialists in our staff, who have devoted a good many years to the study of methods and procedures as they pertain to quality education, and whose services are very much needed in Winchester.

Marion F. Hatch
2 Meadowcroft rd.

(Ed. note: The Star asked Robert Frank to respond to this letter, as it will invite any candidate to respond to a particular letter sent in criticizing of that person's performance or candidacy. Any such communications will be allowed in addition to the regular three releases permitted to a candidate for major office here in town.)

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I appreciate the opportunity to respond to Ms. Hatch's letter.

The announcement of my candidacy which appeared in last week's STAR contained an expression of praise for several of the curriculum initiatives undertaken by the school department in recent years. The same announcement reflected my concern that many students graduate from high school unable to speak or write well and my doubt that the school system stretches each student to the limit of his/her individual capacity. An article appears in today's STAR which contains a more detailed consideration of these questions. A fair reading of my remarks at school committee meetings would, I believe, show a similar balance between statements of praise and expressions of concern about various aspects of the curriculum.

I regret that Ms. Hatch characterizes this balance as "speaking out of both sides of your mouth." I also regret that Ms. Hatch has failed to identify the "very derogatory remarks...relative to curriculum" which she attributes to me so that I might respond with particularity.

The Winchester curriculum is strong, but it is not without its flaws. The results of standardized tests, Dr. Gleason's own remarks, statements of other administrators, and the observations of many teachers, parents, and students confirm this observation. It is not a school committee member's job to design curriculum. It is, in my judgment, a committee member's job to point to areas of possible weakness, to cause the system to evaluate itself objectively, and to suggest changes and see that constructive action is taken when the existence of a perceived weakness is confirmed.

The recent improvement of the English curriculum, the development of the CLIP program, and the strengthening of social education services are, in part, the result of that type of activity by the school committee. The school system will suffer if the school committee fails to applaud excellence. However, it will also suffer if the school committee accepts each aspect of the curriculum as outstanding merely because it exists and was developed at some time in the past by a "specialist."

Finally the suggestion that Dr. Gleason has decided to retire in 1981 because the school committee has expressed concern about some aspects of the curriculum — just as the committee has, on occasion, expressed doubt about personnel practices, budget procedures, and, its own conduct — is both unfounded and unfair to Dr. Gleason.

Handguns

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In 1974 the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts studied statewide control and possession of handguns. As a result of this study and consensus taken in local leagues including Winchester, a position was reached in favor of the eventual elimination of the private possession of handguns.

Recognizing that such a law is not likely to be passed in the near future, the League will meantime support improved licensing procedures, strict enforcement of the present laws, and training in the use of handguns and the responsibilities of their ownership. We also favor education of the public to the dangers of the handgun in the home.

In view of the recent discussion in the pages of The Star, the League of Women Voters of Winchester would like to call attention to our stand. After consideration of the arguments pro and con, and relevant statistics, the League's goal is to limit handguns to the use of military and police personnel.

President, League of Women Voters of Winchester

Special thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My compliments to the Winchester Police Department for the excellent way in which they thwarted a recent burglary attempt at my house.

I should also like to thank Representative Jack Cusack of Arlington, Seve Soback and Mr. and Mrs. John Flatley for that extra special effort. Thanks again to some very wonderful people.

Rep. Saltmarsh dismayed with stalling of MBM investigation

Disgust and dismay were expressed this week by Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh at the failure of the House of Representatives to expedite a hearing before the Joint Judiciary Committee that would pave the way to the establishment of a special blue ribbon panel to investigate allegations of corruption in the awarding of state building contracts.

Saltmarsh was on the losing end of three votes that would have moved up the date of the hearing from Mar. 23 to Mar. 10 or to Mar. 13. "The legislature had a poor enough image before this scandal erupted," Saltmarsh said. "I can't conceive of any officeholder remaining insensitive to the outrage of the voters of this Commonwealth. The public has a right to know exactly what's been going on in state government and what's been done with public funds. The sooner we establish a proper probe panel, the sooner we can get to the bottom of this mess."

Rep. Saltmarsh said there was no doubt in his mind that the investigation should be carried out by a non-legislative commission. "When the staff director of the Post Audit and Oversight Committee was removed because he had altered minutes pertaining to the consulting firm of McKee, Berger and Mansueti, and the chairman of that committee resigned his post, it was obvious that any potential objectivity of a legislative commission would be suspect."

"The proposed blue ribbon investigating committee would comprise one House member, one Senate member, the State Auditor or his designee, the Attorney General or his designee, and seven members appointed by the Governor, six of whom must be uninvolved in state government," Saltmarsh explained. "At least the public could place some confidence in a panel of this makeup."

The three roll calls regarding the controversial hearing took place on Wednesday, Mar. 1 and Monday, Mar. 6. The first concerned a vote described as procedural test of the Speaker's authority. The proposal sought to move up the scheduled Mar. 23 hearing to Mar. 10, a maneuver which was described as disruptive of the entire committee hearing procedures which calls for the chairman and committee members to set dates for hearings, not the House.

"As far as I'm concerned, my vote on this matter was the most crucial one I have cast during my two terms in the legislature," Saltmarsh claimed. "Of course I would disapprove of a daily departure from the procedural requirements of the legislative process. We have some 8000 pieces of legislation to consider this year."

"But when an issue of this magnitude, involving members of several state administrations has to be dealt with, we should dispense with tradition and technicalities and expedite the matter. We're there to represent the average citizen, not current or former political figures."

Two additional attempts to expedite the hearing were made on Monday when an order to schedule it on Mar. 3 and place the bill before the House for endorsement on or before Mar. 20 failed to win passage by a 95 to 116 vote. Then a roll call on holding the hearing on Mar. 13 was taken. "We lost that one by 97 to 114," Saltmarsh said. "So we picked up a little strength each time."

"Naturally, those of us who have been involved in this battle feel a sense of frustration and disappointment that our efforts, thus far, have been to no avail," Saltmarsh stated. "My firm conviction in the democratic process, however, convinces me that before this year is out, the sunlight of public exposure will bring out the real facts concerning this shocking scandal."

(House Speaker Thomas W. McGee agreed Monday to let the bill calling for the blue-ribbon investigative panel out on the floor for discussion by Apr. 10.)

Guest Column

We need a one-chamber house

By Harrison Chadwick

Note: Following is a talk in condensed form given by Harrison Chadwick before the Winchester Rotary Club on March 2nd. Expressed herein are Mr. Chadwick's ideas and predictions for restructuring the state and federal governments with the objective of being more responsive to the wishes of the voters.

Why are people so frustrated with their government? The polls show this to be the prevailing opinion by a wide margin. Why can't government bring inflation under control? Why must taxes continue to take more and more of the consumer's dollar? Why is the government a spending machine with only an accelerator and no brakes? Why is crime so rampant both inside and outside government? Why has the United States lost the leadership and respect of so much of the world?

Perhaps at least part of the answer lies in our system of government. Apparently our form of government has lost its responsiveness because it has not kept pace with the changes in society. Two hundred years ago, when our constitution was drafted and adopted, the Colonies had an agricultural economy; the industrial revolution did not take place until the next century; electric power, the telephone, macadam roads, the automobile, air transportation, radio, TV, scientific research and the daily distribution of world-wide news were all undreamed of.

Meanwhile science, education and new methods of doing business have altered completely the lives of most Americans. Society has adapted to these changes, government has not. Three illustrations stand out: First, as the economy enters a new phase of maturity, the government lacks the flexibility to adjust to the good and the bad of big and small business.

Second, after the great depression of the late twenties, a new philosophy became a way of life for great numbers of Americans, they heeded the call to solve their problems by taking them to the government. The government created a super bureaucracy to cope with these problems, but nevertheless has proved unequal to the task.

Third, a sinister evolution has come to pass with respect to our political parties. Originally they were founded to represent certain principles of what was then current thinking by segments of the citizens. Today, our political parties, in their lust to dominate the government, stand for nothing and devote most of their energy to criticizing each other, thus leaving the people bewildered and unable to assert their wishes through this medium.

Regardless of political party, however, citizens everywhere are increasingly conscious that government is too big, inept, inefficient, unmanageable and unresponsive to the ever shifting trends of people's lives. In short, it is not geared to the times through failure to update by restructuring itself.

It should never be expected that improvements will be initiated from within the governmental colossus. Its members are content with the status quo. The club-like system will be defended to the end and basic changes will have to come from outside incubation.

Already three or four states are seriously considering merging the two branches of the legislature into one. The end result would be a reduction in spending and an increase in efficiency. Furthermore, having only one legislator to communicate with, the people's desires will not get "hung up between the branches." The media and activist citizen groups will provide all the watchdog balance that is needed. For these reasons, it is probable that within a generation a majority of the states will operate under the unicameral system.

It is a likely prospect that ultimately the two branches of the federal government will be supplanted by a parliamentary system with a single house. Eventually that body would choose the nation's chief executive and since the individual so chosen would obviously be selected by the majority party, the appeal of political parties would again be sought on the basis of principle and proposed solutions for the nation's problems. The people could then have a greater measure of confidence that their choice of a representative in the government would more nearly reflect their wishes. A new day in responsiveness by the "servants of the people" would have dawned. Following modernization of the legislative branch would logically come modernization of the administrative branch, a story for another chapter.

Girls' baseball needs coaches

Another season is getting underway for Winchester Girls' Baseball. Anyone interested in coaching should contact League President Nancy Legvold at 729-8247 by Mar. 25.

The league began in the early 1970s and has quickly grown in size. Last year nearly 200 girls participated in the league.

The league is made up of 12 teams separated into two divisions, one for 7-10 year-olds and one for 11-13-year-olds. The season runs from the beginning of May through mid-June, with two games played a week.

The league has begun to gain recognition by Winchester citizens as an official group, and donations from various service clubs of the town enabled the league last year to buy trophies for the champion teams for the first time. This season, they hope to be able to pay umpires for their services.

Bay State roll call

The House

Special commission (H4632)—House supported the Speaker's ruling, 130-90, against an order which would have set a hearing date by Mar. 10 for a proposed bill creating a special blue-ribbon commission to investigate alleged corruption in state building contracts. The vote supporting the Speaker's ruling means the hearing will be held as scheduled by the Judiciary Committee Chairman on March 23.

Supporters of the Speaker's ruling argued it would set a dangerous precedent to deny committee chairmen the right to set public hearing dates and claimed they must be given the right, responsibility, and discretion to conduct their business in an orderly fashion.

Opponents of the Speaker's ruling argued the Speaker and members who support his ruling are holding up a hearing on serious corruption charges involving state construction contracts, claimed it was time to get to the bottom of corruption in this area, and some noted that the statute of limitations runs out on a very important figure in these cases on May 23.

Rep. Saltmarsh opposed the speaker's ruling.

Poll judiciary members (H4632) House again supported the Speaker's ruling, 128-86, against allowing introduction of an order that the individual House members of the Judiciary Committee take a vote by Mar. 2 on what date the hearing should be called on the special corruption commission bill.

Supporters of the Speaker's ruling argued this was another attempt to interfere with the orderly functioning of the House, and said the committee chairman and committee members must be allowed to work in an orderly fashion and make decisions at committee meetings on this and other matters. Opponents of the Speaker's ruling argued that a vote against allowing a formal vote by the individual members was another attempt to thwart the investigation, and also noted that eight of the fourteen members of the Committee had voted against McGee's initial ruling prohibiting introduction of an order directing the hearing to be held by March 10.

Rep. Saltmarsh opposed the speaker's ruling.

Abortion amendment-rape and incest (H2237) House rejected 113-91 a proposed amendment to the anti-abortion section which was attached to the supplemental budget. The anti-abortion section prohibits the use of public health insurance funds for abortions for state employees except to save the mother's life. The proposed amendment also allows the funds to be used for abortions in cases of rape or incest.

Supporters argued the amendment simply makes the anti-abortion section more reasonable by allowing abortions in cases of rape and incest, and noted there are safeguards requiring reporting within 60 days and the name, address, and signature of the victim.

Opponents argued this was simply another attempt to weaken the anti-abortion section and argued the killing of the unborn must stop.

Rep. Saltmarsh favored allowing finding in cases of rape or incest.

Abortion amendment-premiums (H2327) House defeated 155-49 another amendment to the anti-abortion section of the supplementary budget. This complicated amendment basically allows the money for health insurance premiums, which a state employee contributes directly from his pay, to be used for abortions for state employees.

Supporters argued this clearly separates the issue by still prohibiting use of actual public funds for abortions, while allowing employees to use funds paid out of their own pockets for abortions. Opponents argued it was simply another attempt to circumvent the original anti-abortion amendment, claimed it still forces taxpayers to pay for abortions, and said it was a backhanded attempt to keep the state in the abortion business.

Saltmarsh opposed the amendment.

Tax exemption (H1299) House defeated 114-81 a bill to increase the amount of information property tax exempt charitable organizations and institutions are required to report. The bill adds required reporting of certain salary scales, detailed expense reports, and other strict requirements.

Supporters argued this additional information should be made available for public scrutiny and noted the organizations should be required to conform strictly since they are tax exempt and in effect cost communities and taxpayers money in lost revenues. Opponents argued the information was not necessary and claimed it would cost money by creating more work and bookkeeping for the organizations and assessors, while not gaining any money for cities and towns.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted against the bill.

The Senate

Cities and towns (S829) Senate gave initial approval 32-1 to a measure reducing the required vote from two-thirds to a majority for cities and towns incurring temporary debts for acquiring land for conservation or recreation purposes, when the community is anticipating federal or state reimbursement of the funds.

Supporters argued the measure only applies to short-term debts for which the community expects to receive federal or state reimbursements and noted the stronger two-thirds requirement would still be required for bonding purposes. Opponents argued this was an attempt to make it easier for communities to spend taxpayers' money and claimed the two-thirds requirement is a safeguard which protects the taxpayer and should be retained.

Sen. Rotondi voted with the majority.

Rule suspension (S1356)—Senate gained the necessary four-fifths vote, 33-1 to suspend Rule 27-A which requires certain information to be printed and available before any budget can be considered and approved by the Legislature. Requirements include printing of the amount of money spent last year and the money requested by the Governor.

Supporters of rule suspension argued it would be time-consuming and costly to taxpayers to print all the information, and claimed rules should also be suspended because the supplemental budget contains items that need to be passed quickly to pay money that has already been spent.

Opponents argued rule suspension undermines the law, designed to protect an open budget process, which requires essential information be printed and available to Senators and the public, and noted the supplemental budget involves millions of dollars of taxpayers' money.

Sen. Rotondi voted for rules suspension. Gambling study (H11002)—Senate refused 26-5 to table (defeat) a bill to allow the Government Regulations Committee to continue its study of the possibility of establishing a division of gaming in the Attorney General's office, which would develop ways of establishing legalized gambling in the state.

Commission supporters argued the study is a valuable one, noted the commission studied and approved the proposal for creation of the Lottery's Number's Game, and claimed the main concern of the study is to study ways of legalized gambling which will raise money to provide tax relief.

Commission opponents argued the committee has spent $90,000 and has been studying the matter to death for six years, and claimed the commission is wasting taxpayers' money and simply keeping several patronage jobs alive.

Sen. Rotondi voted for the bill.

Airport lockers (S881) Senate defeated 18-5, a motion to table (defeat) a bill banning the coin operated lockers at Logan Airport.

Supporters of banning lockers argued the intent of the measure is to prevent people from hiding bombs and explosives in the lockers, and pointed to an incident two years ago when a bomb hidden in a locker exploded and injured bystanders.

Opponents of the ban argued a ban on the lockers is not going to stop a bomber or anyone else from harming people, and also noted the lockers are a convenience to passengers.

Rotondi favored banning the lockers.

Rotondi supports bottle bill

Senator Samuel Rotondi testified in favor of the Massachusetts Bottle Bill before the Joint Energy Committee of the State Legislature recently. The committee conducted hearings on the legislation, which would mandate a five-cent minimum deposit on all glass and metal beverage containers sold in the state of Massachusetts.

Sen. Rotondi is a co-sponsor of the bill, along with 101 other legislators. Supporters of the bill cited its favorable impact on energy, natural resources, solid waste, litter and employment as reasons for passage.

According to a recent study conducted by the Federal Energy Administration, a national bottle bill would cut beverage container manufacturing energy use by 44 percent, the equivalent of 81,000 barrels of oil per day. The bill would reduce steel, glass and aluminum consumption as well as reducing bauxite imports. The bill's enactment would result in a reduction of items entering the state's solid waste stream by 180,000 tons annually. The bottle bill would also significantly reduce the amount of litter in the state and would add jobs to the economy.

It is now up to the Energy Committee to report on the bottle bill, after which it should go to the floor of the House for a vote. Because of the large amount of support the bill has, cosponsors of the measure see 1978 as the year for enactment of the bottle bill.

UNICEF benefit raises $248 at Methodist Church

Approximately 350 people attended the folk musical, "Till All My People are One," performed Sunday night by the youth fellowships of the Methodist Church.

The musical was created by members of the fellowship and much of it was original. The opening number, "Wake Up My People," set the tone of the program, which was a benefit for UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund.

The words, "wake up to the needs of all the ones who suffer sorrow" were movingly sung, and the songs that followed, "If You Look," "Runnin'," and "Who Is My Neighbor" all supported the theme. The singers, soloists, and musicians performed admirably and the free-will offering totaled $248.

UNICEF could use that money to provide a village well that would bring safe water to over 1000 people in a developing country, and buy a set of basic teaching equipment for a primary school. It could be used in many other ways as well, such as providing a vaccinating kit for tuberculosis, polio vaccine and vitamins to protect young children against nutritionally caused illnesses. "A little goes a long way" is a UNICEF slogan, and the money raised by the young people of the church will surely go far.

Stevenson sets league record

Girl hoopsters finish strong season

By Kelly Gately

Times have changed, and so has the girls' basketball team.

In the course of two years, they went from a weak 4-14 team in 1977, to a real contender, a team with power and depth. They finished the season 11-7, but there is more to it than what the record shows. Even in their losses, they were always in the game, fighting back, never giving up. They are a very young team, the squad consisting of only two seniors, five juniors and four sophomores, two of whom started regularly.

The Sachemettes were very spirited and this showed clearly in the aggressive, all out play. In looking back over the season, one sees a lot of great individual performances. The girls always gave that little extra effort that made what seemed to be almost impossible shots possible and allowed them to grab rebounds away from the worthy opposition.

One of the most outstanding performances all season came from Holly Stevenson in the Sachem's last game, last Tuesday, Feb. 28, 1978. She scored an unbelievable 34 points. This beats her old record of 28 points in one game. This also is the new record for the school and for the entire Middlesex League. Her shooting was spectacular. She could score from the top of the key, the bottom of the key, under the basket, after rebounds, anywhere. She was unstoppable. She alone outscored the entire Wakefield team. In her last high school game, Holly went out in style. In their last game of the '78 season, the girls really proved their worth. They totally dominated and destroyed Wakefield, 67-33. This was the first game all season that Winchester scored over 60 points and they really did it with real class.

Winchester came out dominating. They worked the ball around with great control, waiting for the right opening. Kathy Day and Diane Cullen put the pressure on Wakefield early with a press and they could not handle it. Holly started early, getting open in the middle and with accurate passes from Linda. Holly started to tally up the score. The defense on the other end, held Wakefield cold. They could not get open to take shots and they were not allowed any position for the rebounds. The 20-5 score at the end of the quarter clearly reflected the Sachem's dominance.

Things cooled down a little in the 2nd quarter. The pace of the game slowed down considerably. Barbara Jacobs on defense, made a couple of steals and then took them in for the basket. The whole defense was sturdy. They followed the ball well. The only shots Wakefield was able to get off were under a great deal of pressure and were far from accurate. Wakefield tried to bother Winchester with a press but Christine Driscoll and Diane worked the ball up as if it was not even there. Holly at half time was well on her way to the record with 22 points. The Sachem's now led 31-14.

There were no surprises in the third quarter. Wakefield just could not get their act together. Winchester, on the other hand, after a season of hard work, got it all together, passing, shooting, rebounding, defense, the whole works. Holly tied her record at the end of this quarter with 28 points. With their biggest lead so far in the game, the Sachem's were ahead 43-22.

At 50 seconds into the fourth quarter, Holly broke her previous record with two foul shots. It was an exciting moment. The rest of the quarter was filled with excitement, too. It came mostly from Diane Cullen. This was her last game, too, and it was her best ever. She is a very aggressive player and she caused Wakefield to make numerous turnovers. Her offense in this game was also fine. Diane scored 15 points, her high for the year.

The final score was 67-33. The two seniors starred in this game but it was a total team effort that enabled them to do so. It was this team play that helped them through the toughest part of their season and next year it should lead them right into the State Tournament.

1978 was a good year, 1979 will be better. They have the talent, they can go the whole way.

To Holly and Diane, best wishes in all you do, and to the rest of the team, good luck in 1979.

Kirk Swanson key to Ithaca College season

Kirk Swanson, son of Mrs. Anne C. Parkhurst of 5 Hawthorne rd., was a key contributor this year to the Ithaca College junior varsity basketball team, which finished its season with a 16-3 record.

Swanson, a 6-4 freshman forward, was a top rebounder and a consistent scorer for Ithaca's JV. He averaged 5.4 points a game while scoring a personal high of 18 in Ithaca's 117-34 win over Tompkins Cortland Community College.

Swanson is a graduate of Hebron Academy and a physical education major at Ithaca.

St. Eulalia's basketball team in tournament

The St. Eulalia's CYO Basketball team is entered in the Bedford Recreation Department's Ninth Invitational Basketball Tournament. Their first game is set for Wednesday against top-seed Andover.

The team is entered in the cadet division for grades 7 and 8, along with teams from Lexington, Milton, Concord, Burlington, Bedford, Chelmsford, Arlington, and a team from Hanscom AFB. Game time is 8:30 p.m. at the Glen Junior High School on McMan road in Bedford.

On the team are 12 players: Chris Hoffman and Tim Hoffman, Paul Williamson, Steve McDonald, Keith McCarthy, John Myers, Tom Lee, Bill Thomas, Dave Palumbo, Dee DeAngelis, Paul O'Brien, and Don Phelan. The coach is Donald Hoffman.

Knights to hold second annual family breakfast

The Winchester Knights of Columbus Council No. 210 will hold its second annual family communion breakfast Sunday.

The breakfast will be served at the council hall immediately following an 8:30 Mass, to be celebrated at the Immaculate Conception Church by Father William J. Cummings.

The Knights will march from the former church to Main street to the main entrance of the present church before the Mass; they will be led by parade marshal Fourth Degree Brother William Daly. During the Mass there will be a special selection of songs by vocalist William Gurrissi. Members of the council will assist Fr. Cummings with the celebration of the Mass.

John Carroll, director of the Massachusetts State Department of Public Works, will be the guest speaker. The council will honor a number of senior members for their outstanding tenure. A special award to the Knight of the Month will be given to a brother for his courageous service to the community.

Tickets are available from Grand Knight Patrick P.P. Palladino Jr., Financial Secretary John J. Mulrehan, Chancellor Coleman J. Bowen, Warden Robert W. Swymer Jr., Treasurer Carl V. Bruno, Trustee David Mullen, and at the council quarters. Call 729-1981 for further information.

Bantams with 21-0 record win basketball title

The Bantams from St. Eulalia's have compiled a record of 21-0. The leading scorer for the year is Tim Hoffman with a 15 point average.

Leading rebounders for the year were Mark DeAngelis and John Meyers. Leading defensive players have been Tom Lee and Billy Thomas.

The main factor for this fine record was the strong bench of Paul O'Brien, Jimmy Feeley and David Palumbo. These boys have already won the Chelmsford Invitational Tournament and the first round in the Pre-Ten Tournament of Somerville.

Next game will be at Somerville High School against a strong St. Catherine's team, Sat. Mar. 11, 6 P.M.

The boys will also be participating in the archdiocese CYO Tournament during the month of March.

Testimonial for Bob Fiore set for March 31

On Friday evening, March 31, a testimonial will be given Bob Fiore at the Montvale Plaza in Stoneham.

Fiore has been a member of the Winchester Sons of Italy for 25 years and is an ex-venerable of the Lodge. He has been an officer of the Grand Lodge for eight years and is now a supreme trustee.

Fiore is also a member of the nationally famous Winchester Men's Lodge Degree Team and is at present director of the SOI bingo committee. Fiore's other memberships include the Lions Club, Knights of Columbus, Christopher Columbus Club, and St. Mary's Parish Council. Fiore is also a call firefighter for Winchester.

The night will start with a social hour at 7, roast beef and macaroni dinner at 8:15 and dancing until midnight. Chairman Charles Perenick heads a large committee of friends working out the details for this affair, which includes a short speaking program and a few presentations after dinner.

Tickets may be purchased from the following Winchester committee members: Venerable Gus Baldacci, Venerable Theresa Piumara, Charles Perenick, Joe Paolessa, Nick Ronzio, Jim Russo, Rocco Detesio, Rose Fiore, Bill Fiore, Dom Saragosa, and Bob Cintolo.

WHS gymnasts split meets with Wayland, Reading teams

By Maureen McCabe

The Winchester High School Boys Gymnastics team split two meets, beating Wayland by one-tenth of a point and losing to Reading by a greater margin.

The meet against Wayland was one where both teams were evenly matched. The decision could have fallen either way, and fortunately the Winchester team was able to gain 75.25 points to Wayland's 75.15.

The floor exercise gave Wayland 14.25 points with scores of 6.95, 4.05, and 3.25. Winchester was able to raise 13.0 points with Peter MacDonald's 5.65, Steve Campo's 3.9 and Steve Galante's 3.45.

The side horse proved once again to be a strong event for the locals. Wayland could only muster 9.55 points to Winchester's 10.75. Winchester's MacDonald led all scorers with his 4.1. Other points were tallied by Paul Selvitelli and Paul Maxwell, 3.6 and 3.05 respectively.

The high bar stretched Winchester's lead to 1.7 points. MacDonald took top honors once again with his 5.05. Mark Mulvaney was awarded 3.55 points and Anders Bjarngard merited a 2.9 to complete the Winchester attack. Wayland could only add 9.7 points to their total.

Wayland edged out Winchester on the parallel bars but the margin was not enough to overcome the Sachems. Maxwell and MacDonald each received a score of 3.65 with Mulvaney's 3.45 balancing the Sachem score. Wayland's 10.95 total could do little for the team.

Wayland was victorious on the vault with a 20.55 total to Winchester's 19.35. Winchester's MacDonald was awarded a 7.8 for his effort with Maxwell meriting 5.8 and Mulvaney a 5.75. Wayland again edged out Winchester on the rings, but it was too little, too late. MacDonald's 3.85 was the best awarded on the event, with Campo receiving a 3.25 and Anders Bjarngard's 2.8 completing the Sachem's 75.25 score. Wayland raised 10.15 points to receive a final score of 75.15.

The Sachems did not fare as well against Reading. 74.70 to 68.15. Reading received scores of 4.4, 3.9 and 3.55 on floor exercise to give them an 11.85 total. Winchester's scores were tallied by MacDonald 3.9, Campo 3.2 and John Belinowicz 2.95.

The Sachems dominated the side horse but unfortunately by a small margin Reading achieved 9.55 points. Winchester's 9.85 were received by Selvitelli, 3.45, Campo, 3.25 and MacDonald 3.15.

Reading took over on the high bar meriting a 4.55, 3.6 and 2.6. Winchester raised 10.45 points with MacDonald being awarded the best score, 4.95. Mark Mulvaney was given a 3.15 and Steve Campo gained 2.35 points.

The parallel bars sparked a slim victory for the Sachems with MacDonald's 4.15, Maxwell's 3.25 and Mulvaney's 2.95. Reading added 10.30 points to their total.

Winchester could only muster 19.7 points on the vault to Reading's 21.75. MacDonald received a 7.55, Mulvaney a 7.2, and Maxwell a 4.95.

The rings gave Reading 10.15 points to add the last disappointment to the bitter defeat. MacDonald was awarded a 3.45, Campo, 2.65 and David DeMars a 1.85 to add to the Sachems 68.45 total.

Five compete in league's girls' gymnastics tourney

By Kelly Gately

The Middlesex League Individual Gymnastic Competition was held in Reading last week and five members of the Winchester High team were competing. They were co-captains Maureen McCabe and Laurie Vincent, Carrie Hosmer, Peggy McCabe and Anne Bird.

Although all turned in a first-rate performance, Laurie Vincent was the team's only medal winner. In vaulting she tied for second with an excellent score of 8.4 and she also came in third in the all-around competition with a combined score of 29.7.

First place winners were: all-around Michele Santagata, Burlington (8.65); parallel bars, Santagata, Burlington (8.65); beam, Leslie Sargent, Wakefield (8.0); vaulting, Carolyn Crapper, Wakefield (8.60); floor, Santagata, Burlington (8.55).

For Winchester on the uneven parallel bars, Laurie Vincent's 6.8 was the high score with Peggy McCabe's 6.7 close behind. Maureen McCabe also received a laudable score of 6.3.

On the beam, Laurie Vincent led her team again with a 6.8. Carrie Hosmer, 6.25, and Anne Bird 4.85 followed behind.

In vaulting, both Maureen McCabe and Anne Bird received creditable scores of 7.55 and 7.4 along with Laurie Vincent. In their most consistent event, Winchester ended strongly as Laurie Vincent, Peggy McCabe and Maureen McCabe were right on each other's heels with scores of 7.7, 7.6, and 7.5 respectively in the floor event.

As the season comes to an end, best of luck is wished for this year's seniors Laurie Vincent, Maureen McCabe and Carrie Hosmer and also to Mrs. Rufo and next year's promising team.

Correction

Deborah Gouzele and Richard K. Lochridge, both of Boston, were married Jan. 21 at Christ Church, Cambridge. The reception was held at the Sheraton Commander Hotel.

In an announcement of the marriage in last week's Star, we inadvertently misspelled the former Miss Gouzele's name. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gouzele of Lexington. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Lochridge of Altadena, Calif.

Sunday program in high gear

by Francis X. Murray

Winchester Youth Hockey's Sunday intermural program has been rolling along this winter in high gear. The games are exciting and the parents, grandparents and friends enjoy watching their boys' improved play each week. Best of all, the boys are having fun and all are contributing to their team's success.

The teams are well balanced and all are in the running for the championship. So far, Rotary is leading the pack with five wins and two losses closely followed by Kiwanis and En Ka each with 3 wins, 3 losses, and 1 tie. Elks is only one point back with 3 wins and 4 losses.

As usual the boys are offense-minded, scoring lots of goals at the expense of defense. The goalies have made excellent saves, but can't be expected to do it all by themselves.

Pete Regan and Brian Griffin are a dynamic duo for the Elks. Bobby Paine and Paul Ferullo are the big shooters for En Ka. The Struthers Brothers, Rich, Jack and Tom are pacing Rotary. Good team work by Peter Gove, Tom Guilderson, John Flynn and Brian Carroll lead the Kiwanis.

The directors are very pleased with the steady development of the novices who are playing for the first time. These boys started out in the clinic as non-skaters in the fall and their improvement is remarkable. The teams are tied with 3 wins, 1 tie. It's a joy to watch the determination of these 5-to-8-year-old boys as they improve each week. Sean Murphy, Rob Palmer, Billy Farrar and Todd Crandall are the leading point getters for K of C while Rob Murphy, Jay Barbuto, Steve Senna, Dan Limerick, Mike Smith and Mike Palmer are the sharpshooters for Sprots Shop.

Troop 506 wins high honors at Scout Skill Show

The Award of Honor and Merit was presented to Boy Scout Troop 506 of Winchester at the Skill Show held March 4 at the Burlington Mall. They received the award for their display demonstrating knowledge of railroading.

The Boy Scout Skill Show is held annually. About 100 troops and cub scout packs in the Minuteman Council participated in Saturday's show with booths demonstrating the skills acquired in boy scouting. The Awards of Merit and Honor were the highest awards presented at the show.

Troop 506 is sponsored by the Winchester Unitarian Society.

In last 10 seconds

Regan gives Mites 2-1 victory over Arlington

With 10 seconds to go, Pete Regan whipped down the length of the rink to put in a tie-breaking goal to give the Winchester Mites a 2-1 victory over Arlington last weekend.

The referee dropped the puck and it was continuous action both ways Friday night at the Burlington Ice Palace as Winchester took on a very strong Arlington Mite team. Arlington has been one of the strongest developing teams this season as they started off very slowly, but gained momentum in every game. Arlington is currently in third place battling for second with Watertown in the American Division. The game delayed because of storm conditions was not delayed in action, as both teams skated their young hearts out. Arlington picked up a loose puck and netted their only goal of the game with 1:32 left to play in the first period.

Marc Todisco tied the score for Winchester at 1:22 of the second period when Pete

Regan shot from the point and Sukjong Chung passed over to Todisco for the goal. The rest of the period continued as the first with great action.

The third period saw Winchester gain a slight edge of play over Arlington, but Scott Paine and Pete Regan were called for tripping as David Butt, Billy Coppins, and Marc Todisco were used to kill the penalties. With 55 seconds left in the game Arlington was assessed a penalty for having too many men on the ice.

After Coach Regan questioned a ruling on a penalty shot for the penalty, the game resumed. Pete Regan picked up the puck behind his own net with 10 seconds showing on the clock. Rushing the length of the ice he faked the last Arlington defenseman and went in alone to beat Arlington's goalie. There were two seconds left on the clock when he scored to ice the victory.

Kevin Boyle was in the nets, with help from Timmy Day, Marc Falzano, Ronnie Settipane, and Matt Quill keeping the action away from the net. Derek Sullivan returned from his knee injury and centered a new line with Ted Dever and Billy Coppins on his wings. Although all players deserved first stars for one of their outstanding games of the year, Marc Todisco was awarded second star and Pete Regan first star.

This win should help keep the Mites close to first place or tied for second after storm-delayed game results are in. The team has no games this week and will resume their quest for first place on March 17 with an important game against division leader Medford.

Girl Scouts observing 66th

Winchester Girl Scouts are observing the 66th anniversary of the first troop meeting during Girl Scout Week March 12-18.

The theme for Girl Scout Week '78 is "Worlds to Explore" which builds on the new program design introduced nation-wide in September. The week is traditionally a time of celebration—a time to tell the Girl Scout story.

The 519 Winchester Girl Scouts, members of 31 troops meeting in all the elementary schools, will be participating in several special events.

The week will start with an ecumenical service "Look Wider Still" at St. Eulalia Church at 2 on Sunday when the girls will pay tribute to their membership in the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts.

During the week the scouts will celebrate closer to home as they thank their friends in the community for their support of scouting. The scouts will say "Hello Winchester Hello" as Brownies express their appreciation to the staffs of their schools and the Junior and Cadettes visit the various town offices and departments.

On Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Winchester Public Library, the scouts will focus on the "World of the Out-Doors" with a special summer camp preview.

The informal meeting planned for parents and non-scouts as well as Brownie, Junior and Cadette Girl Scouts, will include slides, information, and applications for the day and resident camps administered by the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council.

Staff members from Camp Menotomy, Meredith, N. H. and Camp Rice-Moody, Reading will be present to describe the camp programs and to answer questions. Girl Scouts who have attended these and other area Scout camps will also be present to give first hand observations about the camps.

Girls may choose a general interest program or participate in special interest patrols including biking, backpacking, sailing, horseback riding, drama, and water fun. Both one-week and two-week sessions are available.

Individual troops will exhibit their badge work and projects in their school libraries all week. Lincoln Junior Troop 482 will have a display on the "World of People" in the children's room of the public library.

Also during the week all the scout troops will have special activities for their troop meetings remembering that first meeting in Savannah, Georgia, March 12, 1912, and carrying out the 1978 theme "Worlds To Explore."

Wine tasting to benefit alumnae

The tenth International Wine Tasting hosted by Wheaton College Alumnae from Winchester and Lexington will be held at Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Nursery, March 29, 6-8 p.m.

Six wines have been carefully selected for the occasion by Harvard Wine and Liquor Company of Brookline, who have prepared a brief written description of each. Accompanying cheeses will be from The Continental Cow Cheese Shop of Winchester.

Proceeds of the event are to benefit the Wheaton College Scholarship Fund. The public is cordially invited to attend by making a donation. For further information, contact Mrs. Phyllis Gleason, 729-2041, or Mrs. Donna Duffy, 729-7233.

Other Winchester committee members include Mrs. Nancy Budd, 34 Wedgemere ave. and Mrs. Priscilla Gray, 5 Sheffield rd., co-chairmen; Mrs. Dorothy Burrows, 5 Oneida circ.; Mrs. Barbara Durland, 61 Yale st.; Mrs. Phyllis Fernald, 76 Church st.; Mrs. Marjorie Japy, 54 Wedgemere ave.; Ms. Anne Kane, 290 Highland ave.; Mrs. Shirley Niles, 50 Jefferson rd.; and Mrs. Terry Seferian, 335 Highland ave.

Red Cross starts new campaign for membership support

The Winchester Chapter of American Red Cross is asking for membership support in order to continue the many services it provides to the people of Winchester.

Paul Colella, local chapter chairman, said he could best emphasize what Red Cross means to Winchester by quoting Joseph Krajewski, his predecessor as chairman of Winchester Chapter, who wrote this message in the last annual report of the chapter:

"Red Cross is many things. It is an organizational structure through which the people of Winchester can truly be The Good Neighbor. It is service to our community's needs."

"In a way it functions a lot like preventive medicine. We never know the many lives that are saved because someone knew the right thing to do, having taken a Red Cross First Aid Course or a Red Cross Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation Course."

"We never know how many lives are saved because a lifeguard knew his or her duty, having taken the Red Cross Life Saving Course. We never know how many lives are saved because we gave blood."

All contributions should be addressed to the American Red Cross, 39 Church st.,

Goodwill drive at St. Mary's

St. Mary's confirmation class of '78 is sponsoring a town-wide goodwill drive on Saturday, March 18.

The severe winter has had many casualties, and among those suffering most are the handicapped and disadvantaged people served by Morgan Memorial Industries.

Not only have generous people been unable to get to Goodwill boxes to leave needed merchandise, but the Goodwill trucks have been unable to collect as well.

To keep New England's most comprehensive vocational rehabilitation center for physically, mentally, and socially handicapped people operating efficiently, items of all sorts are needed.

A study class of young men of St. Mary's pre-confirmation program are working to improve the quality of life of these needy people by organizing a collection between 9-4 on Saturday, March 18, at St. Mary's Hall.

Items from small appliances, books and furniture to clothing and household items, are needed. Now you can help! Please, no merchandise that is headed for the dump.

The young men who will be working to make the drive a success are: Chuck Adelsberger, Jim Badger, Robert Baldacci, Jay Beraldi, Joe Burns, Jon Boudreau, Bruce Campbell, Wayne Clarcia, Jim Cullen, David Day, Jay Gill, Rick Harrington, Ken Jacobson, Michael Mistretta, Michael O'Reilly, Paul Paonessa, Pete Rania, and Ken Vancini.

Couples a-go-go

Last Saturday evening 18 bowlers showed up to bowl.

The Rolls team has taken over first place with the Jaquars, Stutz and Volvo teams tied for second place.

Bowlers of the evening went to Stan Hart, bowling 79 pins over his average and to Walter Armstrong bowling 72 pins over his average.

High men's games went to Guy Pollino, 221 and Walter Armstrong, 197; high women's games went to Angela Pollino, 196 and Vi Vangell, 186. High series, Guy Pollino, 555 and Stan Hart, 520.

LWV planning theater night

Digging their way out from under the snows of '78, the LWV of Winchester is looking towards the impossible dream of Spring and holding a night to get away from it all.

With the help of the Winchester Unitarian Players, they are offering three one-act plays by A. R. Gurney Jr., a local playwright and Professor of Literature at MIT. The plays will be: "The Love Course," "The Golden Fleece," and "The Comeback."

Professor Gurney has had many of his plays performed by little theatre groups in this country and England, had a number of plays produced off-Broadway, and has had the play "The Wayside Motor Inn" performed on Broadway this fall.

This fifth annual theatre night will take place Apr. 7 at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Church and will be followed by a gala reception.

The committee members working on this event are: Meri Jordan and Lynn Deetjens, refreshments, Cynthia Turnquist, publicity, and Joanne Morgan, 6 Crescent rd., tickets.

Choir to sing all of M. Durufle's 'Requiem' on Sun.

The adult choir of the First Congregational Church, under the direction of Robert A. White, will present a complete rendition of the "Requiem" by Maurice Durufle during the 10 o'clock worship service on Sunday. Soloists will be Flora Mardigan, contralto, and James Reynolds, bass. John Skelton will accompany on the organ. The presentation is offered to the community at large, and all are welcome.

Planning, staff reductions seen as issues of future

By Mrs. Weylman

Mary Jean Weylman recently stated her reasons for seeking election to the Winchester School Committee.

"Twenty years ago I taught in the public schools of Concord. Fifteen years ago we moved to Winchester with our first child. Now, as a parent with four children at every level of the schools, and with many years to go before my first grader graduates, I feel I have a commitment to public education in Winchester. This is the right time for me to run for office. I believe that my 20 years experience with schools has prepared me well to serve in the area I know best and care about most."

Mrs. Weylman continues, "Winchester is faced with an enrollment decline. Fewer children in our schools create several major problems: school closings, reduction in personnel, and budgetary pressures. On each of these issues I will attempt to explain my thinking to the voters."

"My option to keep all our neighborhood schools open no longer exists. The town still has many other choices to make however. Size of schools is an important consideration. My personal preference is for elementary schools to house no more than 400 pupils. Other options exist regarding geographical distribution, transportation and proper building utilization."

"A task force consisting of 25 people representing a cross-section of the town will report at a public hearing Mar. 13 at Vinson Owen school. I will be very interested in the findings of this committee, for I have always believed the careful planning is the best way to face change. I have also been a strong advocate of town wide participation in planning for our educational future."

"Reduction in force of teachers and administrators is another result of declining enrollment," states Mrs. Weylman. "It is painful to dismiss personnel, but declining enrollment forces the issue. By improving the evaluation procedure we are given an opportunity to retain only the best personnel in our system. The school committee should encourage the administration to evaluate staff fairly but critically."

Mrs. Weylman continues, "The budget during this time of enrollment decline has a special set of problems. We can not continue to add courses and programs, no matter how popular or desirable, without considering reductions. Inflation is pushing costs up and the school committee must make every effort to retain a stable budget. This means making practical choices and my choice would be to cut the budget in areas that least affect the students."

"In addition to the issues of this campaign, I also have a special interest that I will promote if elected. It is time to put more emphasis on the basic skills of reading and writing. All students should be educated to read well, to write concisely, to speak effectively, and to organize their thinking. We must begin our emphasis in elementary school and reinforce these concepts throughout the junior high and senior high school years. These skills are important to every child and are essential preparation for the student whether he goes to work after graduation or moves on to further education."

Mrs. Weylman concludes, "No one can predict the issues that are in the future, but 20 years of experience with schools gives me a practical point of view that is valuable for decision making. I believe that it is the responsibility of adults to provide a sound foundation for the children of this community. Children are our heritage. Children are important to me. I would like to apply my enthusiasm, interest and ability to that area which most critically affects our children, the Winchester public schools."

Women's soccer goes to finals in indoor meet

The Winchester Indoor Women's Soccer team fared well in the first US Championships at Tufts University Mar. 4. In fact they came a couple of points from winning.

After tromping the Boston Tornadoes 10-1 and shutting out Cambridge American Express 5-0, the local team, named the Bostonners, lost out 1-0 to a team from Parish Hill, Conn. in the finals. There was some consolation in that the Connecticut team had earlier defeated a team from Needham which had gone undefeated for four years.

Anyone interested in beginners soccer, indoor and outdoor, for men and women of all ages, should contact Max Spector, chief organizer of the Mar. 4 tournament, at 884-8181.

Current chairman

Barbara Hankins to seek re-election as selectman

Barbara Hankins of 37 Cabot st., announces her candidacy for reelection to the town's board of selectmen.

Mrs. Hankins has been a selectman since 1975 and served as chairman this past year. In announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Hankins stated, "During the past several years we have followed the town's mandate of restructuring and modernizing general government. This job is just about finished, but much more still needs to be done."

She went on to cite that "we must arrive at a town-wide consensus on what direction should be taken for Winchester's future. We must resolve the question of the town center, the types of social and human services that we can or should provide; the effect of the energy problem; the change in the demographics of the town and its impact on town services; and the entire relationship between Winchester and our county and state governments."

Mrs. Hankins went on to say that during the past three years as selectman and the three before that on the finance committee she has gained an enormous amount of experience and knowledge. "I'd like this not to be wasted. I hope the voters of Winchester will allow me one more term to do my best to assure that Winchester will retain and improve the values that make living here so worthwhile."

Barbara S. Hankins

Joseph Bentley candidate for board of assessors

Joseph V. Bentley of 11 Stratford rd. announces his candidacy for the office of assessor. He believes that the position requires a person who has the capabilities and knowledge to represent the citizens in a professional manner.

From 1974-77, Bentley served as a town meeting member with an attendance record of over 90 percent. Currently, he is co-chairman of the town audit screening committee, an ad hoc committee of the board of selectmen.

The candidate has been actively interested in the assessor's office for sometime since he feels his financial background as a certified public accountant and his experience in taxes could assist and complement the other board members. In addition, he is a licensed real estate broker (unpracticing.)

Bentley thinks that the taxpayers should be made aware of any new laws affecting property taxes. A good example is the recent change in the abatement law for our senior citizens over seventy. He would notify the taxpayers of their legal rights with a flyer in their tax bill.

Bentley received his bachelor of science degree in accounting from Bentley College and he is employed as a controller. Also he has taught financial courses at Bunker Hill, Middlesex Community College, and a business seminar for the Small Business Administration.

In conclusion, he strongly believes that the assessor's job is an objective, financial position and should be so staffed.

The candidate is married and has three lovely children in the Winchester schools.

Joseph V. Bentley

Former board member

Edmund Williams candidate for board of selectmen

Edmund A. Williams of 12 Myrtle st. has announced his candidacy for the board of selectmen.

"As a candidate for selectman, I realize the responsibility, considering the many problems our town is facing and has faced in the last few years," said Williams.

"We have water problems, department of public works confusion, and a downtown area that shows us that a revitalization program has not and conceivably will not in the future be dealt with. There are other things that have not been told to us (I'll deal with them in my campaign) that will increase our tax rate now and in the immediate future," continued Williams.

"As a past member of the board of selectmen, I know priorities in town management are important. It seems at this point and time all priorities are either neglected or there are none. It obviously is because of one situation, department of public works. There are equally important matters sitting on the back burner."

"In order to govern, you must act, not react."

"I feel that as a candidate for selectman, the voters and taxpayers of Winchester will get someone who is well-informed, will stay well-informed, and act in the best interest of the taxpayers," concluded Williams in his announcement.

Two seats open

Robert Beattie to run for board of library trustees

TMM Robert D. Beattie, 17 Cabot st., has announced his candidacy for one of the two library trustee vacancies in the Winchester town election on March 28.

Beattie has been active in Winchester town affairs for many years, having served as a town meeting member for the past 11 years. He served on the West Side Fire Station Building Committee for five years under Chairman "Whip" Saltmarsh, and most recently has contributed as a member of the capital improvements planning committee for five years as well. In addition, Bob Beattie has worked on the Snow and Ice Removal Study Committee for seven years and is now chairman of that committee.

Beattie says he takes his service in town affairs seriously and sees the job through. He can recall some of the important issues resolved at town meeting such as the new high school, Metro, rezoning, and new town by-laws. He feels fortunate to have served on committees that achieved results. The West Side Fire Station was built at last. The capital improvements planning committee has established the framework for capital planning and has helped bring capital spending back within historical norms for Winchester. And the snow and ice removal study committee has initiated improved snow plowing equipment and reduced salt usage by about 7000 tons per year.

As Beattie observes, Winchester expects and receives efficient and effective service from the public library. Changing expectations of the town have led to continuing evolution in services by the library staff.

For example, recent plans are to switch the collections in the Downs and Smith Rooms so art and music are more accessible. "Clearly the library staff has been innovative in adapting to community needs within the constraints of existing resources," notes Beattie. Bob is convinced that sound comprehensive planning by the trustees in the policy areas of personnel, community relations, legal, budget, and physical plant has been distinctly encouraging to the library staff. Now the library needs some renovation: improvement of staff work rooms, switching the Downs and Smith room collections, smoke detectors, and possibly a book security system, as suggested by present trustees.

Beattie has been responsive to needs of the community during past participation in town government and would like to assist the library renovation, as well as future policy making by the Trustees. Bob's 25 years of experience in engineering project management and project cost estimation would help implement the five-year library renovation program. Beattie was educated at Yale School of Engineering and holds a masters and doctorate in chemical engineering. Bob and his wife, Dorothy, have a son and a daughter who have attended the Winchester public schools.

Public invited to Mishawum Society

The public is invited to attend a Pops Cabaret Night, featuring a concert by the Mishawum Choral Society, to be held Friday, April 7, at the Immaculate Conception Parish Hall on Sheridan circle.

The concert will be followed by dancing to the music of Frank Page until 1 a.m. Prizes will also be awarded.

All proceeds are to benefit the Immaculate Conception Queensmen Drum and Bugle Corps. For further information, contact Mildred Paoletti (933-2077) or Loretta Figucia (933-1959).

Recycle in Winchester at the town dump off Swanton street. Material should be separated into the following categories: rags, used clothing, cans, newspapers and glass. Glass must be sorted by color: amber, clear and green.

Frank cites English skills, low expectations as concerns

School Committee Chairman Robert Frank spoke today on two subjects relating to the curriculum in the schools. Frank states: "One of my concerns is that too many students complete their Winchester education without ever learning to speak and write well. In addition, I am not certain that the school system consistently encourages each student to perform at, or near, the limit of his or her individual capacity."

"The results of recently administered standardized tests," Frank notes, "indicate that Winchester High School students, as a group, perform below their potential in basic writing skills. More over, the average scores of Winchester students on the English portion of Scholastic Aptitude Test have consistently declined."

"In fairness," Frank continued, "it could be said (1) that our performance is at least as good as that of other comparable school systems and, (2) that current scores of high school juniors and seniors do not fairly reflect significant efforts made during the last two years to improve English skills. The 10th grade writing laboratory, now in its second year, has been a real success. The English program at the seventh and eighth grades has been expanded so that greater emphasis may be placed on the development of writing skills."

"However, neither our relative success as compared to other school systems, nor the recent improvement in the English curriculum, is cause for complacency," Frank added. "There are at least six steps that the system should take to improve student performance. Some of these actions have already commenced."

"First, the teaching of good communications skills should begin early in each child's education. Our recent curriculum efforts have been directed at secondary school students. We now must direct our efforts towards the improvement of the elementary school writing curriculum."

"Second, all students should be required to write frequently, and to write in sentence, paragraph, and essay form. We use too many teaching materials which seek one word answers from students."

"Third, the teaching of good communications skills involves more than instruction in the mechanics of expression. Students must also learn to organize their ideas and present them in an orderly and coherent fashion.

"Fourth, written work must be carefully corrected, and constructive criticism should be offered regularly to each child."

"Fifth, standards of original speech and writing should be required in all subject matter areas, not just English. Moreover, standards enforced by teachers outside the English department must be consistent with those established and enforced by the English department, itself."

"Sixth, we should provide more opportunities for student oral expression."

"I believe," Frank concluded, "that if the school system takes the type of action which I have described, we will, over time, see a marked improvement in the communications skills of most Winchester students."

On a separate subject, Frank states: "There are too many indications that the level of expectation with respect to the performance of many students is too low. The reactions of parents during the school visits conducted by the school committee, the results of the survey of private school parents, and the observations of the curriculum study committee all support this conclusion. These views should be cause for careful introspection by the school department."

Are we suffering from grade inflation in the secondary schools? Do we have a curriculum which is versatile enough to adequately challenge a variety of children who have disparate interests and varying levels of ability? Are our academic standards sufficiently rigorous? Do we provide enough instructive work for students?

"These are troublesome questions. The fact that they are being asked is an opportunity for the school system, not an indictment of it. A substantial portion of the school department's curriculum effort in the next two years should be directed at a constructive, non-defensive, response to these questions. Its analysis must proceed on a course-by-course, school-by-school, teacher-by-teacher, and, often, a student-by-student, basis. The process of education in Winchester can only benefit from this type of careful self-examination."

Bob Frank is running for a second three-year term on the school committee. He is presently the chairman of the committee.

School board candidates at CSA March 22

On March 22 at 8 p.m. the Community School Association will hold a "Meet your school committee candidates" night at the high school.

Guest speakers Massachusetts State Senator Sam Rotondi and State Representative Sherman Saltmarsh will speak on current legislation regarding education.

Candidates' guidelines for press releases

For the coming local election The Star will give each candidate for major office three free publications and a picture. In addition, The Star will give its usual news coverage of the League of Women Voters' questionnaire and Candidates' Night.

Each candidate may submit an announcement and picture, one or two news releases and/or a letter, not to exceed three. In order to avoid last-minute campaign issues which cannot be responded to, no news releases will be accepted for the issue prior to the election. No letters will be accepted at any time on behalf of a candidacy except one written by the candidate himself or herself.

Deadline for political news and advertising copy is 4 p.m. Monday. Political candidates are charged the regular display advertising rate. The Star also has a printing department which can print flyers and reprint ads.

The intent in setting guidelines is to insure that all candidates, regardless of support and staffing, will have the same opportunity for free election coverage.

All persons whose names or pictures appear in a political ad on behalf of a candidate must give written authorization for their name to be used. All political advertising, in accordance with state law, must be signed.

BUYING VS RENTING

To buy or to rent—that is the question. Both have their place. First, renting can be the answer for families who know they'll only be in the area for a short time or who prefer not to contend with maintenance. It's also the only solution for anyone with insufficient funds for the down payment on a home.

The main disadvantage of renting is a financial one. As living costs rise—so do rents. A lease may protect you temporarily, but when it expires, the landlord is free to increase the rent—even under rent control when justified. Rent payment cannot be deducted from income tax as the homeowner can deduct real estate taxes and interest on the mortgage payments.

Your best buffer against inflation is to own your own home. You'll also be pleasantly surprised to find it also is one of the best financial investments you ever made. Your payments will remain level while your resale value—especially in this area—will continue to rise.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER, PHONE 729-1063. We're here to help!

Obituaries

Shirley A. Howard

The Star has learned of the passing of Mrs. Thomas L. Howard, 57, of Mountain Brook, Alabama, Feb. 23. Mrs. Howard was the daughter of Mrs. C. Harold Smith, of Birmingham, and the late Mr. Smith, well known former Winchester residents. She was a 1938 graduate of Winchester High School.

A lifelong devotee of youth sports, recreational pursuits, and civic activities, Mrs. Howard was active in high school athletics and was an avid tennis player.

In World War II, Mrs. Howard enlisted in the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps, ultimately becoming a 1st Lt. in the USAF in which, at the time, she was the only woman in the service to hold the military occupational specialty of supply officer. She completed her tour of duty in Germany in 1945. Always interested in young people's activities, she was active in Scouting.

Mrs. Howard was a member of the Civil Air

Patrol from 1966 until her death. In 1968-70, she served on the State of Alabama Wing Staff as deputy director for cadets, covering that state's 27 squadrons; from 1970 to 1972, she was regional director for Cadets for the states of Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, and Puerto Rico, attaining the rank of major.

Mrs. Howard was the first woman to become a store manager in the McDonald's chain of restaurants. She was a charter member of St. Albans Episcopal Church of Bluff Park, Ala. and with her husband, a member of the organizing committee from that church of the Episcopal-sponsored retirement home, St. Martin's-in-the-Pines, the first such home in Alabama.

In addition to her mother, Mrs. Howard is survived by her brother, Arnold H. Smith, now of King of Prussia, Pa.; her husband, Thomas L. Howard, four sons, Thomas L. Howard Jr., Boulder, Colo.; Lt. John J. Howard, USN, of Charleston, S.C.; Mark S. Howard, Denver, Colo.; and David E. Howard, Birmingham; and a daughter, Pamela L. Howard, Birmingham.

A memorial service was held in Homewood, Alabama on Feb. 26; interment will be with military honors in Ledgewood Cemetery, Bar Harbor, Me., at a date to be announced.

Gertrude L. Davis

Gertrude L. Davis, formerly of Hemingway street, died recently at the Woburn Nursing Home after a prolonged illness. A Winchester resident, she was 83 years old and had lived here off and on all of her life.

She leaves two nieces, Alice L. Bulpitt of Merrimack, N.H. and Winona Tuck of Sinsbury, Conn.; an aunt, Vinetta Dee of East Lynn; and two great-nephews, George C. and Gary D. Bulpitt.

Services were held at the Norris Funeral Home.

Save the Children, the organization that finds sponsors for needy children all over the world, honored some of its sponsors at an awards ceremony and luncheon Mar. 8 in Boston.

Barbara Adams of Winchester is one of those sponsors honored at the event. A participant since 1963, she is currently sponsoring four American Indian children and a Mexican boy.

Also honored was John Null, another resident, who is currently sponsoring a girl from Appalachia. He has been associated with Save the Children since 1962.

Newbury Junior College student Joseph McCarthy of Salisbury street has been selected for the 1977-78 edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. McCarthy was picked on the basis of academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extra-curricular activities, and future potential.

Dr. William L. Wilson of Oneida road was recently honored at a meeting of Pacific Coast orthodontists in Palm Springs, Calif. Dr. Wilson was selected to present the first Alkinson Memorial Lecture. In a series of lectures, Dr. Wilson described new orthodontic treatment methods and appliances designed by him.

Local vocalists Mrs. Barbara Brown and Walter Swap will be singing in the Celia Society concert scheduled for Apr. 1 at 8 p.m. at Sanders Theatre in Cambridge.

The music will be 19th Century German choral songs, including works by Brahms, Mendelssohn, and Schubert. For tickets, call 247-1465 weekdays or 332-6548 evenings and weekends.

Rev. John D. Barry, MEd, of the Parish of St. Anthony in Woburn, a Winchester native, was recently sworn in as an advocate of the Metropolitan Tribunal (marriage court) of the Archdiocese of Boston. Fr. Barry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Barry of Main street.

Two local men will be getting first hand exposure to some fine tennis matches this year: William T. Bird of Lawrence street and James R. Stewart of Winslow road have been selected as World Team Tennis officials for the 1978 season. Both start on opening night when the Boston Lobsters face the Los Angeles Strings, with Chris Evert and Ilie Nastase May 6.

A member of local tennis associations, Stewart is a regular contributor of articles to The Star about the town competitions. He's been a WTT official for two years.

Bird and his wife Joan have served as co-chairmen of the New England Tennis Umpires Association. This is his fifth consecutive year with WTT. Also a member of local tennis organizations, Bird has served as umpire at the U.S. Open at Forest Hills and other tournaments.

You hear a lot about the People's Republic of China on the news, but in truth, we know very little of what it's really like over there.

One Winchester resident is getting a first hand look. Stephen B. Murphy is one of a group of 15 Dartmouth College students and one history professor visiting China this week. The visit came about as a result of a personal invitation to one of the students, whose father, a New York City physician, counts members of the Chinese delegation to the UN among his patients.

We hope to hear more from Stephen about his trip after he gets back.

Long range school plans hearing 27th

The future shape of Winchester's schools will be proposed and discussed at a public hearing of the school committee Mar. 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Vinson-Owen School.

The hearing, originally scheduled for last Monday night, was postponed when the task force on long range planning decided they would not be ready to give their report.

The task force will be presenting the school committee with two possible plans for reorganization of the school system. The two plans involve closing three elementary schools, Noonan, Parkhurst, and either Washington or Lincoln; converting Lynch to an elementary school and maintaining one grade 7-8 school at McCall; and changing over to a four-year high school.

The school committee does not expect to take action on the plans the night of the hearing. Elections are the following Tuesday, and a new committee will be making the final decisions regarding the future of Winchester's schools.

Deny charges

Lahey Clinic seeks to cooperate with hospitals

After more than a year of lawsuits and public appeals, the question surrounding the proposed Lahey Clinic in Burlington is no longer whether or not the facility will be built, but rather what will Lahey's impact be on health care in the region.

Although a group of local doctors, some of them from Winchester, are still awaiting an appeal to the Mass. Supreme Court to stop construction of the Lahey Clinic, the Lahey administration expects to break ground for the project within a matter of weeks, perhaps days.

In their efforts to try to stop Lahey, local doctors have charged that Lahey sidestepped the certificate of need process, which was established by the state to avoid duplication of health services and control the costs of health care. The opponents asserted that Lahey expanded on the plans originally approved by the state in 1972 and said the impact of the proposed clinic would be to raise overall costs of health care in the region. A revised set of plans — including revised cost estimates — was approved by the state in December, 1976.

Lahey officials have denied the charges all along the way. In a recent interview with The Star, Dr. Robert Wise, Lahey's chief administrator, said that Lahey has kept the state "fully informed" throughout the determination of need process. And Dr. Wise contends that "Lahey will not escalate the cost of health care" in the region.

County selectmen discuss F78 budget's stranglehold; assessments up $6.4 million

Sen. Joseph Tully, Senate chairman of the Committee on Counties said little to clear up confusion about the Legislature's action on the fiscal 1978 Middlesex County budget at a meeting of the Middlesex County Selectmen's Association last Thursday night. But he did pledge to work more closely with the Middlesex County Advisory Board (MCAB) on future budgets.

Sudbury Selectman John Powers, a two-time member of the MCAB, said, "we're at the point where the county budget is strangling us. The lag time between the estimates and the final bills makes budgeting virtually impossible."

"This (county government) is no longer a small business. It's no longer small money. Our people don't understand why we're not doing anything about it and we better start getting some answers," Powers said.

Among the problems cited during the discussions were the invisibility of county government to citizens of the county communities; a communications problem between the County Commissioners, the MCAB and the Legislature; and the lack of participation of county communities on the MCAB.

The Selectmen learned Thursday night that the Legislature recently passed a bill that gives Boards of Selectmen power to appoint a citizen of their town as a designee to the MCAB. This legislation is similar to a measure passed last session giving this power to mayors of cities in which Selectmen were not included. Before this legislation, Selectmen and Mayors were the only ones who could represent a town or city on the MCAB with voting power.

It was hoped that these new measures would increase participation on the MCAB and give it more clout than it has had in the past with only a handful of the maximum number of people participating.

In discussion of the $37.5 million budget approved by the legislature at the very end of the 1977 legislative session, six months into the fiscal year, Tully took exception with the MCAB charges that he and the Legislature ignored both the Commissioners and the MCAB.

"Misinformation I don't mind," Tully said, "I'm here to clear it up. But remember, the Legislature wasn't voting a budget higher than recommended by the County Commissioners or the MCAB, but less."

He explained that the Legislature cut $3.4 million from the budget, $2.4 million more than was recommended by the MCAB.

The MCAB claims it recommended cuts of $800,000 from a budget of $37.1 million submitted by the County Commissioners, and that the Legislature had received additional budget requests of $3.5 million that the MCAB never knew about. Thus the Legislature was cutting from a budget of $40.6 million.

The result, whichever way one looks at it, is a gross budget of $37.5 million, an increase of $4.2 million over fiscal 1977.

But more important is the increase in the net budget, after monies available to reduce the county tax are deducted. The county assessments to communities in Middlesex county are up $6.4 million over fiscal 1977.

"The public is beginning to understand that there is no need to have counties," Powers said. "If we don't find a solution then the public will find a way to solve the problem...and eliminate counties."

Cites 'personal reasons'

Teacher resigns from high school; race, discipline problems blamed

The only black teacher at Winchester High School resigned last week because of racial slurs and disciplinary problems, both in and out of her classroom.

The school committee Monday night accepted "with regret" the resignation of Mrs. Charlene Clinton, a first-year Spanish teacher at WHS.

The problems apparently came to a head the week of Feb. 27, and on Feb. 28 Mrs. Clinton went down to WHS Principal Vincent Larocco's office and told him she wished to resign. Along with Foreign Language Department Chairman Barbara Jacobs, Larocco says he tried to convince Mrs. Clinton to stay, and she reportedly agreed to remain until the end of the week.

However she did not show up again on Monday and Tuesday of last week, and on Wednesday she handed in her resignation "for personal reasons."

"I was shocked when she came down to my office," said Larocco, who added he did not know personally of any difficulties she was having in the classroom. "They were never brought to my attention," he said.

The Star was unable to reach Mrs. Clinton for comment, as she is out of town; however, a reporter from the Woburn paper managed to reach her on the phone, and though she would not discuss the reasons for her leaving in detail, she did confirm that she had been the subject of some abuse from students, some of it racial.

Students in one of her classes confirmed reports that she had been the subject of racial slurs, and that the incidents dated back to the beginning of the year. The students said some of the comments had come through an open door from a study hall class adjacent to Mrs. Clinton's classroom.

There also have been reports that some of the students in her classes charged "nigger" at her; the Woburn paper reported that she did not deny that this happened.

There were also discipline problems. In one incident which occurred just before she resigned, a student tipped his desk over in class during an exam. Apparently the student had been disrupting the exam, and Mrs. Clinton had asked him to be quiet. When he refused, she asked again and said she would take away his exam. When he still refused to remain quiet, she took the exam away, and the student reacted by tipping over his desk.

Larocco, who confirmed this story, said the student, a senior, was immediately withdrawn from the class and consequently will not graduate this year. An earlier report that the student was expelled was denied by Larocco. (Only the school committee has the power to expel a student.)

"She resigned for personal reasons, and she asked that it remain that way," said Larocco. Mrs. Holden in the foreign language department also said Mrs. Clinton had asked her not to discuss the problems in public. "We regret very much that she resigned," Mrs. Holden said. "The kids were very much upset."

Students, administrators, and school committee members alike had high praise for Mrs. Clinton's abilities, and they said they had heard many favorable comments from parents. Larocco noted that a recommendation that she be rehired next year was already in writing when she resigned. And some of her students attempted to put together a petition to get her to stay.

Mrs. Holden declined to comment specifically on Mrs. Clinton's problems, saying only, "It would be a most unusual teacher who in the course of a year doesn't have a few problems."

Larocco said he had had no indications of trouble when visiting Mrs. Clinton's classroom, but noted that students would be likely to be "on their best behavior" at such times.

The incident drew angry response from the school committee. Chairman Robert Frank, admitting he had "no personal knowledge" of the incident, commented, "It's very unfortunate for any qualified, professional teacher to have to leave the system because she's been subjected to racial slurs or because student discipline got so out of hand that she could not effectively operate."

The board intends to draft a letter to Mrs. Clinton expressing their regret and praising her work in the system.

Board member Cathy Alexander, who spoke directly with Mrs. Clinton, released the following statement:

"I am saddened whenever Winchester loses a fine teacher, especially one apparently so capable and sensitive as Mrs. Clinton. I am especially saddened when we lose a teacher for reasons of bigotry of any kind, whether racial, religious, or otherwise. I expect that the administration will thoroughly investigate the circumstances of Mrs. Clinton's resignation. If, as claimed, the reasons for her leaving are racially related, then we should take immediate and positive steps to deal with the situation and to insure that teachers are never driven from Winchester by bigotry and prejudice."

After Monday's meeting, Frank said, "We have to be certain that any teacher receives sufficient administrative support so that that teacher is not driven out because of ad hominem attacks or because of discipline problems."

Mrs. Clinton started teaching in Winchester in September. She is a 1971 graduate of Smith College and earned her master's degree in 1972 from N.Y.U. She has also studied at Middlebury College in Vermont and schools in Hartford, Conn.

She taught for four years at the St. Paul's private school in New Hampshire and at Simmons College the year before she came to Winchester.

Public asked to comment on manager's budget

The finance committee is looking for public response to the town manager's proposed budget, released Monday, before making up their own version of the 1979 budget to be presented at town meeting in May.

A public hearing is scheduled for Tuesday night at 8 in the Winchester High School auditorium. Copies of the budget are available for public scrutiny in the selectmen's office. Copies are available for individual town meeting members.

Property taxes may go up by more than $ if the manager's budget holds true. The FinCom wants to hear from citizens — not just town meeting members — on what they think of the proposal.

District captains are requested to check with the purchasing agent to see how many of their TMMs have not picked up their budget books. The captains should pick up remaining copies by Friday afternoon and assure their distribution by the weekend. The FinCom wants to make sure the books are distributed in order to give TMMs plenty of time to go over the budget before hearing.

★ Lahey Clinic

spent about $12 million so far on plans and land purchases. The cost of the whole facility will be about $80 million, according to Dr. Wise.

One cost Dr. Wise declined to comment on was the price of all the lawsuits and appeals to public agencies. One estimate has it that both sides in the battle have spent close to half a million dollars each.

Dr. Wise says the basis for cooperation between Lahey and area hospitals would remain whether or not Winchester, Choate and Symmes decide to consolidate. Winchester is generally believed to be one of the stronger facilities; Dr. Wise goes so far as to say that it's a "foregone conclusion" that "Winchester will be the major maternity service in the area." As for Choate, they are already talking with Lahey; and the radiotherapy department at Symmes does have a consulting relationship with some of the Lahey physicians.

"Those hospitals will survive," contends Wise.

All during the court battle, opponents of Lahey have charged that Lahey's plans go beyond the certificate of need granted by the state, which spells out the scope of the facilities Lahey is certified to build.

"The allegations that we will build more than 200 beds are absolutely false," comments Dr. Wise. The state has okayed a 200-bed hospital to serve local residents, in addition to a variety of special out-patient services which Lahey has specialized in at its present facility in Boston.

"There's no way without a certificate of need for it that Lahey can build more than 200 beds," continues Wise. "It would be a financial disaster."

In addition to the hospital, Lahey will run a large ambulatory (out-patient) care center with a "full range" of diagnostic facilities; a community medical center; emergency room; radiotherapy and x-ray facilities; and educational and research facilities, according to Wise.

Will Lahey push up the cost of health care? Wise says no — "By 1980 we estimate the cost at $192 for a room per day; many hospitals are approaching that today." In fact, by providing advanced out-patient services, Wise feels Lahey might have the opposite effect and in fact decrease the average cost of health care in the region.

"That's the way costs are eventually going to be cut. The total number of patients hospitalized will decline as more and more of this type of facility are built," he says.

Cari Cyr, who represents a group of consumers in Burlington who have been actively supporting Lahey, says that expansion in the Route 128 area has created the need for more hospital beds in the area, and he feels that Lahey will "do a lot for the area economically." Adds Cyr, "As consumers, we really want this to happen. We want the fussing to stop and the cooperation to begin."

Another concern of the local doctors opposed to Lahey has been the potential competition. Dr. Wise and Cyr dismiss this, pointing out that the state has determined that the need exists.

"The fear that Lahey Clinic would siphon out patients from these hospitals is unfounded," Wise, who notes that 36 percent of Lahey's patients last year came from out of state. He says this proportion is unlikely to change much just because Lahey is moving from Boston to Burlington. And, he says, Lahey's impact on local private practice will be "minimal," because people do not tend to leave their private physicians to go to a large institution for routine health care.

Meanwhile the appeals process goes on, and the Lahey case may take months to get into court; consolidation plans have been tabled; and the Lahey Clinic is about to arrive in Burlington.

Selectmen's notes

Dean road

Selectmen voted to place the proposed layout of Dean road in the spring warrant article at town meeting.

The road, which was the subject of a public hearing a few weeks ago, has severe drainage problems. The selectmen's approval to bring the proposal to town meeting still leaves the question of abatements to abutters unanswered.

Four of the eight abutters on Dean road had said at the previous meeting they would not be opposed to the layout if close to 100 percent abatements could be provided by the town. Of these four abutters, two have corner lots and two have back lots. The four abutters said they would not receive 100 percent benefit from the road construction and therefore felt they should not pay 100 percent assessment.

Town Council Douglas Randall told the board that it had been customary in Winchester to allow for a 50 percent abatement on corner lots. He added only public and charity lands were subject to a 100 percent abatement.

Selectman Richard Wilsack proposed having a professional appraiser estimate the difference in benefit values and determine the abatements from that information.

The board was divided on the abatement issue and motioned to table the discussion until next week.

Selectman Harry Chelfelo said he was still opposed to the proposed drainage layout of the road. The drainage system has a 24 inch pipe entering a 12 inch pipe.

Methods and Procedures Committee

The board welcomed the recently appointed members of the Methods and Procedures Committee Monday night. The new members are Lloyd A. Franke, M. William Ebeling, Thomas C. McLellan, Dr. C.A. Christy, and R. P. Bigelow.

The committee will be working with the data processing function of the town.

Town Manager Thomas Groux said "The first year will concentrate on what kind of hardware we do have, what kind of replacements we can make, and how to best utilize our equipment."

Town Counsel and Town Engineer

The board of selectmen unanimously voted Douglas Randall to another one year term as Town Counsel of Winchester. Chairman Barbara Hankins praised Randall for the work he has done in the past as town counsel.

Town Manager Thomas Groux appointed John Garcia for a one year term as Town Engineer.

Licenses

Selectmen approved the following licenses at their Mar. 13 meeting.

A public amusement license was awarded to the Winchester Committee for ABC Inc., for a benefit concert in the high school auditorium Apr. 8.

Citizens' victrola licenses were granted to the Rotary Club for Apr. 28 and 29, Lincoln School parents for May 6 and Washington School Dads' Club for June 3.

Dancing Schools

Selectmen will place an article in the spring warrant to allow them to license dancing schools. After a brief discussion the board decided the power to grant licenses was necessary in the event that "undesirable" dancing schools tried to start up in Winchester.

Town Counsel Douglas Randall told the board that the town never approved the act to give the selectmen this power. He added the granting of licenses to schools operating in churches was not necessary.

Selectman Arthur Dunbar said "I don't see any problem with the schools that are in town now, but what if we have some undesirable dancing schools come in. I think we should have the power to license."

The licensing question came up a few weeks ago when a license application was received by the board. The board will continue to grant licenses, with their ratification dependant on town meeting approval of the warrant article.

Comptroller Salary

Chairman Barbara Hankins told selectmen that the wording in the town comptroller's job description may have resulted in a lower salary proposal by the Personnel Board of the town.

The personnel board had recommended a salary level of between $17,400 and $23,900 for the comptroller. The present salary level has a maximum of $27,000.

Hankins said the job description lists data processing knowledge as "highly desirable." She said if the wording were changed to "required" it could make a major difference in the personnel board's proposed salary.

The selectmen voted to change the wording to "required" and send the job description back to the personnel board for further consideration. The board has tentatively scheduled two interviews for comptroller candidates Friday night.

Conflict of Interest

The board approved a conflict of interest memo written by town counsel to give to all members of town boards and committees.

Chairman Barbara Hankins said the letter was written to clarify the conflict of interest law and the board's designation of special employees.

It states, in part, "all appointed persons are 'municipal employees,' fully subject to all prohibitions contained in the conflict of interest law."

One of the prohibitions is not receiving money from anyone in a matter that the town has a direct and substantial interest.

A municipal employee must not contract with the town, disclose financial interests in town contracts, and must not "secure for yourself any economic or personal advantage by (your) position with the town."

The board has the power to designate "special employee" status. This status allows for a looser interpretation of the law.

The board had previously stated they would reserve this status for employees who were serving on ad hoc committees, and only in special cases.

Cemetery Requests

The board of selectmen voted not to put a minimum on cemetery requests after Town Manager Thomas Groux told the board most requests were at least $200, which would provide for standard care.

Groux said that the town could not afford to accept requests for additional care, such as monument care. Monument care is not a normal provision of the cemetery policy.

The standard care would provide for flowers once or twice a year, in addition to routine grounds care.

Audit firm

Arthur Anderson and Company has been chosen by the selectmen to perform the town audit for the year ending June 1978.

Chairman Barbara Hankins said the board unanimously favored the company after a recent interview.

Recommendations of the firm from other towns were all "extremely complimentary," Hankins said.

West Chardon Road

Selectmen voted to submit the proposed layout of West Chardon road as a public way for a spring town meeting warrant article.

The proposed road will be paved short of the town forest, with a gravel footpath constructed as entrance to the forest.

The total cost of the road will be $30,000, town engineer John Garcia said. The return in betterments to the town from the abutters will be $17,000.

The abutters of the road have agreed to share the cost of the betterments equally, rather than according to frontage, as they are usually computed.

Eli Bortman of 25 West Chardon rd. said the abutters have agreed to share the equal betterments because they will be benefiting equally from the road's construction.

Aricia Lane street light

Following a recommendation from the Traffic Advisory Committee, the board voted to install a street light at the intersection of Aricia Lane and Ridge Street.

A petition of 26 residents was presented to the board in favor of installing the light for safety reasons.

Budget reports available

Town Manager Thomas Groux announced budget reports for town meeting members will be available to pick up at the town hall on March 13. Groux said if members are unable to pick up the reports, the town can arrange to have them delivered.

Carnival Rules and Regulations

Selectmen voted to approve the proposed carnival rules and regulations that have been discussed at past board meetings. The rules will be posted at town hall.

Among the rules accepted was a requirement MDC police be used if Manchester Field is the site for a carnival.

Licenses are limited for a three day period, with specified hours of the event to be set by selectmen.

The board also noted there will be no occupancy of the grounds overnight, except for security purposes. Specific restrictions on noise and lights will also be imposed by the board.

Board vacancies

The board noted a list of vacancies of appointed positions in the town.

On the Board of Appeal, there is one vacancy for a three year term. There are three vacancies for Associate Members, with terms of one, two, and three years.

There is one vacancy for three year terms on the Commissioners of Trust Funds, the Registrar of Voters, and the Town Forest Committee.

The Council on Aging has four vacancies for three year terms. The Historical Commission has three vacancies for three year terms.

Five vacancies for one year terms are for the Committee on Names and the Student Government Day Committee. Seven vacancies are on the Winter Pond Study Committee.

The Insurance Committee has one two year term vacancy and the Term Insurance Committee has one one year term vacancy.

Winchester Trails

Birds of a feather don't always end up together

An exhibit of birds' nests is currently attracting a lot of attention in the children's section of the Winchester Public Library. This exhibit was prepared by Winchester Trails.

The nests are put together with a wide variety of materials: twigs, grasses, rootlets, feathers, hair, moss, feathers, mud and even pieces of plastic or paper. Each bird builds a nest typical of its species, in form and siting as well as materials. All the nests in the exhibit are identified and include a description of where the nest was found.

Nesting is an extremely important factor in bird life. It is governed mainly by instinct, and is often a highly ritualized behavior. Nest building may be a part of the courting procedure, with the male contributing materials and sometimes labor also. Despite the large number of nests pairs sometimes making two or three in a season, only a small proportion of the eggs are successfully hatched and the young brought to maturity. Many hazards await the mature bird too, so that a prodigious number of eggs must be laid to maintain the population.

With few exceptions, such as eagles and ospreys, nests are not used again once the young have fledged. However, nest collecting should not be undertaken except by qualified persons for educational or scientific purposes. If a nest is observed while in use, care should be taken to keep a good distance so as not to disturb the birds.

24-hour dog law

Winchester dog owners are now subject to a 24-hour dog leash law. Fines for first offense are $10; second offense, $15; third offense, $20.

Trails planning talks, slides on natural history

Winchester Trails will present a series of four programs in March and April of interest to all who enjoy field natural history.

The first will be of special interest to parents of all third and fourth graders who go on nature walks as part of their school science program. The introductory slide talk, just as it is given in the classroom by a Trails volunteer prior to each walk, will be given Mar. 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the public library. Parents will thus have an opportunity to learn the type of material and approach to natural science which Trails guides use on their walks at Smith and Long Ponds.

On the following Wednesday, Apr. 5 also at the library at 7:30 p.m. Sally Wund, official photographer for Winchester Trails will show some of her color slides of spring flowers and trees. This will be an opportunity to learn something about local plants before they appear in the onrush of spring.

Later in April there will be two unusual outdoor programs to be held at the Girl Scout cabin on South Border rd.

On Apr. 12 at 9 a.m., Winchester Trails will have as guest speaker Neil Jorgensen, who is a member of the teaching staff at Wheelock College. Jorgensen will share his expertise and knowledge of teaching nature to children. This should be of value not only to Trails guides but also to leaders of scouts or other children's programs involving nature study.

Finally, on Apr. 26 at 8 a.m. also at the Girl Scout cabin, Dr. James P. Lazell will teach a short course on native reptiles and amphibians. Dr. Lazell is author of "This Broken Archipelago" concerning reptiles and amphibians of Cape Cod, and a scientific staff member of Massachusetts Audubon.

Winchester Trails welcomes everyone to any or all of these programs. No registration is necessary. For further information call Mrs. Stephen Moore or Mrs. Albert Vanderbilt.

Out of the closet racism n. 1: a belief that race is the primary determinant of human traits and capacities and that racial differences produce an inherent superiority of a particular race. — Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary.

It hasn't been much of an issue, at least not out in the open, in Winchester for a while now — not since METCO brought some of those well-hidden feelings to the surface a couple of years ago.

But it's been there: Sifting up the back stairways at the high school, leaking out under someone's breath, even spoken openly in public places (as long as no one is listening in too closely).

The persistence of this undercurrent in American life, and in Winchester, was dramatically demonstrated last week when the only black teacher at Winchester High School quit after only six months in the system.

Charlene Clinton was a veteran teacher, hired by the school department last summer, who had gained a good deal of respect for her talents from her students, colleagues, and the administration. She taught Spanish at the high school.

She insists she quit "for personal reasons." But behind those personal reasons lies a progression of racial taunts and misbehavior by students at the high school which she claims built up over a long period of time to a climax just before she resigned.

And now racism in Winchester is no longer a backroom issue. It's been on the radio, in the Herald and the Globe, and there are stories in the local papers. The media refuse to ignore or let go of such incidents, despite Mrs. Clinton's desire to avoid discussing the issue, and despite the administration's determination to honor her confidence. She didn't want to talk about it, perhaps for fear of what might happen to other minority teachers and students in Winchester as a result.

But the media won't let go, because we cannot allow this to happen, not to any person in the Winchester School System, nor to the system itself.

The situation at the high school is a difficult one to assess. The principal, Vincent Larocco, says he had no knowledge of the alleged racial taunts and the disciplinary problems in Mrs. Clinton's classes. If it had been going on for so long, how could the administration not know? Why didn't Mrs. Clinton come to them for help?

The students knew about it, and probably some of Mrs. Clinton's colleagues. But they might not have wanted to take the responsibility of making complaints on her behalf. And she, a first year teacher in the system, would not want to give the administration the impression that she couldn't handle her classes.

And while Principal Larocco said he had no direct knowledge of any specific incidents, he didn't doubt that such things might be going on. But when he goes around to visit a class, students are not likely to show their true colors in front of him.

The situation must have been pretty extreme: the administration, school committee members, teachers and students tried to get Mrs. Clinton to stay. But the atmosphere in her classroom must have been too hot. In one incident, a student, disciplined by her for disrupting the class during an exam, flipped over his desk. Perhaps the possibility of violence was too close for her to stay.

The administration should certainly offer help when it's called for, but who's to do the calling? If it was general knowledge among students at the high school that these things were going on, as some have suggested, why didn't they speak up?

Perhaps the students tolerated it because their parents tolerate similar attitudes. But one would like to have a little more faith in the kids.

Some may be saying Mrs. Clinton just couldn't take it, that she wouldn't have lasted a day in South Boston.

That's not the point. She shouldn't have to take it at all. She left the system because she had heard enough, had taken as much as she could stomach, and decided that it wasn't her battle. That's probably why she isn't talking, and she's right. It isn't her battle. It's Winchester's. —DKF

Integrity

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I thought you put out an excellent article on Senator Rotondi in your 9th February issue.

How could anyone who knows the senator question his moral integrity? Question your right to agree or disagree with anyone on any issue and confuse the question by attacking his personal integrity and you come out of the debate with your integrity in question. I've known "Buddy" since we were kids and I am convinced he will become a great leader in Massachusetts if everyone gives him a chance to do his work. As a proponent of "right to life" legislation, I cannot agree with his voting, but I would fight for his right to vote his conscience the way he feels. He is an honest man, a good catholic, and a fine leader.

I am certainly glad he plans to run for election another time because he has done so much work in his first session so successfully.

Winchester's McCall hockey team and their coaches, Jim MacDonochie and Dave LaFauci, would like to express their sincere appreciation to Mr. Hugo LaFauci Sr. and Mr. Al Ruggles.

Their generous donations to the McCall hockey banquet, held Mar. 2, made the night a tremendous success.

For the people

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In last week's local papers, there was a favorable evaluation of the town manager made by the board of selectmen. It has come to my attention that Town Manager Tom Groux designed the form and questions that would be used to evaluate his work. I want to congratulate Harry Chelato, a native of Winchester, for taking the only intelligent point of view when he said that Tom Groux hasn't been here long enough to be evaluated.

This is the time to have new faces on the board of selectmen, because this board has not been kept informed at all times of town business.

For instance, the chairman openly admitted that she was not aware of the catch basin contract which I brought out when three former charter commission members appeared before the board last fall. She was completely surprised to learn that this work was let out to contractors by Groux and the head of the DIPW without the board's knowledge. Also, she didn't know about Bob Scholl's resignation, which took place only weeks before that of Mike Louise. This alone discredits her evaluation of Tom Groux.

Mrs. Hankins also proposed a $1500 raise for the town manager last year, a raise not justified because he hasn't been here long enough. When the board voted on this pay raise, it was not unanimous. Groux's "1978 gross pay" will be over $32,000.

Dissension still prevails among town employees. The resignations to date, including that of Jim Costello (a tragedy) prove beyond a doubt that the fault lies with the town manager and the present board of selectmen, excepting Mr. Chelato.

It is a Buddy Club, consisting of the majority of the board of selectmen, the town manager and the director of public works... and the town suffers. The board was elected by the people, for the people, but they haven't been "for the people."

Memories

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This is a poem with memories of Matthew, I promise I'll think of you in most everything I do.

This is hard in all this confusion, I couldn't believe it, it seemed like an illusion.

How can we forget that you're gone for good? If we could bring you back you know we would.

But we can't Matt so please understand, that we'll never be able to hold your hand. It's so hard, just so hard to believe, that your time had come for you to leave.

We'll miss you walking home from school everyday, saying to your mother you're going out to play.

But Matt, play times are over just for now, and if we ever get over that we'll not know how.

It's going to be hard for ma and dad to see you in bed, and it will be hard to get over that you're really gone and dead.

We all know what it's like to live behind closed doors, and to think Matt, that your life is no longer yours.

We, I'm sure, are all sorry it had to end this way. But what can we honestly do or say? With loving memories,

Susanne Hussey

Poison Prevention Week

By The Observer

Fred McCormack of McCormacks Apothecary is the local chairman of National Poison Prevention Week, which starts Mar. 19.

McCormack said that more than 100,000 children under the age of five accidentally swallow poisonous household substances each year.

"Spring cleaning is an ideal time to clean out cabinets and closets where such potentially poisonous substances as medicines, cleaners, solvents, and pesticides are stored," he said. "These products should be destroyed if no longer useful, and if retained, they should be securely sealed and, whenever possible, locked up." He added it is essential to resecure all packages after use and never to transfer contents from one container to another.

Every household with young children should have at least one ounce of Syrup of Ipecac in the home. McCormack explained that the syrup, which should be administered only after calling a doctor, is used to induce vomiting in certain poison cases when a doctor recommends it.

Other good housekeeping rules include: Store internal medicines separately from other household products.

Avoid taking medicines in front of the children. They "imitate" grown-ups.

Never refer to medicines as candy.

When household substances are in use, never let them out of an adult's sight.

Keep poisonous substances in their original containers with labels attached. Never transfer them to cups or soft drink bottles.

Keep all products properly labeled and read labels before using.

Always keep a light on when giving or taking medicines.

The oldest resident in Winchester is being sought by the board of selectmen. The board will award the Boston Post Cane, a traditional honor for the oldest citizen in town, once he or she is found.

The Council on Aging recently sent a letter to the board stating that Katherine Burns, born March 27, 1881, of 33 Canal st., is the oldest resident. Several selectmen have indicated that they know residents that are older.

The board hopes to soon find out who the rightful holder of the cane should be.

Patrons of the chuckwagon at football games and various town events may be pleased to hear that the structure is in for an overhaul.

The Winchester Jaycees are going to completely rebuild the wagon from frame on up, starting within a week or so. The organization is picking up the cost of renovating the wagon, which is owned by the Friends of the Winchester Band.

The Massachusetts Department of Education is once again taking up their Child Search campaign. The purpose of the project is to locate all special needs children, ages 3 through 21, who are not receiving special education services and are not in school.

'Kiss Me Kate' rehearsals go on; show Mar. 17, 18

By George Parker

"We've got less time than you think!" has been the motto of all involved in the musical for the last two weeks, as March 17 and 18, the performance dates, loom closer and closer — less time for Greg Rohr and Pauline Lewin, the leads, to memorize their lines; less time for Mrs. Keller to whip the chorus into shape; less time for the dancers and the orchestra to smooth out their performances; and less time for people to buy tickets to another excellent Curtains and Cue musical.

This year's cast is headed by a newcomer to the stage but not to theater, for Greg Rohr, though he has been stage manager for two years, has never been in the cast of a musical before "Kiss Me, Kate." As Fred Graham, he tackles the task of starring in his own production. This, in turn, means he has the most lines of any member of the cast, and the most blocking to learn.

However, Pauline Lewin is close behind in number of lines as Lilli Vanessi. Fred's opposite on and off stage, as she feuds with her former husband, Pauline is also a newcomer to the Curtains and Cue musicals, this being her first with a featured part.

Ann-Louise Casey, on the other hand, had the lead in the last Lynch musical as a seventh grader, and now has a lead in "Kiss Me, Kate" as a sophomore. Her part, though, fits her like a glove and she plays it to the hilt, giving her all in the musical as sweet Bianca on stage, and fast-moving Lois Lane offstage.

Her offstage moves attract Bill Calhoun, a reckless gambler played by John Fairbanks, a veteran of many musicals. Calhoun causes all the trouble that develops the plot, for he incurs a mere $10,000 craps debt and prompts the arrival of a pair of gangsters, John Rule and Stuart Downs, as the gangsters, proceed to terrorize Fred Graham, claiming that he signed a $10,000 IOU after a wild craps game.

Graham, as usual, manages to turn disaster into good fortune as he uses the gangsters to prevent the departure of Miss Vanessi from the show. She has called her lover, Harrison Howell, a big wheel in Washington, to rescue her from this brute of a director.

However, all's well that end well, according to Shakespeare, whose play, "The Taming of the Shrew," is the basis of "Kiss Me, Kate." Ah, but you'll have to see it to find out how it ends.

Tickets are available from people involved in the production and at the door for the March 17 and 18 performances of "Kiss Me, Kate," showing in the high school auditorium at 8.

Come support your high school (And have a good time, too!).

A better effort

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This letter regards to the situation of the water in the town of Winchester. I think that if Winchester can't do something about the bacteria in the water that they should ask the state for help, or at least notify the people of Winchester about it within a reasonable time-period.

Furthermore, they are asking us to pay for water which is not fully wholesome! If they can't do any of the above, I think they should try to make a better effort towards getting the bacteria out of the water as fully as they can without leaving as much chlorine in the water as they did last time. Many small house pets died as a result of the level of chlorine.

Dedication

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This is a dedication to little Gangi, Jay. My thoughts of you will be with me every day.

I know you've had good times and sometimes bad, and I'll only remember the good times you and I had.

At times like this it's time to say goodbye, when close friends like you Jay have to die. My memories of you will be with me forever, for me to forget you will always be never.

I'll also never forget your cheerful and gay smile, for that won't be forgotten for such a long while.

It was a sin for you to die because you were so young, and your life was certainly not yet done.

Your family's love will never be left behind, for your memories will forever be in their mind.

But you're gone now Jay, you're gone for good, if you could bring you back you know we would.

And your life, unfortunately will never anymore be a part of anyone else's, even through an open door.

With loving memories,
Susanne Hussey

(Ed. note: It's not our normal policy to print poetry or expressions of sympathy in The Star, but we felt the effort and sentiments expressed in these two pieces by Susanne Hussey called for an exception.)

Long remembered

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On behalf of the senior citizens of Winchester may I express sincere appreciation to the members of the Elks Club who invited us to a turkey dinner on Sunday, March 12, 1978. Everyone who attended enjoyed the delicious dinner, the delightful musical program and the gracious hospitality extended to all.

Occasions such as these are always enjoyable, particularly for those who live alone and who look forward to opportunities to meet others and make new friends. The Elks are to be commended for their concern for the elderly. It was a day that will long be remembered. Again, many thanks.

Bay State roll call

The Senate. The Senate held seven roll calls last week, raising the 1978 total to 15. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local Senators' votes on 5 key tallies.

BB Guns (S852)—Senate defeated 25-8, a bill banning the manufacture and sale of pistol length BB and pellet guns.

Supporters of the ban argued the easily concealed guns are dangerous and a threat to public safety, and claimed the dangers far outweigh the use of the guns for sporting purposes.

Some opponents argued it would be better to enforce stricter rules regarding the ownership and handling of such guns, rather than banning them altogether. Others said they would support a ban on the sale of such guns, but noted the bill also bans the manufacturing of them, which would hurt the Massachusetts company which manufactures and sells the pistols nationwide. Senator Rotondi voted for the ban.

Gambling Order (H1002)—Senate defeated 25-8, an amendment to the bill authorizing the Government Regulations Committee to continue its study of the possibility of establishing a gaming division in the Attorney General's office, designed to investigate and develop ways of establishing legalized gambling in Massachusetts. The amendment would not allow any funds to be spent on the study until a written recommendation from the Attorney General, indicating the advisability of establishing the gaming division, is received by the Senate.

Amendment supporters argued the Committee has already spent $90,000 during its six year study and is wasting taxpayers' money, and claimed an opinion on the matter by the Attorney General would be valuable.

Amendment opponents argued the study is worthwhile and should lead to legalized gambling which will raise money for property tax relief. They also argued the amendment is another of many attempts by opponents of the study and opponents of a gaming division to delay final passage of the bill. Rotondi voted against the amendment.

Studded Tires (H196)—Senate rejected 31-6, a bill banning the use of metal studded snow tires in the state, except for emergency fire vehicles, and providing a $50 fine to offenders.

Supporters argued studded tires severely reduce the life of paved roadways causing expensive resurfacing which costs the taxpayer money, and claimed research has shown that studded tires do not reduce the risk of accident.

Opponents argued studded snow tires are useful in winter driving, pointed to the "Great Blizzard" of February when studded tires were helpful, claimed the tires do prevent accidents by enabling vehicles to stop faster on icy roads, and noted the tire ban would be confusing and difficult because some bordering states allow their use. Rotondi voted for allowing their use.

No-smoking areas (S410)—Senate rejected 17-7, a bill requiring restaurants that seat more than 30 people to provide a no-smoking area.

Supporters argued the bill has worked in other states that have adopted it, and noted non-smokers should have a right to be protected against dangerous "second-hand smoke."

Opponents argued many restaurants have voluntarily established no-smoking areas, and claimed that restaurants should have the choice of providing no-smoking areas if they desire, but should not be forced to by the government. Rotondi voted for the no-smoking area requirement.

SST Ban (S1265)—Senate refused to table (defeat) 27-1, a bill banning landing of SST's at Logan Airport.

Ban supporters argued the SST's speed would cause buildings to vibrate and cause excessive noise pollution in the area.

Ban opponents defended the technological advances and speed of the SST, and argued banning them from Logan would halt development of the airport's advances. Rotondi voted to ban the SST's.

The House. The House held nine roll calls last week, making the 1978 total 26. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local Representatives' votes on the five key tallies.

Abolish county government (H1517)—House gave initial approval 145-76, to a bill creating a special commission to study the feasibility and possible benefits of abolishing county government in Massachusetts.

Supporters argued it was time to investigate the whole matter of county government, claimed it serves very little purpose, and noted it is riddled with patronage and is a waste of taxpayers' money.

Opponents argued county government served a purpose and performs useful functions and, while admitting it was not perfect, they noted the answer is to make changes in it, not abolish it. Representative Saltmarsh voted for the study.

County Advisory Boards (H2521)—House gave initial approval 141-80, to a measure increasing the power of County Advisory Boards. The measure allows an advisory board, if its recommendation is rejected on a budget matter, to delete or reduce any line item in the county budget, with a two-thirds vote.

Supporters argued the bill gives the advisory boards increased and legitimate power by allowing them to reduce or delete items in the budget, and claimed this will serve as a further watchdog and safeguard over county government and the spending of taxpayers' money.

Opponents argued the bill goes too far and places too much power in the hands of the advisory boards, rather than the County Commissioners, who are elected by the voters and are responsible to the people. Saltmarsh voted for the bill.

County Budget Increases (H3264)—House gave initial approval 155-63, to a bill prohibiting the state from increasing any budget submitted by any county beyond the amounts formally requested by a majority of the County Commissioners.

Supporters argued the bill would help stop county budgets from being inflated and filled with unnecessary patronage jobs when they reach the Legislature, and noted it would save taxpayers' money.

Opponents argued the bill was unnecessary and too strict, noting that situations change and after a budget is submitted, County Commissioners and Advisory Boards may inform the Legislature of increased costs and budget requests. They noted that under this bill, the Legislature would be unable to increase the budget. Saltmarsh voted for the bill.

Blue Ribbon Commission (H4632)—House barely defeated 114-97, a motion to suspend rules to allow introduction of an order requiring the Judiciary Committee to hold a public hearing on March 13 on the bill creating a blue ribbon commission investigation on corruption in state government construction contracts.

Supporters argued the hearing should be held as soon as possible and saw no reason to wait until Mar. 23 as scheduled, claimed the matter was too important to delay, and some noted they were skeptical of The Speaker's promise to have the bill on the House floor by Apr. 10.

Some opponents argued the Judiciary Committee Chairman has the power to set the date and he has set it for Mar. 23 because court reorganization and St. Patrick's Day take up the weeks before that, while others noted The Speaker has shown his good intentions by promising to have the bill out of Committee and on the House floor by Apr. 10. Saltmarsh voted for rule suspension to allow introduction of the order.

Smoking Ban (H11779)—House refused to reconsider 126-100, its earlier defeat of a bill prohibiting smoking in areas of many public places including the MBTA, schools, colleges, polling places, and many doctors' waiting rooms.

Supporters of the bill argued non-smokers should be protected from the dangers of "second-hand smoke" and claimed they should have a right to breathe clean air and not be subjected to smoke which is harmful.

Opponents argued the bill goes too far, claimed it infringes upon the rights of smokers, and many noted the problems between smokers and non-smokers will have to be solved in other ways. Saltmarsh voted to reconsider the previous defeat of the bill.

Three celebrated living composers met recently with members of the Masterworks Choral in anticipation of the 1978 Masterworks Festival of Music.

Choral vice president Richard L. Pharo of Ivy Circle was among those who met Robert Starer, Krzysztof Penderecki, and Daniel Pinkham.

Starer's Images of Man, commissioned in 1973 by CBS Television, will receive its New England premiere in the Masterworks Festival. Penderecki's Stabat Mater, written for three unaccompanied choruses will also receive its New England premiere.

Pinkham, music director of King's Chapel in Boston, is the composer of Fanfares, a composition with text based on the Old Testament.

All three works, as well as those by William Bergsma and Frank Martin, will be performed by the Masterworks Choral under the direction of Allen Lannom on Sunday, March 19 at 8 p.m. in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge.

Winchester residents may order Festival tickets from Richard Pharo by phoning 729-0857.

A Real Thirst-Quencher

Family Health/Today's Health November 1977, p. 16

How wholesome is the glass of cold water you just filled at the kitchen sink? No one knows for sure, and this fact has Congress so worried that it has inaugurated a new national program requiring all states to monitor their water supplies. Since the Center for Disease Control says that at least 4,000 bouts of illness a year can be linked to impure water (other sources set the estimate much, much higher), it's clear that even the best efforts of smaller municipalities to provide uncontaminated water have been inadequate.

A major difficulty is that even the national experts aren't sure what all the potential contaminants are, or in what quantities they become dangerous. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has established maximum permissible levels for ten chemicals (arsenic, barium, cadmium, chromium, fluoride, lead, mercury, nitrates, selenium and silver) and four pesticides (endrin, lindane, methoxychlor, toxaphene), not to mention bacteria, radioactivity and turbidity (cloudiness caused by particles suspended in the water). But new pollutants keep turning up faster than they can be studied.

During an 18-month review of 161 water contaminants, the National Research Council found in drinking water 22 suspected carcinogens, 6 organic chemicals with a potential for causing birth defects, 45 possibly toxic chemicals—and 61 chemicals about which so little is known that their effects could not even be guessed. In some cases, the contaminants were in quantities small enough to boggle the mind (a billionth or trillionth part of the water)—but not necessarily too small to shake up the body. The EPA cautions that "one can get sick from a single microscopic virus particle." By way of reassurance, the EPA adds that only two of the substances for which standards have been set (coliform bacteria and nitrate) offer an immediate threat to health when overdoses occur.

Under the new national program, water suppliers must periodically test water systems, reveal any violations of EPA standards, take action to correct the situation and, if necessary, inform the public of the problem. Thus, you may read in the newspaper, hear on television or receive a letter telling you that your water has been contaminated. If this should happen, you would also be advised on what precautions to take. One example: If there's excess nitrate in your water, you would be told not to give it to infants under three months old, and not to boil it since boiling increases nitrate concentration.

Winchester's unfiltered water supply is exposing the public to many dangerous elements from the Reservoir and in the distribution system. Home water filtration, being at the end of the line, can protect the family's health from both sources. If a Municipal Water Treatment Plant were built, only the dangers from the Reservoir could be eliminated while the problems in the distribution system would remain the same.

Chlorine used to kill live bacteria, bugs, worms, and fresh water shrimp is used as a pesticide. When pesticides are used in growing fruits and vegetables, it is wise to wash it off before eating. It is also wise to remove the poisonous chlorine in tap water after the chlorine has done its job.

The Multi-Pure superfine carbon filtration at home can remove all of the chlorine and its dangerous byproducts, harmful bacteria, heavy metal pipe corrosion, asbestos fibers, and trap out viruses.

The Multi-Pure Home Water Purifier is a simple solution to our major drinking water problems that even the Government can't solve.

School committee notes

Open enrollment

The school board will be considering whether to continue open enrollment next year or cancel the program until school closing plans are underway the following year.

Superintendent William MacDonald asked the board to consider the one-year moratorium because of fears that parents at the Parkhurst School would pull their children out next year in anticipation of the closing of that school.

The problem may be moot, since Parkhurst may close down this coming September. But if it does not close, open enrollment may delete the enrollment at the school to the point where staffing would become a serious problem.

In talking over his idea with the board Monday night, MacDonald said he would also consider two possible exceptions to the moratorium: one would allow brothers and sisters of students transferred from the Wyman School to move into schools with their siblings; the other would allow parents of kindergarten children slated to attend Parkhurst next year to send their children elsewhere.

No final decision has been reached, and MacDonald urged the committee to put off any such move until after consideration of the long range plans for school closings. Those plans will be the subject of a public hearing at the Vinson-Owen School Mar. 27 at 7:30 p.m.

Band director

The board decided Monday that half a band director is not at all better than one. They voted unanimously to reinstate Band Director John Beyrent to full-time status. Beyrent's position had been reduced to a half-time position as part of the effort to cut next year's budget.

The board's move Monday came as a result of numerous calls and contacts from parents to committee members and administrators. Most agreed that Beyrent had come into a very difficult situation after the firing of the previous band director and had done an outstanding job.

Another factor was agreement among the committee and personnel officers that it would be difficult at best to find anyone to take on the role of band director as a half-time position, and there were indications that Beyrent, if forced to work half-time in the system, would have left.

With enrollments on the way down and staff cutbacks a certainty in the next few years, the school board is going to be facing similar, difficult choices. Beyrent is the only member of the music department who is not tenured, so he was the only person whose assignment could be cut back when cuts were called for. The same situation will undoubtedly arise in other departments in the future, and the system stands to lose some good teachers in the process.

Let them eat cake

The Girl Scouts of Troop 511 from the Ambrose School provided some goodies for the school board and Sanborn House personnel Monday and were duly thanked.

The board enjoyed choice selections from a large plate of cakes and cookies, and Supl. MacDonald got a plant as a present for his office.

Class size, tenure on school board's Monday agenda

The next regular meeting of the school committee is scheduled for Monday at the Sanborn House on High street at 7:30 p.m.

On the agenda are: the policy on minimum class sizes; kindergarten sessions; custodians as lunchroom supervisors; tenure elections; and curriculum reports on science in-service courses and reading.

A newly elected committee will meet Mar. 30 with the finance committee to go over the budget. For time and place contact the school department.

Mini-college

Every Wednesday after school at 2:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school, the guidance office will be conducting a Mini-College Program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Mar. 22, no program is scheduled.

On Wednesday, Mar. 29, admissions representatives from the following institutions plan to attend: The Palfrey Street School, and the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Northeast dinner-theater this Tuesday

Culinary arts students of Northeast Regional Vocational High School will present another in their successful series of dinner-theatres on Tuesday, Mar. 21.

In addition to a multi-course meal, professional entertainment will be presented throughout the evening banquet. Previous dinner-theatre presentations have been enthusiastically received throughout the 12 communities in the district and beyond.

Reservation information for the Mar. 21 dinner-theatre may be obtained by calling Northeast Regional in Wakefield (246-0810).

Proceeds from these events help underwrite student trips to culinary centers in Europe during their senior year.

Unitarian Coop Nursery School has '79 openings

The Unitarian Cooperative Nursery School has openings for three and four year old girls for the 1978-1979 school year.

The nursery is a non-profit, non-sectarian school where parents and children participate in a cooperative learning experience. Mothers and fathers are encouraged to take an active role in the school by assisting the teacher during class time and volunteering to serve on various committees which are necessary for the smooth operation of the school.

Enrollment information and applications may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Patymac Hewitt at 729-7584.

Commencement Address By Robert S. Frank Jr.

Chairman, Winchester School Committee
June 1977

I want to talk for a moment or two about the things that I believe are really important in a Winchester education. I want to speak of values which School Committee members address all too infrequently. And, I want to talk about attributes which, at a time when we seek to measure and quantify success, cannot be accurately measured or intelligently quantified.

As you—the members of the Class of 1977—reflect upon your time in school in Winchester, ask yourself a few questions:

Was I taught to receive and perceive accurately the ideas of others?

Did I learn to analyze ideas and issues carefully, dispassionately and on their individual merits?

In so doing, did I learn that most ideas of consequence are not subject to categorical analysis, that they frequently contain a number of constituent parts, and that there are considerations and nuances and sub-issues within each of those parts?

Did I also learn that ideas are espoused by people and are often accompanied by emotion, but that the proponent of an idea and the emotion which surrounds it, while not irrelevant, must be separated from the orderly and rational consideration of that idea?

Have I learned to formulate my own ideas and - closely related - have I developed the independence and courage to state, and to act on, those ideas even when they may not be readily accepted?

Was I taught to articulate my thoughts clearly and cogently?

Have I learned to value people, rather like ideas, fairly and on their individual merits, with an appreciation of their complexity and with knowledge of their strengths and weaknesses? But have I learned to deal with people, rather unlike ideas, with tolerance for their shortcomings, awareness of their needs and sensitivity to their feelings?

Have I learned to use my abilities to the limit of their potential and to expand that potential whenever and wherever possible?

Have I developed a degree of appreciation for great literature, music and art as well as an understanding of, and critical respect for, the institutions of our society?

If you can respond affirmatively to those questions—now and 25 years from now—then, at the bottom, your education here in Winchester has been a success and it has been a success whether or not you received twin 700's on your College Boards, mastered Bernoulli's principal, received a 5 on the AP French exam, learned about Metternich or Rutherford B. Hayes, or scored a goal or made a basket. I hope that you, and we, succeeded. Time will tell.

Enough said. This is a happy and proud day for the Town and for the Class of 1977. We thank you for your constructive leadership. We admire your many and diverse skills. We applaud your successes. We recognize the singularity of each of your members.

On behalf of the School Committee, the School Department, and, if I may presume to speak for it, on behalf of the Town as a whole, I congratulate you as a class and as individuals. Thank you for working so hard and doing so well.

An Open Letter to the People of Winchester:

The town elections we have followed over the years have been numerous and I have always marveled at how many good, dedicated and well qualified individuals have run for office with the prime motivation—to contribute as much as they could for the good of the community—and that is what is so unique about our town; the amazing number of outstanding and fine people who seem to be there just when the need is greatest!

The next several years could well be critical for Winchester and we will need and must have the best, most qualified and experienced people we can find to guide our town toward a healthy and secure future. That is why I am writing this letter for Barbara Hankins who is running for re-election to the Board of Selectmen. It is not only important that she wins, but that she wins the election overwhelmingly and gets the endorsement of the entire community.

Sincerely,

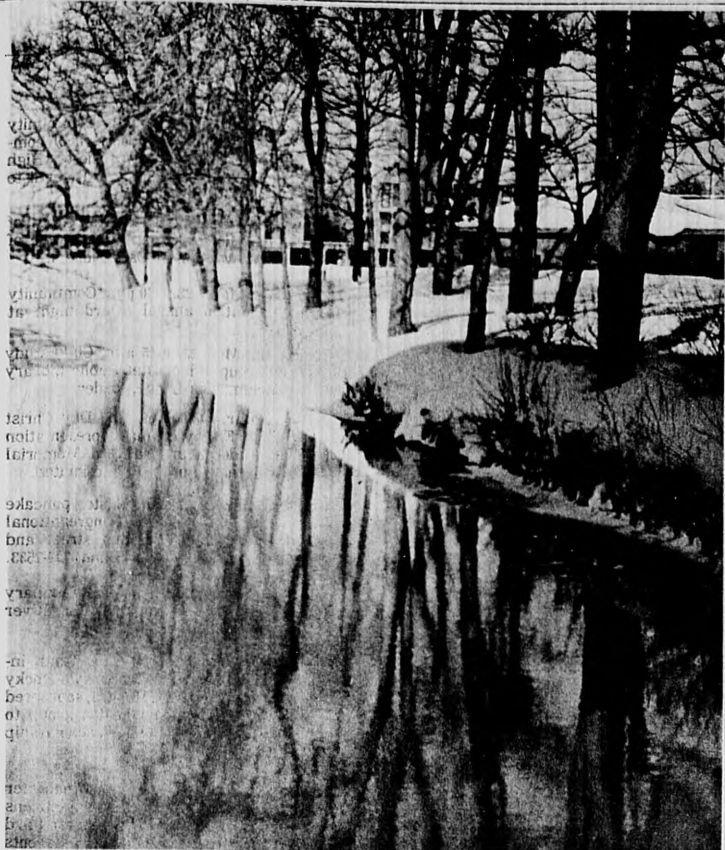

Donald E. McLean, M.D.

Arrests made in connection with vandalism

Vandalism in Mystic School was reported on Mar. 11 by a school custodian. Police said a pane of glass had been removed from the front door and several educational demonstration kits were taken from the school.

Three juveniles were arrested for vandalism on Mar. 11 for slashing automobile tires on Johnson road.

A 15-year-old youth was arrested for operating a motor vehicle without a license. The youth was arrested after the car he was driving struck a fence on Harvard street on the 12th.

A house break was reported on Grove street Mar. 10. Police said a front door glass pane had been broken but that nothing appeared to be missing from the house.

Police said half a dozen arrests for protective custody were made over the weekend.

A break Mar. 9 at 3 p.m. occurred on Cambridge road. The owner, who had left the house for a few hours, reported a silver set valued at $1000 and some jewelry were missing.

Two youths were apprehended Mar. 8 for siphoning gasoline from cars at the Wedgemere Depot parking lot.

Complaints are being sought in Woburn District Court against two youths that were arrested Mar. 8 for operating a motor vehicle without authority.

Jewelry was reported missing from a York road home following a break on Mar. 7.

Barriers survey to study access for handicapped

The Easter Seal Society of Massachusetts is undertaking an architectural barriers survey in the Winchester area to see how well public facilities comply with state and federal regulations.

James Lindsey of Winchester is one of those who will be doing the field work, which will involve a survey of libraries, town halls, schools, department stores, shopping malls, medical offices, funeral homes, office buildings, public utility offices, police stations, and other such facilities.

The survey is part of what is now a nationwide effort to make public facilities more accessible to the handicapped. Funded by CETA, the survey will include the 12 communities of the Medford CETA consortium, including Winchester.

"We are very interested in seeing that handicapped parking spaces are being provided in our public parking lots, on the public streets, and in the parking lots adjoining all public buildings privately owned," adds Jacob Sholder, area supervisor for the survey. "We hope that all businesses and factories in the 12 cities and towns who have parking lots also provide spaces for handicapped workers. This office has a list of signs that can be purchased from the Massachusetts Department of Corrections. If anyone wishes a copy, they may call us at 322-2460. There is no charge for any of our services."

WHS outstanding athletes for winter 1977-78

For the second year, The Star's sports writers have gone out and chosen the best athletes of the Winchester High School winter sports season.

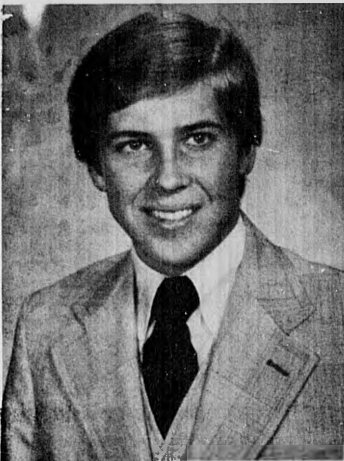

Earning the honor of most valuable player took a lot of hard work on the part of the athletes involved; in some cases, the choice settled on two performers for a particular sport.

Choosing the MVPs also took a lot of work on the part of the high school students who make up the sports staff at The Star. Our thanks go out to George Parker, who wrote up boys' basketball and winter track and wrote the MVP stories for those two sports; to Kelly Gately, who covered girls' gymnastics and helped coordinate the MVP section; to Terry Costello, who volunteered on his own to cover wrestling and wrote the MVP story for the team; to Maureen McCabe, who covered boys' gymnastics and wrote this week's story; to Lynn Foden, who covered girls' basketball and wrote the MVP story; to Linda Pierce, who took care of hockey for us; and to Laurie Grant, who helped out with the swim team this season and wrote the MVP story.

Hockey

Kenny Carlson & Mark McGoldrick

Kenny Carlson

Winchester's Kenny Carlson was an outstanding defenseman for the Sachem pucksters this year.

Many times Kenny, teaming up usually with Bob Coppins, helped the goalie by keeping the puck and the opposing players away from the net. There were rarely any breakaways when Kenny was on the ice, because he had a good reputation of the game and knew when to pick up on defense.

He had good speed with his long quick strides. He put his stick to good use in the game against Reading. Kenny was down in his offensive corner fighting for the puck, when a pass from a Reading player caused a breakaway for Reading. Kenny skated back with great speed determined not to give up a goal in a four-all tie. Carlson caught up with the Reading player and really bothered him, thus thwarting a possible goal.

Kenny had a peculiar way of checking players. When an opponent was skating down the ice with the puck anywhere near Carlson, he would at times bend over and cause the puck carrier to tumble over him. Often fans would shout "oh" and say "good move." It was a move, perfectly legal, and he knew when to use it. Kenny was very good at digging the puck out of the corner and passing it up to his forwards. He could play either side on defense and with any partner. During the first Woburn game when Bob Coppins separated his shoulder, Carlson adjusted well to his new defense partner and this helped hold the team together.

Kenny played a very steady game, every game. He did not just play defense. He could play offense very well too. Carlson had a mean slapshot from the point which usually resulted in a goal either by directly going in, being tipped in, or by someone taking the rebound and putting it into the net. He scored on his slapshot from the point in the game against Belmont. In the game against Wakefield he had a blistering slapshot but was robbed as the goalie, playing an excellent game, stuck out his glove in desperation and caught the puck.

The other coaches in the Middlesex League must have noticed Kenny's excellent performance in every game. He was named to the Middlesex League North All-Star team.

Defensemen usually do not receive much recognition because they do not score, but many times this year without him the Sachem pucksters would have had some real problems. Kenny Carlson is an outstanding defenseman who should have a future on a college team.

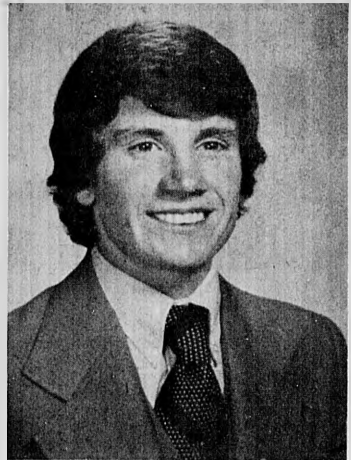

As captain of the hockey team and first line center this year, Mark McGoldrick did an outstanding job of keeping the team together through a disappointing season. Even though Mark did not score as many goals as in previous seasons his number of assists shows hustle and spirit of team play which are factors all coaches look for in a player.

Although Mark was one of the smallest players on the team, he was not afraid to battle along the boards or to fight in the corners for the puck with an opposing player of larger stature. This was evidenced in the Reading game when Mark was battling with a Reading player in the corner for the puck and another Reading player skated up behind Mark and checked him hard into the boards. Mark was on the ice with the wind knocked out of him for a while, but on his next shift he was out doing battle along the boards again.

The goals Mark did score were through alert, head's up play. In the Wakefield game, he picked up a Warriors errant pass skated in alone, faked the Warrior defenseman and then the goalie. This goal spurred the team to a comeback effort. This was just one example of several crucial goals Mark scored.

Mark was ready and anticipating a pass from any corner of the ice. He was also adept at finding his wings and putting accurate passes on their sticks. His wings usually were Mark Carzo and George Surabian, but whoever Coach Berman put out with him he could adapt to their style of play. He certainly could never be termed a pucking, as is evidenced by his number of assists. As a center he was a smart playmaker. Mark certainly should be able to fill a position as center on a college team.

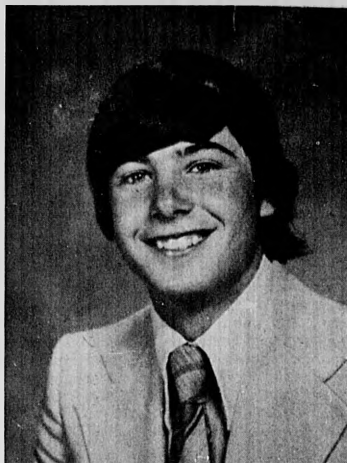

Honorable mention: Frank Vozzella; and Jack Collins, who was selected for Middlesex North All-Star Team.

Mark McGoldrick

Boys' gymnastics

Peter MacDonnell

Peter MacDonnell

Senior Peter MacDonnell has been a member of the Winchester High School Boys' Gymnastics team for three years, contributing more to the team total each year.

Co-captain during his junior year and captain during his senior year, Peter continued to improve. His achievements in gymnastics came only from his three years as a team member and a natural talent for the sport.

Winchester, unlike surrounding towns, does not have a boys' gymnastics program. Members of the boys' gymnastics team are not exposed to the sport until their sophomore year. During his three years as a member of the team, Peter MacDonnell has come a long way. He led the team in scoring throughout the past season, many times taking top honors in several events in the meet. Coach Steven Hood felt that "Peter was vital to the team..." and his achievements support this.

During the 1978 season, Peter was a consistent top scorer in the vault, high bar and all-around categories. These three areas brought him awards in the league individual meet held in February. Peter was awarded fifth place on the high bar, third place in vaulting and second place in the all-around. This is an achievement in itself, since Winchester has not been known as having a strong boys' gymnastics team. Peter also qualified to compete all-around in the state meet later in February. In this meet Peter placed 11th in vaulting, which is the best any gymnast from Winchester has done to date. Peter is currently deciding upon his future, but he will undoubtedly achieve whatever goals he determines. Peter's success in gymnastics will long be a part of the Winchester High School Boys' Gymnastics team as they continue to struggle to the top.

Coach Steve Hood feels that, "everything has been said and said again about Peter." In closing, I would like to wish Peter best of luck in the future on behalf of his friends at Winchester High School and The Winchester Star.

Honorable Mention: Mark Mulvaney.

Girls' basketball

Holly Stevenson

Looking for a girl that plays great basketball? Well, you have come to the right place, because at Winchester High School they have one of the best.

It is senior center, Holly Stevenson. She is a superb all-around player. She has got all aspects of the game down pat, the shooting, rebounding, passing, intercepting, and everything else. Holly has accumulated an impressive set of statistics over the season.

There is more to Holly's play though, than just what those numbers reflect. She is a real team player. Her ability to set other people up for baskets has led to many Sachem scores.

Holly put in many memorable performances during the season. One came in the Sachem's third game against Burlington, when Holly led the team to their first victory of the season, scoring 28 points. That was good enough to set a new personal record for her and a new school record for most points in one game.

That was only just the beginning for Holly. Her scoring was to be the spark that got the Sachem offense on their feet and the drive to keep it going. Her defense was equally as strong, with her rebounding playing an essential part.

In her final high school game, Holly ended a brilliant season in outstanding form. She scored an unbelievable 34 points. This broke her earlier record not only for herself and WHS, but, also, for the Middlesex league. In this game against Wakefield, Holly was a one-person team. She alone outscored the opposition. This brought her final scoring tally up to 497 points in her high school career.

Holly received many accolades this year and they were well deserved. She scored over 20 points in five games. Her scoring average was just over 18 points, which made her the highest scorer in the Middlesex league. She was chosen second on the all-star team.

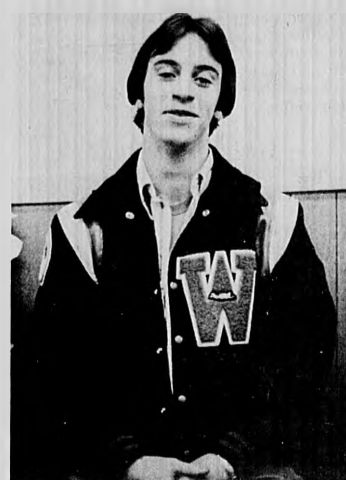

May your future seasons be as great as this one was, Holly. Good Luck!

Holly Stevenson

Swimming

Mark Vernaglia & Rich Palumbo

Mark Vernaglia

Meet the elite of the Winchester High School boys' swim team. The star diver is Mark Vernaglia. Richard Palumbo is the top swimmer. If you're fortunate enough to have this pair on your team, you're bound to have a good season.

Since the boys' swim team doesn't receive much support and publicity, it's time for a recap of their season. The boys are coached by Vin Palumbo and practice from 6 to 7 a.m. at the Vocational School in Wakefield. The boys have maintained a steady record of 4-4. They almost upset Belmont and Malden, losing each meet by one point going into the last relay. Since the team is composed of only 18 swimmers, they were unable to overcome the powerhouse teams of Lexington and Melrose.

Captain Mark Vernaglia throughout the '77-'78 season had only been defeated once against Malden's Cathy Butler. His accomplishments in the Easterns in mid-February were exceptionally outstanding considering this was really his first big swim meet. He came in fifth place in the all around diving competition accumulating a total of 315.7 points. The week before the States, Mark came down with the Russian flu, which weakened him, but he went on to finish 24th, although he was predicted to finish between fifth and eighth place.

Richard Palumbo went undefeated throughout the '77-'78 season in his specialties, the 50 and 100 freestyles. His accomplishments in the Easterns placed an outstanding third (23.2) in the 50 free and fourth (51.6) in the 100 free. He also swam anchor in the medley relay with David Blasi (back), Chris Porter (breast), and Mickey Minutoli (butterfly). They swam in fourth place with a time of 1:51.56. Richard then went on to the States and finished fifth in the 50 free (23.0) and 12th in the 100 free (51.4).

Mark and Richard are not just the team's high scorers, they are much more. The boys have proved to be great leaders and enthusiasts. At practice and meets, they are always willing to give their best and exhibit true team spirit. They're ready to help out the team, which makes it all the more exciting. Yes, Mark Vernaglia and Richard Palumbo have earned their titles as "most valuable members of the boys swim team." It's a shame to be losing these great athletes.

Wrestling

Sean Costello & Rob Romeo

Although the 1977-78 Winchester High School Wrestling Team did not enjoy tremendous success in dual meets, the season was brightened by two outstanding individual performers, Co-Captain Rob Romeo, a junior, and Sean Costello, a senior.

It is traditional for The Winchester Star to select only one athlete in each sport as the most valuable player, however, this choice would be difficult, if not impossible, this year in wrestling.

When questioned about the matter, Coach Ted Benton replied, "The team itself elects their own outstanding wrestler every year, on the basis of who went the farthest in the tournament. It will be difficult this year since both Sean Costello and Rob Romeo advanced equally for the state tournament."

Costello and Romeo both have outstanding records this year, by far the best on the team. Although Costello had more wins this year and was the team's leading dual meet scorer, with an overall record, including the tournaments of 13-4, he had more opportunities to wrestle than Romeo. Romeo split the season with Senior Co-Captain Rich Callarese, and his record was 10-3.

Neither Costello nor Romeo place in the state tournament, although Romeo took a third and Costello took fourth place at the sectionals. They were the only place winners at the sectionals for Winchester, and the only

Boys' basketball

Glenn Mills

Glenn Mills (30)

Glenn Mills is clearly the Sachems' most valuable player, for he has been an important part of the team for three years.

As a sophomore, he was chosen as one of the five top sophomores in Eastern Mass. by the Boston Globe. Though he was not a starter as a soph., he did start as both a junior and a senior, and became co-captain as a senior, along with Donny Allard.

For his efforts this season, Mills has been chosen as the Middlesex League's outstanding player for the '78 season, and has also been named to the Eastern Mass. All-Star team, comprised of the 10 best players in the area.

These honors came as a result of his performance in this, by far his best, season. Glenn averaged 20.1 points per game, along with 12.1 rebounds. This average, however, doesn't indicate Glenn's ability to score at will very frequently — as evidenced by his nine 20 point games, including four over 30. His high for the season was 36 points, against Burlington.

Obviously, Mills is very well qualified, and the team will sorely miss his presence on the court next year.

Laurie Vincent

"She was vital to our team," was the comment given by Coach Pam Rufo, and that seems to sum it all up.

Laurie Vincent is the most outstanding winter sports performer for girls' gymnastics. As a senior co-captain she led her team to a 6-5 record, just missing a spot in the North Districts.

During the regular season, Laurie competed in all of her team's meets, splitting all-around duties with the other co-captain Maureen McCabe.

"She really improved during the season and she was consistent," remarked Coach Rufo. "At first, beam was her weakest event, but it became much stronger. She had trouble with her ankle, which was a hindrance for her on floor since heavy tumbling could injure it, but she was really valuable to the team."

Her strongest event was vaulting in which she averaged an 8.2. Her other averages were: bars, 6.6; beam, 6.4; and floor, 7.4. As an all-around, she averaged a combined total of 29.1 or about a 7.3 for each event. Her most impressive statistic though was, out of a total of 39 performances (combining all 4 events) she finished with the top score on her team 33 times and 22 times she finished above all competitors on both teams.

In post season competition, Laurie competed in both the Middlesex League Individuals and the state individuals. As an all-around in the league individuals, she was her team's only medal winner, tying for second in vaulting with an 8.4 and finishing third in the all-around. In the state's she competed in vaulting scoring a 7.6 and coming in tie for 49th out of a field of the best 72 gymnasts in the state.

Well, you have the facts and figures, what more has to be said about this laudable gymnast except that the best of luck is wished for you in the future.

Honorable Mention: Maureen McCabe — As the other co-captain, Maureen was also very valuable to her team. She participated in the Middlesex League Individuals in three events: bars, vault and floor.

Laurie Vincent

Sean Costello

Sachems to qualify for the state Tournament.

Both Sean and Rob were exemplary leaders of this year's team, conducting informal practices and workouts whenever they could, giving aid, encouragement, and instruction to their teammates. Both of them were consistent winners during the dual meets. Thus this year, the honors for most valuable Sachem wrestler are shared by Sean Costello and Rob Romeo.

Sean Costello, a senior and a newcomer to Winchester this year, scored 56 points in 10 dual meets and the sectional tournament. Sean was barely pressed in most of the dual meets, running up a nine-match winning streak. His only regular season loss was a 4-1 decision against Burlington in the final dual meet when he was hampered by a severe cold.

Sean picked off six pins during the course of the year, including a second period pin over a former sectional champ from Wayland and a pin over a Greater Boston Champ. This fine performance, which was the result of many hours of practice running and weightlifting would in itself be enough to qualify most people as outstanding wrestlers.

Sean was valuable to the team in many other ways, however. The wrestling team suffered many misfortunes this year, the least of which were the injuries and illnesses that affected Senior Captain Rich Callarese. Newcomer Costello was more than able to fill in for Callarese when he was needed.

Sean's greatest contribution to the team was his leadership and his willingness to teach others. The knowledge that he imparted will become evident in next year's team. Sean will be sorely missed next year, but we wish him every success in college and in the future.

Rob Romeo

Junior Rob Romeo will be back next year to continue his valuable leadership and be the nucleus around which the team will be built. Rob's outstanding qualities led to selection as captain this year as a junior.

Rob, like Sean, had a near-perfect regular season record with a 6-1 mark. His only loss came against Cambridge-Latin when he wrestled above his normal weight of 128 lbs. in an attempt to improve the team's chances of winning that match. This unselfish performance was typical of Rob's attitude all year. He was undefeated in the Middlesex League competition.

Romeo's best showing was probably at the sectional tournament where he placed fifth as a sophomore. This year, he took third place while picking up three pins and a decision. Next year, he stands a good chance to take the championship. He will, of course, return to lead the team as captain for the second year in a row.

Sean Costello and Rob Romeo are not merely outstanding wrestlers and leaders. They reflect the finest qualities that wrestling teaches young men: perseverance, courage, sportsmanship, hard work, and self-reliance. They are a credit to Winchester High School and the community in general.

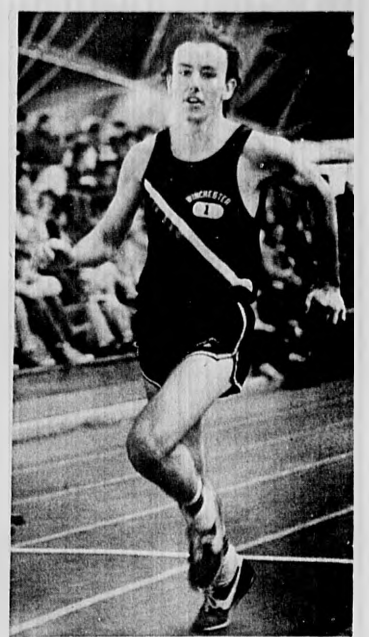

Indoor track

Charlie Larkin

Charlie Larkin has been a constant winner for the Sachems, going undefeated in league and state competition in his event, the 600 yard run.

Charlie also anchored the mile relay team, and often was the one who pulled out a victory, not only for the event, but for the meet, on the last corner of the last lap.

As a result of his success in the 600 and the relay, Charlie was the top point getter for the team, with 51½ points in league competition and 10 in state competition. The latter points came for Charlie's first place finish in the Class C state final in the 600.

With a 1:14.8 time to his credit, Charlie stands a good chance of doing extremely well in college competition for the next four years. This future is based on his success in track for the last three years, for he will graduate this year with at least eight track letters to his credit — for cross country, winter track, and spring track.

Concert

The Quadrivium, a Lexington-based group dedicated to the performance of early vocal and instrumental music, will give a benefit concert on Palm Sunday, Mar. 19 at 8:30 p.m. at the First Parish Church (on the Green), Lexington.

The concert will usher in Holy Week with traditional Renaissance pieces and a 13th-century liturgical drama here accompanied by 19th-century American shape-note hymns. Tickets are available from the Church office, 5 Harrington Rd., or at the door. Proceeds will benefit the First Parish Church.

Mystic sherry warms a closed-in winter

A sherry honoring the Mystic School teaching staff was held this week at the home of Mr. & Mrs. John Minetti. The event was planned by the parents' association to convey a special thanks to the staff for their services and was felt to be especially appropriate this year when the winter months are providing extra stresses of long school days and indoor recesses.

Association president Nancy Rodriguez and the board were hosts. Refreshments were prepared by hospitality chairman Ruth Kenerson and her committee: Judy Shaw, Mitzi Herlihy, Mardi Crawford, Marilyn Todisco, Lorraine Veitch, Pam Boerner, Mary Ellen Sexeny, Ann Matrundola, Gail Macneil and Janet Jones.

Lawrence Auxiliary raises $3000

To celebrate their 30th birthday, the Lawrence Memorial Hospital Auxiliary presented their hospital with a check for $3000.

Since its beginnings in the nurses' home on Feb. 2, 1948, the auxiliary has been concerned with, among other things, raising funds to carry on the work of the Medford facility. The first gift presented to the hospital was an isotope, a type of incubator, which saved the life of a two pound baby girl on the day it was given to the hospital.

The auxiliary has also given pediatric beds, oxygen tents, x-ray equipment, blood bank equipment, electrocardiograph machines, and other such items to benefit the patients of the Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Local resident Frances

Schutzberg served on the refreshment committee which put together the birthday celebration last month. Membership information about the auxiliary may be obtained from Marie Capachetti, 37 Grove st., or Idea Garvani, 48 Whittier rd., Medford. Mrs. Bernard Miller, 9 Holmes rd., Medford, is membership chairwoman.

Positions open for students in science training projects

Francis X. Finigan, director of science of the Winchester Public Schools, announced today that he has received word that the National Science Foundation has released funds for research and study programs in science and mathematics for high ability secondary school students during the summer of 1978.

Finigan pointed out that more than 4,000 high-ability high school students across the nation will participate this summer in scientific research and study programs in the student science training projects sponsored by the National Science Foundation (NSF).

The grants total more than $2.3 million and will support 150 student science training projects in 42 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. The projects offer science-oriented high school students an experience with college-level instruction and laboratory work in studies ranging from oceanography to mountain geography.

By giving science-oriented high school students an experience with college-level instruction and investigative laboratory work, the foundation seeks to stimulate their scholarly development and to encourage the further development of similar programs with other sources of support.

Admissions to these summer projects will be determined by the sponsoring institutions, not by the National Science Foundation. In general, selection will be based upon scholastic ability, science motivation, and the completion of specified high school courses in science and mathematics. Because of the limited number of appointments available, strong preference in selecting participants for summer projects will be given to students in the 11th grade (junior year of high school) at the time of application.

Finigan urges all qualified Winchester students to contact him at the science office located in the high school for further information on the program.

Winchester students who have attended institutes in the past include Marjorie Stolor, who took part in the science program of the Thacher School at Ojai, Calif.; Janet Roehr, who took part in the chemistry program at California State University; and Susan Yavner, who took part in the bio-chemistry program at Wesleyan University in Connecticut.

Unitarian Players

Moderns in a classic mold

Winchester Unitarian Players are preparing for their spring show, three one act plays by A. R. Gurney Jr., scheduled for presentation Apr. 6, 7 and 8 at Metcalf Hall.

Direction is by Edward T. Burdakin of Belmont. Twelve experienced actors have been cast in the three plays and they will present an interesting variety of moods and characterizations.

The Unitarian group has been active in Winchester since 1932 and over the years has presented the standard works usually chosen by little theater groups. George S. Kaufman, Arthur Miller, and James Thurber have been among those playwrights selected in the past as presenting the best known writers of the American theater.

The presentation this year is an exciting departure from previous custom as the author is a Newton resident and Professor of Literature at MIT and the works are contemporary, having premiered in the '60s.

Although the plays are modern they are not abstract or obscure. The writing is beautifully clear and lively with frequent humor. In two of the plays, "The Comeback" and "The Golden Fleece," the theme is placed in the framework of familiar Greek legends, and this literary device enriches the characters and heightens their emotional impact. There are many moments of

Winchester man goes to Florida for parents' 50th

David Ripley, of 14 Wedge Pond rd., was in Sebastian, Fla., Feb. 18, to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of his parents, Jessie and Elmer Ripley.

Mrs. Ripley, the former Jessie Nauffts, was a 1923 graduate of Winchester High School, and the couple lived in Winchester for 45 years before moving to Florida in 1972.

The Ripleys and guest attended a reception held at the Barefoot Bay Community Center. A buffet table was beautifully decorated with a gold and white wedding cake, flowers and candles. The Ripleys were delighted to receive congratulations from the President and Mrs. Carter.

humorous juxtaposition of the contemporary characters and their legendary counterparts. The third offering, "The Love Course," is a charming comment on the manifestations of love, presented as the final class of a college course on the literature of that subject.

Over the years many hundreds of Winchester residents have worked with the Unitarian Players. Although the group is part of the church, its membership is not restricted to Unitarians and the current production features several actors from Boston and other towns as well as local players.

The group has earned a reputation among amateurs in the area. For many years the guiding spirit for this excellence came from Robert Storer, who directed most of the offerings and will be remembered for his presentation of "The Royal Family" last fall. Three years ago, under the direction of Marsha Morris, the Unitarian Players were among the finalists in the New England Theater Conference Festival at Brandeis and early productions received nominations at NETC in several categories of acting and direction.

An opening night reception is planned for Apr. 6 and further information and tickets are available by calling 729-6260.

Little League registration coming up

Despite the white terrain, there will be a Little League season this year.

Registration will be held at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Mt. Vernon Street Mar. 25 and Apr. 1 from 9 a.m.-noon. The registration forms will be available at the Winchester Sports Shop and the K of C Hall on those two days.

All candidates, including those already assigned to teams, must file a Little League application for the 1978 season.

The league is asking for a family donation (the same as last year's) at the time of registration. The funds go to help defray expenses incurred during the season.

All boys who will be nine years old and who will not be 13 years old by Aug. 1, 1978, are eligible to try out for the minor and major leagues.

All boys who will be 13 but no older than 16 by Aug. 1 are eligible for the new senior minor league and the senior league.

The league's board of directors, unanimously decided to expand the new minor league division of the senior league and at the same time reorganize the existing senior league. The new minor division was instituted last year. Tentatively planned is an eight-team league to give more 13-16-year-olds a chance to play senior league baseball.

Girl's baseball seeking coaches & contributions

It's all very well to espouse equal opportunity in sports for girls and boys, but the girls have to make up for some lost time. Unless given a fighting chance, they're not likely to catch up.

If you like baseball, and you'd like to help the girls get that chance, the Winchester Girls' Baseball League needs you. They're looking for volunteer coaches aged 18 and up to help manage a growing league.

In just a few years the league has grown quickly, with nearly 200 girls participating last year. Two divisions are set up for 7-10-year-olds and 11-13-year-olds, and the season runs from May through mid-June.

If you can't coach, the league needs donations as well, which will help supply equipment and pay for umpires. If you can help, call Nancy Legvold, league president, at 729-8247 by Mar. 25.

St. Eulalia's basketball squad has 23-0 record

The St. Eulalia's pulled out a last-minute victory over a strong Newton Athletic Club to get into the finals of the pre-teen tournament at Somerville High School this weekend.

The 21-24 win came on the heels of another victory over St. Catherine's of Somerville, 54-36, and upped the St. E's record to 23-0 this season.

Led by the scoring of Billy Thomas and Tim Hoffman, the boys overwhelmed St. Catherine's. Mark DeAngelis and John Meyers controlled the boards at both ends, and Tom Lee did an excellent defensive job.

In the Newton game, St. Eulalia's was behind all the way until the final minute and six seconds, when Tim Hoffman hit live out of six foul shots to give them the win. Mark DeAngelis and John Meyers had another fine game, as did Tom Lee on defense. Paul O'Brien added strength from the bench when needed.

The boys will be competing in the finals of the pre-teen tournament at Somerville High School Sunday at 2:30 p.m. They will also compete in the CYO Archdiocese tournament at St. Mary's of Lynn Friday evening at 6:30.

Hospital accredited for 2 years

Winchester Hospital has been granted a full two-year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) in Chicago, according to an announcement made recently by Reese E. James, hospital president. The accreditation covers the period from 1977 to 1979.

The accreditation is the maximum granted by the JCAH and is the result of an on-site survey conducted at the hospital last fall by members of the commission. To be accredited, Winchester Hospital must choose to operate according to standards set by the commission and then the hospital must meet those standards fully.

"The primary aim of the accreditation program is to help hospitals in their pursuit of excellence," said James, "and in so doing, to provide a higher quality of care to their patients. The program also recognizes and identifies for the public those facilities which meet its standards."

Many hospitals did not receive the full two-year accreditation granted to Winchester. Of the 2988 hospitals surveyed by the commission between January and December of last year, nearly half received only a one-year accreditation. Limited accreditation is given when violations in patient safety standards are found, or when an institution has provided inadequate medical care.

The commission's surveys are voluntary, since it is not legally necessary for hospitals to be accredited. "Health care facilities seek accreditation," James explained, "because it represents a standard of quality that is higher than simply being licensed by the government."

Campbell Foster's brush strokes put Van Gogh to shame. Here he explores the world of the canvas at the Unitarian Cooperative Nursery School.

WANT TO MODEL "SERIOUSLY"

The Model's Workshop introduces a new concept in learning and understanding the modeling profession.
The Model's Workshop is not a modeling school, but is specifically designed to refine the talents of prospective models for direct entry into the modeling world.
The Model's Workshop's main emphasis will be to prepare you to become a working model...not a theoretical one.
The Model's Workshop will be instructed by an experienced professional model and a professional photographer, both of whom are currently in the business, and can teach it from the inside out, not the outside looking in.
The Model's Workshop is not for everyone.
All applicants will be given a no obligation in depth interview, and only those who fall within the current modeling communities criteria will be accepted into the workshop.
If you would like to find out if you have what it takes to become part of the modeling profession, give us a call!

Winchester '78 Olympics set for Mar. 30 at WHS

Imagine the tensions built up from a year of students disgruntled about grades, teachers discouraged with students, and parents fed up with both.

What better way to let out the steam than a bit of good old-fashioned sports competition? It's happening, next week. The Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Association will hold the Winchester '78 Olympics in the high school gymnasium Mar. 30 at 7:30 p.m.

Ten teams representing students, parents, and faculty will compete with one another in a series of games. Proceeds from the event will be used to support student activities.

Tickets are now on sale at Cradock Apothecary, Winchester Sport Shop, through parent-faculty association board members, and through Winchester '78 Olympic committee members.

this year, the Wigwam Trophy, for the losers of the first event semi-finals, was won by Nashua, N.H. over Royal Montreal.

The awards ceremony took place in the club lounge following the finals on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. E. Robert Barlow, chairman of the bouspiel, presenting the trophies. Mrs. Joseph W. Butler is chairman of ladies' curling at Winchester. Mrs. Michael V. MacKenzie was chairman of invitations for this eighth invitational bouspiel, which brought 16 rinks from the United States and Canada to the Winchester Country Club.

Winchester rinks in the bouspiel were skipped by Mrs. Earle F. Spencer Jr. and Mrs. John D. MacLeod.

David Wright, left, of Lexington is congratulated by Lloyd Thomas, head professional at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center on his being named the number one ranked boys' doubles player in the under age 16 class by the ranking committee of the New England Lawn Tennis Association. According to Thomas, Wright has been in the WILTC junior tennis program for four years.

A private memorial service was held Monday at First Congregational Church for Gilman Wallace, 73, who died Dec. 10 in his Sarasota, Fla. home.

Wallace was a resident of Winchester since 1927. He moved to Florida in 1969, but continued to spend summers here.

He was a former president of Warren Bros. Co. of Cambridge, retiring in 1968.

Wallace was a graduate of Dartmouth College and Boston University Law School.

He was an active member of the First Congregational Church, a former member of the town finance committee, and a former chairman of the board of appeal.

He was also a former director of the Harvard Trust Company of Cambridge and a trustee of the Union Warren Savings Bank of Boston. He was a member of the Merchants Club of Boston, the Winchester Country Club, and the Bud Key Yacht Club of Sarasota.

He leaves his wife, Helen (England) Wallace; a daughter, Mrs. Freeman (Susan) Fraim of Lexington; a son, David Wallace of Canton, Conn.; and five grandchildren.

League of Women Voters candidates questionnaire

As a service to the citizens of Winchester, the League of Women Voters has sent questionnaires to all candidates for town wide office.

The questions asked of all candidates were:

What do you consider the principal challenges facing the office for which you are seeking election? What do you suggest as solutions? How are you qualified to deal with these challenges?

The offices and candidates are listed in ballot order.

Moderator

John J. Sullivan, 32 Canterbury rd.:
The principal challenge for the moderator is to conduct the town meeting in a fashion whereby the town meeting members are provided with sufficient information on all sides of questions, permitting them to cast an intelligent vote. Occasionally the moderator (abiding by the rules of the meeting) must balance the rights for all to be heard with the rights of the town meeting members who have heard enough. I hope to continue in the same fashion as I performed these duties over my last term.

Selectman

Edmund A. Williams, 12 Myrtle st.:
Important challenges facing the selectman today are the problems of our water supply, downtown revitalization, retirement funding and involvement of the department of public works issues that has been hurting our town. I for one, realize these and other issues are reflected in our tax rate. Due to the complexity of these issues, actual and probable solutions cannot be amplified in the space allocated.

Selectman for three years, park commissioner for seven years, have acquainted me with town government and has given me the knowledge of how to deal effectively with what should be some of our priorities.

Barbara S. Hankins, 37 Cabot st.:
Having substantially completed the reorganization called for by the Charter, the board of selectmen should begin to address the issues of the 1980s. These should include housing for our senior citizens; transportation; energy problems; a review of how changing social and demographic patterns will affect the services we provide; and our relationship with state and county government. I believe that my 10 years of continuous and active participation on boards and committees of the town provide a background which will allow me to make a constructive contribution to the process of developing approaches and solutions to these problems.

Alvan G. Smith, Jr., 2 Ridgefield rd.:
Age 46. Resident 42 years. Mother born in Winchester. Graduate of Wentworth Institute. Weapons employment course for Allied forces. NRA certified pistol instructor. FCC licensed commercial radio operator. FCC licensed amateur operator. FCC licensed "CB" operator. 25 years experience in communications. Winchester faces a management, communications, public safety and disaster crisis. I feel that the problems that have come about with the town employees never should have come about if the selectmen were doing their job properly. If elected I will try to find the cause of the problems before they get out of hand.

Anthony M. Peluso, 14 Salem st.:
Revitalization of Winchester Center—I am a local businessman. Open communication with town employees and town managers, as a manager of employees, I know that there must be trust, understanding, and an amicable relationship between both parties. Employees should not have to be worried about their job if they bring a complaint to their supervisors. After much discussion with town employees, I find that many are in fear of their jobs, and are very dissatisfied with town working conditions. I believe I can only get to the truth by becoming a selectman. As a taxpayer I am totally against closed door meetings, and believe that such meetings should be forbidden.

Assessor

Werner A. Carlson, 11 Bigelow ave.:
The principle challenge is equal taxation for all property owners based on an objective valuation of their property, as well as an awareness of state legislation pending and passed that will and-or does effect said valuation. As we are replacing an assessor this year, the new man must be qualified to assume his duties and demonstrate a willingness to devote as much time to this task as necessary. As a real estate appraiser, property manager and inspector (member of the American Society of Home Inspectors), my daily activities, as well as my academic training (B.S. in business management, Northeastern University), provide me with the qualifications to be your assessor.

Joseph V. Bentley, 8 Stratford rd.:
Challenges:

1. Maintain the high level of integrity of the board.
2. Readiness to deal with changes in assessing as the courts make their decisions known.
3. Keeping the citizens informed of changes in laws that may affect their taxes.

Solutions:
1. Board should establish contact with other town bodies so as to work in concert. 2. Issuing news releases thru local newspaper and inserting flyers with tax bills regarding changes in real estate tax laws.

Qualifications:
1. An active concerned town citizen. 2. Town meeting member for four years. 3. Co-chairman of town audit selection committee. 4. Active in scouting and youth soccer. 5. Certified Public Accountant. 6. Licensed Real Estate Broker. 7. Graduate of Bentley College.

Board of health

1 vacancy, 3 years

N. Bruce Hanes, 51 Washington st.:
No reply.

Planning board

1 vacancy, 3 years

Joseph F. Geary Jr., 137 Ridge st.:
Planning board should be regarded as a somewhat ombudsman for maintaining and-or improving the pleasant neighborhoods that, in the aggregate, are the charm of Winchester. This multifaceted challenge quite often requires planning board members serve two masters, the first being a commitment to the cold, faceless entity referred to as the TOWN. The second, and probably more elusive, involves a personal trait of sensitivity for the abutting resident adversely affected by proposed zoning changes. Equitable decisions demand a judicious meld of the two. Ability to so perform is public record as I complete my fifth year on the board.

1 vacancy, 2 years

Anthony F. Pelletier, 14 Wildwood st.:
The challenge is to initiate sound planning so that the expertise of the planning board is supported by town meeting. The tax base is not growing with inflation, but our expenses are.

A way to alleviate this burden is through additional and provitable real estate.

Solutions: can be found through zoning changes in our business district, encouraging developers in the creative use of our remaining land, and finding acceptable proposals for elderly and middle income housing.

Qualifications: Resident 13 years; town meeting member; member and chairman of finance committee; knowledge of town government; businessman working at management level.

School committee

2 vacancies, 3 years

Robert S. Frank, Jr., 4 Swan rd.:
Personnel: Meaningful teacher evaluations are essential to improved instruction and retention of the best teachers.

Curriculum: 1. We must improve student communications skills by frequent and early writing experience and consistent, careful correction of student work. 2. The curriculum must be versatile enough and our standards high enough to adequately challenge each child.

Management: Firm and fair collective bargaining is essential to budget control and reasonable levels of educational service.

Qualifications: I have been a member of the school committee since 1974 and chairman since 1977. I have served in the town government since 1970. I am a trial lawyer.

Sandra S. Rodgers, 5 McCall rd.:
Challenges: To attain excellence in education for all students and fiscal responsibility in time of enrollment decline.

Solutions: Curriculum improvement based on clear educational objectives, more continuity and challenge, continual evaluation of program and personnel to ensure objectives fulfilled. Broader communication both within the school system and with the community. Comprehensive long range plan for school facilities.

Qualifications: Knowledge of school system and each school through C. S. A. involvement. Service on enrollment study committee, town meeting, task force on declining enrollment, LWV study of school configurations, regular school committee meeting attendance, past teacher training enable me to deal immediately with the challenges.

Mary Jean Weylman, 3 Harrington rd.:
School Consolidation—Townwide involvement in planning which schools to close or maintain; considering location, pupil distribution factors, desirable size, busing, building utilization.

Reduction in Force—school committee insist on improved evaluation standards to insure only best teachers remain.

Budget—Stabilize by critical evaluation present programs; delete in areas which least affect students.

Parent—4 children at all levels; sound educational background; 20 years experience with schools. Will exercise practical judgment in decision-making; encourage administration improve educational standards.

Library trustees

2 vacancies, 3 years

Clarence S. Borggaard, 22 Franklin rd.:
1. I recognize only one challenge; i.e., to insure that we continue to maintain the very best library possible, at the least cost to the taxpayer.

2. I have no off-hand solutions to propose. I am old enough now, I hope, to have acquired a smattering of common sense. I intend to use that common sense, wherever possible, in all deliberations and decisions. 3. I have been an avid reader for upwards of six decades. What little education I possess has come, largely from the shelves of various public libraries, foremost among which I proudly list our own excellent Winchester Public Library.

Alice K. Mirak, 12 Plato terr.:
The principal challenge to a trustee is to develop and adopt policies to maintain and enhance the cultural, educational and recreational services now provided within the existing library building and to do so within reasonable budgetary limits. To achieve this demands continuous review and progress.

The recent "first complete inventory in 20 years" was the invaluable first step in this review. Updating collections and services while excessing duplication and little used materials is now greatly facilitated. Progress through implementation of the proposed $70,000-6 yr. capital program relates directly to my three (three years) experience as member and chairman of the finance committee.

Borggaard in library race; prefers books to 'boob tube'

TMM. Clarence S. Borggaard has announced his candidacy for library trustee. He says that he has never been a library trustee before, but he hopes to learn by "on-the-job" training. He insists that he knows what a book is, because he had one in his hands once, and if he could only have had time to figure out how to get it open, he would have read it.

He says that he likes books, and much prefers them to that raucous, animated puppet show known as "the boob tube". Books are no holler at you between pages, nor do they try to frighten you into buying some atrocious concoction that you don't want, do not need, and cannot use. Furthermore, you do not have to get up to shut it off!

Clarence was born on a farm in Worcester a month before the turn of the century. That fact, he thinks, makes him old enough to have absorbed a smattering of common sense. He proposes to use that common sense in all deliberations and decisions concerning the library.

He says that what little education he has managed to scrape up over the years has gotten, largely, from the shelves, stacks, and corridors of various public libraries. Had it not been for them, he says, he would have been more of an ignoramus than he is now.

Among those many libraries he gives greatest credit to, "our own, incomparable, Winchester Public Library, and its many helpful, dedicated, competent, employees. Gratia, todos!"

Clarence Borggaard & friend

Clarence says that it will not be easy for the voter to choose, as there are some very good people running against him, but he hopes that his qualifications, as outlined above, will be sufficient to convince the good people of Winchester to vote for him.

In conclusion, he says that he cannot remember back to the time when he was not a town meeting member.

Alvan G. Smith in race for board of selectmen

Alvan G. Smith Jr. of 2 Ridgefield rd. announces his candidacy for the board of selectmen. Educated at the Mystic School, Winchester Junior High School, Cardigan Mountain School, Kimball Union Academy, Huntington School for Boys, Northeastern University, Wentworth Institute, East Coast Aero Tech, and Air University.

Worked for: Hutchenson Lumber Company, James Millen Manufacturing Company, Browning Laboratories Inc., Weston College, Boston College, Lowell Technological Institute Research Foundation, University of New Hampshire, Dartmouth College, Computer Devices Inc., And S.D.M. Corp. Presently retired.

Travel for business: Aberdeen Proving Ground Maryland, Thule Air Force Base Greenland and NASA Wallops Island Station Virginia.

Travel for pleasure: England and France. Military service: U.S. Army Signal Corps. Volunteer service: Civil Air Patrol Auxiliary of United States Air Force.

Aptitudes from Veterans Administration test: 93 percent in mechanical and 63 percent in the following: artistic, scientific and high pressure sales.

Smith states the Town of Winchester is facing a management communications, public safety and disaster crisis.

The recent pay grade grievance is an example of management communications breakdown.

The cut in personnel and equipment in the police department only shows up if your house or car are broken into or if you are mugged. The snow storm of Feb. 6 was a disaster.

Alvan Smith

Of 50 vehicles 40 were broken down during the storm as the town does not have proper equipment to deal with a severe snow storm. Some streets were not plowed for several days. Some streets are only one car wide even now.

Why did the town manger wait till Feb. 6 to appoint a director of civil defense. This fall he had applications from very qualified persons who had the qualifications and experience in meeting emergency situations.

Werner Carlson candidate for board of assessors

Werner Carlson was born in Winchester and attended the Winchester school system. He was graduated from Northeastern University with a B.S. degree in business management, majoring in all aspects of real estate law and appraising.

Later, as a resident of Arlington, he was a town meeting member for eight years with a perfect attendance record. He also served as chairman of Arlington's permanent building committee and as a member of the school survey committee.

Carlson has been a PTA treasurer and auditor and served as precinct chairman for the United Fund. In addition, he received a certificate of merit in citizenship from the Jaycees, singling him out for his contributions to the community.

Carlson is a licensed builder and licensed real estate broker, is involved in real estate appraising, property inspections and property management, and is a member of the American Society of Home Inspectors. He has lectured at Northeastern University in appraising and has given many invited talks on this subject.

In Winchester, Carlson served as town meeting member in Precinct 4 for three years, and is currently serving the town in yet another capacity, as a member of the board of appeal.

Carlson stated: "An assessor must be qualified to appraise every type of property, must demonstrate impartiality in all his duties, and must keep abreast of current market conditions to make proper assessments. Assessing is not just a bookkeeping exercise. It demands expertise and experience. The daily activities of my business provide me with the necessary data on market conditions of residential, commercial and industrial properties. This data, together with my practical experience, academic training and proven community interest and involvement, are my qualifications for this position. I hope you will agree. I would be honored to work hard for you as your assessor."

Rodgers backs alternative programs for curriculum

Sandra Rodgers, candidate for school committee, spoke today on the need to consider all students when giving consideration to and making choices on curriculum planning.

Rodgers states, "There has been a lot of dialogue in recent weeks about a trend toward declining test scores, a return to homogenous grouping, and the need to offer more challenging work to students. All of these issues are concerned primarily with the academic program. We must make certain, however, that no matter what changes we make we don't in any way detract from the needs of those students who may not be planning on further education at this time in their lives."

Rodgers goes on to note, "Winchester for a long time was behind other communities in offering educational opportunities to the non-college bound students. Finally in 1976 the Career Life Information Program (CLIP) was started. Now in its second year, this program is successfully demonstrating that students can 'learn and earn' at the same time by combining basic academic courses with a school-supervised working experience. This program is being constantly refined and enlarged and we must make certain that it remains a part of the curriculum of the high school. It fulfills a real need."

"We must also consider the student who may want to take a complete academic program, but who, rather than go on to college, wants to become a skilled craftsman. I can remember not too long ago when we could not fill the seats allotted to Winchester at the Northeast Regional Vocational School. Now we have students in a successful Winchester High School-Regional Vocational School program. Students in this program work a long hard day - a full schedule at the high school in the morning and a full afternoon at the vocational school learning a skilled trade. Students who complete this arduous schedule are immediately ready to enter the work world when they graduate and they know they are well trained."

Rodgers concluded: "These are only two of the special programs that have been added to the curriculum in recent years. They benefit a large number of our students. And while I endorse and will work hard to provide a school system that offers challenges to those going on to college, I would also want to 'remember all of the students all of the time'."

Anthony Peluso announces for board of selectmen

Anthony M. Peluso of 14 Salem st. announces his candidacy for selectman.

"My reasons for running are many. As a life-long resident of Winchester, with the exception of five years, I have seen the Town of Winchester deteriorate. In my growing-up period, I remember a town that showed concern for its people. I can remember what a pleasure it was to walk through the center of town; the security we all enjoyed in our homes and on our streets; the playgrounds and beaches which we were proud to show off to our visitors; a school system which was once rated one of the top in the nation.

"This is no longer true. Why? I do not blame anyone but ourselves. Why can't town businesses receive our help? Why is the morale of town employees so low? Why must we bring outsiders in to run our town?"

"I cannot give you any answers merely as a resident, and I am sure you voters cannot find the answers either.

"Elect me and I promise that I will find the answers and, with the help of all, will implement the solutions.

Anthony Peluso

"A government is run for the people, not to make money.

"If our present town government is supposed to be running as a business, it is failing, re: our recent tax increase.

"If it is being run for the residents, then its programs are failing, for we are getting less for our tax money than ever before.

"It is time town government took its hands out of our pockets."

Anthony Pelletier seeks planning board position

The immediate challenge of the planning board is to gain town meeting support to build needed housing acceptable to our citizens and compatible with our town before the state and federal government tells us what they will require.

Providing the planning nucleus to get some commercial building started, particularly in the area of housing, is also a problem which requires a solution.

Winchester's tax base is not growing with inflation and town expenses certainly are. Simply policing the construction of single family homes is not the answer - now or in the future. Restructuring our downtown center business area to expand the market for the existing businesses and allowing them economic reasons to maintain first class shops and services is a reasonable solution to keeping a viable "downtown." Expanding the market for the CBD could well take the form of reducing other business permitted areas throughout the Town and or allowing housing in these convenient areas.

Winchester has very little buildable land remaining and, assuming one cannot stop progress, something will be built on what remains. It is up to many but certainly the planning board should be a rallying point with support and input from its citizens.

I have been a town resident for over 13 years, active as a town meeting member and past member and chairman of the finance committee. I feel that my business involvement over the past 18 years and knowledge of the workings of town government through participation in its affairs as well as knowledge of the attitudes and feelings of some of our citizens should help me make a contribution. I would, therefore, welcome your support on Mar. 28.

Alice Mirak in running for one of two library seats

Alice K. Mirak, 12 Plato ter., has announced her candidacy for one of the two openings for trustee of the public library.

"A fine free public library is one of the most prized resources of a responsible community. The principal challenge to a library trustee in Winchester is to develop and adopt policies to maintain and enhance the cultural, educational and recreational services now provided within the existing library building and to do so within reasonable budgetary limits. To continue to achieve this requires imagination, awareness of the needs and desires of the citizens of the Town and a sound approach to planning. Review and Progress are key.

"In my three years on the finance committee's library program sub-committee, I have been closely involved with critical evaluation and support of this process of review and progress. The recent first complete book inventory in 29 years was the invaluable first step in collections review. Updating collections and services while exceeding duplication and little used materials is now greatly facilitated. We are currently supporting the second year of a five year new book purchase program in conjunction with the regular replacement program through the library budget.

"The issue of progress is likewise being addressed through the 10 year needs assessment program now underway. The needs have been outlined - better utilization of space within the existing building, conversion of uses, climate control for preservation and comfort, security - to name a few high priority areas. Capital expenditures over a six-year period have been initially included in the town's overall capital plan with a $70,000 price tag.

"My term on the finance committee concludes this year after a most educational and rewarding experience. I would enjoy now, with your support of my candidacy, concentrating my efforts on implementation of the recognized needs of our library program."

Mrs. Mirak is a graduate of Wellesley College and a former elementary school teacher in the Arlington Public Schools. A town meeting member for the past five years, she will leave the finance committee shortly after serving for three years, first as library budget sub-committee chairwoman, then as vice-chairwoman and education budget chairwoman, and this year, as chairwoman of the entire finance committee.

Mrs. Mirak has participated widely in volunteer activities. She is currently president of the Winchester Wellesley Club, a community service oriented alumnae group and is an active member of the Friends of the Libraries at Boston University where her husband is an adjunct professor in history. The Miraks have two children in the Winchester Public Schools. Mrs. Mirak formerly served as secretary and education representative to the school committee for the Vinson-Owen Parents' Association.

Retain basics

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
Dear Voters of Winchester,

Campaigning has brought me in touch with many of you. Over coffee, on the street and at the dump the same concerns are voiced over and over. Parents, grandparents and interested citizens worry about our school system. The two problem areas most discussed are loss of good teachers and teaching the basic skills of English.

Loss of teachers, or reduction in force, is occurring because of declining enrollment. The problem is that the teachers' contract protects tenured teachers over any first, second or third year teachers in our system. We are going to lose approximately 35 teachers, all of whom will be in their first few teaching years. This situation exists in the elementary, junior and senior high schools and in special areas such as music and art. Some of these teachers have shown themselves to be gifted and dedicated. Their talents will be lost to Winchester permanently. Soon we will have only tenured teachers.

One of my major reasons for seeking election to the school committee is to ensure that the continued and inevitable reduction in force will be decided by ability and not necessarily by seniority. Our most capable, talented and dedicated tenured teachers will stay. Winchester should keep its best.

The citizens I have spoken to think that students should read, write, spell and express themselves better than they do. Stressing English costs the taxpayer nothing! Assigning written work often and regularly is a matter of good teaching. The quality and quantity of reading, writing and oral work should be a standard established for all Winchester students grade by grade. Principals and teachers should meet together to share plans and ideas for improving our English curriculum. The school committee should encourage the administration to respond to this great concern of the community.

March 28 is coming soon. I urge every citizen to vote on that Tuesday. If the retention of our best teachers and teaching the basic skills of English are issues important to you, I hope that you will give me your support on election day.

Mary Jean Weylman

Tenure

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As part of my campaign for school committee, I've talked with many people about Winchester's schools. Teacher tenure and evaluation are subjects that come up consistently in these discussions. I'd like to take this opportunity to tell you some of my ideas about tenure and evaluation.

Recently, when the school committee notified some 37 untenured teachers that their contracts might not be renewed next fall, the impact of teacher tenure laws was shown dramatically. I recognize that in a period of declining enrollment we have no choice but to reduce our teaching staff. But because of the tenure laws we are also forced to let go our untenured teachers first.

The teacher tenure laws were originally enacted to provide protection against unfair or arbitrary practices toward teachers. More recently the state passed collective bargaining laws for public employees like teachers, which offer many of the same protections to teachers that are given by tenure. The rigidity of tenure has far greater consequences for the quality of our schools in a time of rapidly shrinking teacher staff caused by declining enrollment. Law has not caught up with practice.

Many other communities are facing the same difficulties. I support changes in state law to ensure that a school system can get and retain the best teachers. One bill now pending requires that tenure be renewed every five years, with an added provision that a teacher who has been denied renewal of tenure would be given an additional year to correct deficiencies. Another bill I support would extend the probation period from three to five years before a tenure decision is made.

There are things the school committee can do within the present law. The committee should make its reductions in teacher force more carefully. I favor reductions equitably among the departments and not directed primarily at the non-academic departments. The school committee should also consider the relative impact of the reductions on each affected department.

We should strengthen our teacher evaluation system and expand its usefulness. We should provide for more contact by the evaluators with the teachers before an evaluation is done. We should also work out a procedure for obtaining the views of parents and, where appropriate, students on each teacher being evaluated.

The primary purpose of evaluations should be to improve the performance of all teachers, tenured and untenured. Better evaluations will also enable the school committee to make more sound decisions in granting tenure. Good evaluations can help us make sensible decisions when we have to reduce our numbers of untenured teachers.

The school committee can bring a better balance in our tenure practices through collective bargaining with the teachers. These parties have already agreed on a clause which allows factors such as performance, training, experience and the needs of the school system to be taken into account in addition to seniority when the school committee is faced with a reduction among tenured teachers. Perhaps we can obtain more flexibility in this regard through further negotiation with the teachers.

We should also be thinking of some creative ways we can take advantage of the experience and wisdom of our older teachers while at the same time making room for younger teachers on our staff. For example, I've recently heard of a proposal that would give senior teachers planning and training responsibilities but lighter teaching loads in return for a voluntary reduction in work time and pay.

I believe that teachers should have reasonable job security. But I think many teachers would agree that our tenure system is out of balance. I would hope that the school committee and the teachers can work cooperatively to make some sensible changes in teacher tenure and evaluation practices.

Sandra Rodgers

Qualifications

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In the two articles which The Star has published about my campaign for re-election to the school committee and in the political advertisements place on my behalf, I have addressed issues relating to the personnel policies, curriculum, and administration of the schools in Winchester. I have said little about my own qualifications for a position on the school committee. As the campaign enters its final two weeks, I think that I should now identify those qualifications and attempt to define their relevance.

I have been a member of the school committee since 1974. I am presently the chairman of the committee. I am the only school committee member to seek re-election in the last five years. I have been a member of either the permanent building committee or the secondary school building committee since 1970. From 1972 to 1974 I was chairman of the permanent building committee. I am a trial lawyer.

I think that it is useful for some school committee members to seek re-election. I am, for example, the only member of the present committee to have participated in a full round of collective bargaining with representatives of the teachers' union.

The salaries paid to teachers will exceed $6,000,000 next year. Collective bargaining is the single most important means of controlling educational costs and of improving the quantity and quality of instruction which is available in the schools. The negotiators for the teachers are both able and experienced.

In order to hold its own, the committee must take consistent bargaining positions, be sensitive to teacher concerns, be familiar with the prior positions of the teachers, and be aware of past compromises made and rejected. If the membership of the school committee change completely every three years, the town is placed at a substantial bargaining disadvantage and its ability to obtain reasonable settlements will be impaired.

Moreover, the school administration needs and deserves consistent direction from the school committee. Several of the significant tasks which face the school department, including those relating to enrollment decline and curriculum self-evaluation, will take years to complete. Many of the questions which are considered by the school committee recur year after year. The school committee must be receptive to new ideas, but it must also pursue projects from beginning to end, and, in general, it should take action which is consistent with its own past conduct. Unless some school committee members stand for re-election, it will be difficult to achieve any continuity in the direction of the school department.

Finally, it takes the better part of two years to fully understand how the school system works and to approach problems with an appreciation of the context from which they arise. It is, in my judgment, extremely inefficient to discard that experience at the end of each committee member's three year term.

In addition to my experience on the committee, I am a lawyer. I think that it is useful to have someone on the committee with a legal background. The committee is sued several times per year. It regularly confronts legal problems relating to the conflicting rights of employees, students, and the town. It operates within a matrix of federal and state regulations. It must bargain collectively with five different employee groups. In this climate, I believe the committee will be stronger if one of its members has legal training.

I should state that I do not merit re-election solely because I have been on the committee before or because I once went to law school. I merit re-election if, and only if, the actions I have taken during the last four years and the positions I have set forth in this campaign have been fair, reasoned, and instructive. My qualifications are relevant only in so far as they demonstrate that I can help the school committee to obtain the goals which I have identified. I think that those goals—more discriminating staff evaluation, additional inservice training for experienced teachers, careful selection of teachers, improved writing programs, objective self-examination of the curriculum to determine whether it provides sufficient incentive to each student and fair but firm collective bargaining—are worthy of support.

Robert S. Frank

Accountant needed

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Joseph V. Bentley of 8 Stratford rd. a candidate for the office of assessor, states that he would like to see an accountant on the board of assessors. Bentley maintains that the board should be composed of people with complementary backgrounds. The board, which has three members, will have a vacancy due to the retirement of one member. The position as viewed by Bentley is a financial one and should be so staffed. He submits that the assessors are responsible for fair and equitable valuations on over $203,000,000 property values. Their office is also responsible for the rendering of 12,000 real estate tax bills in the fiscal year and 18,000 excise tax bills.

The position involves attention to the orderly and thorough record-keeping requirements as mandated by state law.

A graduate of Bentley College with a B.S.A. degree and a Certified Public Accountant, Bentley is a member of a local junior college faculty where he teaches business subjects. With this background, he feels that he is qualified to serve on the board of assessors. In addition, he is a licensed real estate broker (unpracticing), since he believes there could be a possible conflict of interest with the board of assessors. Bentley has been a town meeting member for four years and is also a member of the town audit selection committee to which he was appointed by the board of selectmen. Other community activities include scouting and youth soccer.

Bentley is married and has three children who attend the Ambrose and Parkhurst schools.

Death of a sport

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

A vote for Robert Frank for school committee would just be another nail in the coffin for hockey and other school sports in the Winchester program.

Granted, the hockey team had a rough season, but that is no reason to drop a major

Beattie statement

Library plans would benefit from engineer's experience

TMM Robert D. Beattie, who announced his candidacy for trustee of the public library last week, is convinced the library has reached a period of adjustment.

"Winchester, with a collection of more than 100,000 books, receives superb service from its library; the library services range from books, art and records to microfiche and puzzles, with circulation to the hospital and shut-ins, the number of volumes in the collection per capita and library funds spent per resident exceed all surrounding towns except Lexington," says Beattie.

"However," notes Beattie, "lately there has been a marked rise in the ratio of discards to additions for the book collection, up to an average of 80 percent now. A high discard ratio freshens the book collection and tends to build circulation, but it also means our library has just about reached the limit of stack storage capacity. The usual first remedy is renovation, i.e. switch, collection rooms and convert lesser used rooms to stacks. Further, a high ratio of discards to additions also means increased activity in the staff workrooms, more purchasing and cataloging. The obvious longer term solution is an addition to the library."

Beattie observes that the present trustees have already proposed a five-year renovation program including improved workrooms, swit hing the Smith and Downs room collections, adding stacks in the Downs room, creating more office space, further air conditioning, smoke detection, and a book security system. With such renovation planned and possible expansion of floor space in view, Beattie believes the trustees would benefit from in-house engineering and construction experience.

Beattie's says his 25 years of experience in engineering project management and project cost estimation would help implement the five-year library renovation program. Beattie was educated at Yale School of Engineering and holds a masters and doctorate in chemical engineering. Bob and his wife, Dorothy, have a son and a daughter who have attended the Winchester public schools.

Beattie has been active in Winchester town affairs for many years, having served as a town meeting member for the past 11 years. He served on the West Side Fire Station Building Committee for five years under Chairman "Whip" Saltmarsh, and most recently has contributed as a member of the capital improvements planning committee for five years as well. In addition, Bob Beattie has worked on the snow and ice Removal study committee for seven years and is now chairman of that committee.

sport in the Middlesex League. With a few changes I am sure the high school and junior high program can bounce back.

There are other avenues in which one can cut and save money; sports and extra-curricular activities in my opinion are not the ones to eliminate. As you well know, there is little offered to the youths of Winchester in the way of any extra-curricular activities and extra sports programs that seem to be in abundance in the surrounding cities and towns.

I am sure Mr. Frank is well-qualified for something, but I feel that his election to the school committee would only lead to the funeral of many sports programs and to the wake of many other enjoyable activities that seem to be few and far between for the youth of Winchester.

G.P. Kenney Sr.
41 George rd.

In response...

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I will respond only briefly to Mr. Kenney's letter.

(1) I do not favor a reduction of sports and other extra curricular programs. During my tenure on the committee we have added nine new sports programs (eight for girls and one for boys), each with my support. I also believe that the committee has, if anything, done too little to support and expand non-athletic extra-curricular activities.

(2) My reservations about hockey are entirely unrelated to the success of this year's team. The fact that the hockey team has had a poor season suggests that we should look for ways to improve the hockey program, not that we should delete that program.

(3) My reservation about hockey arises from the fact that the program is very expensive. The cost of hockey per player is four times as great as the cost per player of nine other high school sports. More money is spent on hockey alone than is spent on 1) all non-athletic extracurricular activities combined, or 2) the aggregate of all intramural sports programs. I have not suggested a cut in extra-curricular activities. I have asked whether the same dollars now spent on hockey might be used to involve many more students in many other, equally constructive, after-school activities.

Williams gives talk to local council on aging

Edmund Williams was invited by the Council on Aging to speak at the Crawford Memorial Church Mar. 7 and gratefully accepted the invitation.

He stated, "It is said the voting public is apathetic and if this is true (I doubt this) you'd never know it by the attendance and enthusiasm shown by our seniors at this affair!"

Williams went on to say that "the issues discussed with the gathering were the same issues that he speaks of to the many group meetings he has attended and will attend between now and election day March 28, namely, excessive selectmen administrative costs, inadequate retirement funding, unexplained water problems and the neglect of our business district. He also stated, "It is time to act on the problems that face us, not react to every situation that rises, as in the last few years."

Williams concluded by saying, "A selectman's job is to be informed and keep informed constantly. In order to do the things the taxpayers and voters expect of one in such a high office, you have to be totally involved in all matters that are considered part of a selectman's duties."

ABC student assaulted Friday by 2 white men

A Winchester High School ABC student was assaulted by two white youths late Friday afternoon as he was walking home from baseball practice.

Seventeen-year-old Rafael Acevedo, who is enrolled in the ABC program, which brings minority students from out of town to attend the high school here, was treated at Winchester Hospital for minor injuries.

Acevedo was scheduled to go to Woburn Court Wednesday morning to file a complaint against a Walnut street resident for assault and battery. Sgt. Roland Roy of the Winchester Police is handling the investigation.

According to reports from police and the high school administration, Acevedo was returning from baseball practice shortly after 4 p.m. Friday when a gold car pulled up to the intersection of Skillings and Shore roads and two youths jumped out.

The two knocked Acevedo to the ground and punched and kicked him, according to the reports. Witnesses ran to the high school to tell the administration what had happened and report the license number of the car. Assistant Principal Tom Budrewicz called the police at 4:45 and went to check on Acevedo. By that time Acevedo had returned to the ABC House on Dix street. Dorian Wilson, who is in charge of the house, took him to the Winchester Hospital for treatment.

Police traced the license number of the car to a Walnut street resident, who admitted to them that he had been driving the car. The resident declined to comment further. The police are trying to discover who else was involved in the incident.

Acevedo told police he could identify the assailants on sight, but not by name. When contacted by The Star, Acevedo declined to comment on the incident.

It was reported that Acevedo had been subjected to taunts by the attackers before the assault, but it was not known whether or not the taunts were racial.

There also was no indication as to whether or not the incident was related to the resignation two weeks ago of the only black teacher at Winchester High School, Mrs. Charlene Clinton.

Mrs. Clinton resigned as a result of a progression of incidents involving students both in and out of her classes, including racial slurs and misbehavior. Acevedo was a student in one of Mrs. Clinton's classes.

"It was a non-school incident," said High School Principal Vincent Larocco of Friday's assault. "What provoked it, I don't know."

An open invitation...

Jenks Center open April 2

We will soon be dedicating our new half-million dollar Jenks Senior Center. (I say "half-million" because I figure that the total complex, land, labor, buildings, furniture, and equipment, could not be duplicated today for less than that amount.) True, the town did give us the land; the rest, with one relatively minor exception, was accomplished with money donated to us.

Little did we dream, when we first undertook to create a center for the elderly of this town, that our efforts would turn out to be so phenomenally successful. Ours was an "impossible dream" and was so labelled by many good friends who were far more experienced at fund-raising than we. They knew, from bitter experience, just how difficult it has become, in these days of ever-increasing taxes, to raise money for lodges, churches, alumni, etc. "You will be lucky to raise $30,000.00," one such experienced fund-raiser told me, and he was telling me what he knew to be the truth.

Well, he was so right! We were lucky, we were very, very lucky! And things would not have gone so smoothly or quickly if it were not for the more than 800 contributors, large and small, who gave for the center. And above all, had it not been for the munificent benevolence of James and Evelyn Jenks, we would never have been able to accomplish so much in so short a time!

We therefore urge all of our local citizens to attend our dedicatory ceremonies on Sunday, Apr. 2, at 2 p.m. that they may see for themselves just how lucky we all were. (When I say "we" I do not mean just the various committees involved, I mean all of the citizens of this town who are over the age of 62. At that age, they automatically become members of our association; and it was for them, as well as for ourselves, that we accomplished this "impossible dream.")

Until a few years ago nothing was ever done for the seniors, of this town, as a group separate and distinct from the rest of the citizenry. They were left to shift for themselves, as best they could, on an individual basis. A few managed very well, some had relatives who helped, most learned to cope somehow; others tried, out failed, and not always through any fault of their own. These had then no place to turn for help or encouragement, and it was to give them the help and encouragement that our organization was formed. "Seniors helping Seniors," that is our motto.

As you will see, when you visit our new Center, we have made a very good start, an excellent start in the right direction. You will hear more from us, as time goes on. We plan big things for our seniors, and in consequence, we need all the help we can get to make those plans come true. Seniors helping Seniors. We ask everyone, critics included, to pitch in with their strength, their competence, and their expertise. You will soon find a niche that you can fill. Welcome aboard, we have need of you!

Board approves salary raise for manager

For the second time in three years, the town manager's salary has been increased by the board of selectmen. Approval for the $1800 raise must be voted by town meeting.

There was little discussion as Selectman Edward O'Connell suggested raising the manager's salary from $32,500 to $34,300.

The increase represents a five percent raise rounded off to the highest hundred. Selectman Harry Chelaflo voted for the $1800 but had been looking for $1500.

The vote was unanimous.

County costs $400,000 less than expected

Nothing's final yet, but Winchester's share of the Middlesex County budget may be down almost $400,000—that's two dollars on the tax rate.

Temporary Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano told selectmen Monday night that if county court costs are absorbed by the state, our annual assessment of $716,000 could drop 60 percent.

Gov. Michael Dukakis is looking for a gradual five-year transition from county to state takeover of the county's court costs. The legislature may decide on a one shot package. Final effects cannot be tallied until there is definite action on Beacon Hill.

Altogether the Middlesex County budget could be down $2.4 million for fiscal year 1977-78. The bulk of the reduction, $1.6 million, is attributable to Chapter 363A of the Acts of 1977—the initial attempt of the Commonwealth to fund the local court systems.

High school musical

'Kate' sparkles for SRO crowd

By Paul Simmons

Bianca, the girl who everyone wants but no one can have until the shrewish Kate, her older sister, is wed. Her powerful voice in songs like "Always True to You Darling" and numerous mannerisms established her as the sweetheart of the show.

As Tackaberry in last year's musical, John Fairbanks, now a senior, achieved some notoriety, but as Bill Calhoun Lucentio this year, Fairbanks walked into the spotlight he deserved. His smooth voice in songs like "Bianca" and "Tom, Dick, or Harry" and funny facial expressions in the "Rose Dancer" merited all the applause that he received.

The two actors who came closest to stealing the show, however, were the two gangsters played by John Rule, a senior, and Stuart Downs, a junior. Their hilarious antics and slow-witted humor earned them the biggest applause of the night. Their only song, "Brush Up your Shakespeare," almost brought the house down.

Robert Hallisey, as Bianca's and Kate's father made the crowd chuckle as he tiptoed around the stage and agonized over his shrewish daughter.

In a sizzling number, Maurice Eason, backed up by the male chorus, sang the solo in "Too Darn Hot" and did some fancy steppin' with Janet Anderson. His smooth summertime voice made this song one of the best of the night.

George Parker as Harrison Howell, Lili Vanessi's finance and a staunch, republican bureaucrat from Washington, should be given credit for a job well done.

Patricia Wells was the soloist in the opening number of the show. Accordingly entitled "Another Op'nin', Another Show," this song was accented by some jitterbugging by Lindsay James and Tom Skehan, acrobatic dancing by Elizabeth Hitchcock and Chris Wilde and more tricky steps from Maurice Eason.

David Medzorian's beautiful tenor and Jim Well's rich baritone did them no good at winning the hand of Bianca in "Tom, Dick, or Harry," a song in which Bianca states that she will marry anyone but ends up in the arms of Lucentio. Alexis Nasson, the only ballerina in the show, danced "on toe" while Greg Roehr sang "Were Thine That Special Face."

Robert Astill as the screaming and, most of the time, apathetic stage manager fit his part perfectly.

One cannot forget, of course, Vittorio Bares' tripped flip onto his back by the foot of Petruchio.

The remaining chorus dancers were: Lisa Barron, Sarah Downs, Robin Gelson, Claudia MacKay, Lisa Patterson, Martha Sullivan, Mark Barker, and Nick Julian.

The remaining chorus singers were: Ann Bruno, Regina Cantella, Beth Clower, Ann Cogill, Cindy Cunningham, Eileen Donovan, Sue Fallon, Louise Friou, Julia Gittleman, Beth Kingsbury, Jane Langley, Stephanie Schwartzman, Renee Torriere, Sally Weyman, Mark Bishop, Lance Cowan, Tony Johnson, Ray Kenny, Nick Wancowicz, and Tom Stoddard.

"Kate" contained more dancing than any show in recent years, and the credit for the choreography goes to Mrs. Beatrice G. nella, whose brilliant dance steps helped make the show come alive.

John Heyrent directed the orchestra; and spent many hours working with Mrs. E. Eller so that the beautiful voices of the cast would have equally beautiful music to accompany them.

The stage crew, headed by Ms. Linda Ciccarelli, Kathy Williams, and Tom Lowell should be credited for the construction of the sets and keeping the show running smoothly.

The most beautiful costumes in years were made by a crew comprised of Mrs. Annina McCully, Mrs. Nadine Suhrbier, Mrs. Allison Taber, and Mrs. Dolores Sullivan.

The make-up was done by a group of students and adults headed by Mrs. Dorothy Santos.

A little bit of this...

...and a little bit of that made up the high school's musical production, "Kiss Me Kate," held over the weekend. In fine ballet form is Alexis Nasson; doin' the jitterbug are Tom Skehan and Lindsay James. (Staff photo)

For next year

School committee grants tenure to 16 teachers

Sixteen teachers and administrators were granted tenure by the school committee Monday night.

The administration estimates that more than 85 percent of Winchester's teachers are now tenured.

All of the votes for tenure, excepting one, were unanimous. The only split vote came over the appointment of English Director Francis Russell, and the opposition was not to her candidacy, but to granting her early tenure.

Miss Russell has been in the system two-and-a-half years because she began here in mid-year. The school committee could either grant her tenure this year or next year, and two board members felt it would be wiser to wait, as a matter of principal.

Board Chairman Robert Frank joined member Cathy Alexander in opposing the election. However, both committee members had high praise for Miss Russell's work in revitalizing the English department.

Miss Russell was approved 3-2.

Also elected to tenure in the administration was Arthur Sarno, coordinator of data processing and a member of the mathematics department at the high school.

The following teachers were also granted tenure:

Doris A. Click, high school Spanish teacher; Paula M. Dilorio, secondary chairperson, CORE Evaluation Team; John J. Grange, McCall foreign language teacher; Ann M. Greenquist, special needs specialist at Mystic.

Rose Holahan, a specialist with the intermediate emotionally disturbed (SEEM) class at Lincoln; Ann E. Hyland, McCall home economics teacher; Joseph H. Kuchta, guidance counselor at Lynch; Judy L. Levin, speech therapist at Ambrose, Washington, and Lynch; Anna Maria Mancini, high school foreign language teacher.

Winnifred B. Paskerian, half-time special needs specialist at Washington; JoAnn E. Schoenegge, half-time guidance counselor at the high school; Mildred M. Schwartzman, coordinator of the Title I program; Barbara M. Tilden, special needs specialist at Muraco; and Lorna M. Weinstein, secondary social worker.

Because of the uncertainty as to how many positions will be open in the elementary schools next year, the school board has yet to address tenure elections for any of those teachers.

Two sentenced to prison for armed robbery

Neil F. Chicone Jr., 24, of 120 Josephine ave., Somerville, was found guilty in Cambridge Superior Court Monday, on two counts of breaking and entering and armed robbery, and sentenced to 10 years in the Concord House of Correction.

His accomplice, Dennis Pitts, 19, of 66 Lawden ave., Somerville, pleaded guilty to the same charges last year, and was sentenced to 10-15 years in Walpole State Prison.

The two were arrested Mar. 4, 1977, after terrorizing the residents of two Winchester homes. They entered one house at approximately 2 a.m., bound the residents there, stole their car, and proceeded to another Winchester residence, where they threatened to kill the residents if they informed the police. They were discovered in the stolen car in Lincoln, and police traced some stolen goods back to the Winchester homes.

Three boys were seen trying to steal a car parked on South Main st., Friday night at 11. Police responded to a call from the owner, and arrested two boys, from Winchester and Medford. They are charged with attempted robbery, and illegal use of alcohol, and their hearing is pending in juvenile court.

Four Arlington boys inflicted damage on a car parked on North Main street, Saturday afternoon. The car was owned by a youth who works in Winchester. The boys alleged that the owner had inflicted similar damage (broken windows, etc.) the previous night in Somerville, on a car owned by one of them. The two parties agreed to pay for the damages they had inflicted on the other's car.

On Sunday, a house on Lorena road was forcibly entered and entirely ransacked. The residents of the house are vacationing, and a son of the residents reported the incident. It is not yet known exactly what was taken.

Also on Sunday, a car was reported stolen from the Parkway Apartments parking lot at about 6 p.m., and last Thursday, an Arlington resident reported a car stolen from the Wedgemere depot parking lot.

★ County costs

The remaining amount, according to Middlesex County Commissioner John L. Danahy, results from free cash flow which had not been determined when the original assessments were levied on the cities and towns.

The so-called Cherry Sheet, which gives the amount of local aid due towns and cities from the state, has not been released yet. It should have been ready in February.

When those figures are out, Fazziano said, Winchester's tax rate may change. There was approximately $140,000 underestimated from last year's figures, he said. If we have to pick up the difference this year, it would mean another 68 cents on the tax rate.

Fazziano emphasized that nothing has been definitely determined regarding Winchester's share of the Middlesex County budget.

BOB FRANK FOR SCHOOL COMMITTEE

In the 1975 election, 2624 Winchester voters endorsed Bob Frank when they elected him to the School Committee. As former Winchester School Committee members, we have observed and, in some cases, worked with Bob Frank. We have found him to be a hard worker, fair and knowledgeable of the school system.

Bob has brought reason, intelligence and sensitivity to the School Committee. We support his re-election and urge you to vote for him on March 28.

Get out and vote!

There's an election coming up Tuesday, in case you didn't know it, and you ought to get out and vote.

The two big races are for selectman, with four candidates vying for a single seat on the board, and for school committee, with three candidates after two seats.

Both races are important, not just because these are two of the major boards in town, but because both boards will play major roles in the shaping of the town in the near future. And there are some weighty changes in the air.

With a town manager system now firmly in place, the selectmen have to keep a sharp eye on administration of the town's services. There have been troubles in the public works department, and they are probably not over yet.

So far three men have quit and two have retired since the reorganization. And there have been several grievances brought by the town employees, including complaints that men have been demoted for complaining about working conditions and that others were demoted in violation of the Town Charter.

Other questions involving the DPW revolve around contracting out for certain services and the manner in which some of the bills have been filed with the town comptroller. In fact, the town comptroller quit last fall after 14 years of service, apparently because of "differences of style" between the comptroller and the town manager.

These are issues the selectmen are facing, now and in the future. And there are others:

What can be done to help revitalize the downtown area, and how can the town participate?

When and where will any housing for the elderly be built, what will it look like, and who will it serve?

What will be the town's response to the need for youth services, and how much support should the town provide? Should we have a youth recreation center, or a halfway house, or both?

What should the town do with any schools that may be closed in the next few years?

What sort of action can Winchester take to maintain its sense of community in an age of such great mobility and mechanization?

The selectmen will have a hand in dealing with these issues, so choose them carefully.

The school board also faces an era of change. Enrollments are way down and continuing to fall, and schools are going to be closed. How can the changes be accomplished with the minimum disruption to education?

Which schools should be closed, and when? How must the curriculum change to adapt to smaller schools, a consolidated middle school, and a four-year high school?

How are teachers selected and evaluated, and how are the negotiations with those teachers handled to ensure the best interests of the students and the town?

The positions may not be paying jobs, but they mean as much to Winchester as any plum of a position with the state or federal government. Ultimately, the decisions in Boston and Washington reflect the decisions in towns like Winchester — even if they are a few years behind.

So if you care about your kids and your town, take the time Tuesday to vote. —DKF

Open burning ok to April 1

The Office of Environmental Control has extended the open burning law in the state until April 1. The extension has been given because of the snow cover remaining from the storm of Feb. 6 and 7. All residents are permitted by law to burn in the outdoors providing they adhere to the following rules and regulations:

1. All burning shall be on land proximate to the place of generation.
2. At a location not less than 75 feet from any dwelling.

3. Between the hours of 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.
 4. During periods of good atmospheric ventilation.
 5. Without causing a nuisance.
 6. With smoke minimizing starters, if such are used.
 7. Under the provisions of a properly issued permit from the local fire department.
- All residents are required to call the fire department or stop in at fire headquarters before burning in the outdoors.

Letters from readers

No results

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The board of selectmen, town manager and the public works director were waiting to hear directly from those town employees who had made statements to the papers regarding working conditions under the new regime.

We decided not to appear before them, without counsel, and in looking back perhaps we should have told both the board and the newspapers our reasons.

To begin with, problems of town employees have been discussed with the selectmen since July of 1977, at least. Interested citizens as well as certain public works employees brought many concerns to the selectmen after talks with public works administration got no results.

During last fall the board of selectmen had two hearings that were called to discuss problems in the public works department. Although the first was poorly attended, the second was attended by a good number of members of the Town Employees Association. Many items of poor management or procedures were called to the selectmen's attention, most of which they were not aware of.

The selectmen refused to discuss some subjects as they were in the grievance process, but of those that were discussed the chairman stated they would be investigated and we would be advised.

To this day we have not heard the results of the selectmen's investigation.

Since there have been so many previous discussions with the board of selectmen and since there have been no results (and no explanation of why there have been no results), it seemed we would just be wasting more time to appear before the board on their latest invitation.

The board of selectmen has admitted that things are happening in the public works department that they know nothing about. When we try to express our grievances they ignore both us and the problems. The situation causes additional problems. Some men have quietly left their jobs, others left not so quietly. When the newspapers carried stories about the recent resignations, the selectmen's response was, "Why didn't they come to us?" (instead of the newspapers).

We did! They did nothing.

Robert Scholl

Shocked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a member of the Winchester community, I am forced to express my complete shock and utter disgust from news of Charlene Clinton's resignation.

Being a graduate of 1976, Ms. Clinton and I have never met, but this is not important. What is important is that this upperclass, predominantly white community has lost its chance to reap the benefits of minority professionals.

The students responsible for this outrageous event are truly selfish, and ignorant of potentials outside their sheltered lives. In the Winchester School System, a minority staff member is the exception rather than the rule. By accepting Ms. Clinton's resignation, I feel this community has made a complete step backwards in the education of its youth.

Through the bigoted action of these students, I am ashamed to admit I'm from Winchester, the community that thinks of itself as progressive.

Kimberly Shawcross

Disgusted

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Recently I discovered, like the rest of the town, that the only black teacher at the high school resigned. But, unlike the town, I found out Wednesday, Mar. 15, from a paper other than The Star.

It was before a class of mine at the University of Mass. — Amherst — I was taking a quick glance through the fourth page. I came upon a headline on the fourth page about a black teacher being forced to resign because of racial slurs and misbehavior in the classroom.

I was disgusted by it and assumed it to have taken place in some southern town. I was even more disgusted when the article said it was Winchester.

At school people ask me where I am from and I say Winchester, and it seems four out of five people ask me why I am at a state school, as if all of us are rich. Most people have the impression that Winchester is a "snob town." Up until Wednesday I always tried to deny it. But bigotry is just another form of snobbery and when the impression of Winchester being a "snob town" is being constantly reinforced, it gets hard to deny it.

I don't know the teacher who resigned, but one thing I do know is that it is a sad commentary on this town when the students are racist. Teachers aren't the only people that teach the students. Things like bigotry are taught early in life by parents before the teachers ever get near the students.

View with alarm

SUPERINTENDENT MACDONALD
We, the undersigned, black parents of Winchester, view with alarm the recent resignation of Mrs. Charlene Clinton, a Spanish teacher at Winchester High School. Our personal experiences in raising children leads us to make the following observation: The whole incident related to the resignation is symptomatic of a cancerous condition—racism.

To change this condition we would strongly urge compliance with both the spirit and application of equal opportunity laws. (The employment of only three black teachers in the entire system is unwholesome). We advocate the training of teachers and students in human relations.

As Winchester residents, our families have shared in the same indignities suffered by Mrs. Clinton. We urgently demand that the School Committee, the administration, and teachers assume leadership in providing an atmosphere of mutual respect and understanding.

Reduced fare for seniors

By The Observer

An MBTA registration team will be in Belmont Mar. 30, between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. to process applications for reduced fare identification cards for eligible senior citizens and eligible handicapped citizens of Belmont and surrounding communities.

Registration will take place at the Belmont Town Hall.

To be eligible for a senior citizen reduced fare identification card, which contains the name and address of the holder and a color photograph for positive identification, senior citizens must bring proof of age — 65 years or older — such as a birth certification, baptismal record, or driver's license; proof of residency such as a driver's license, library card or charge plate; and 50¢ cash fee.

Medicare cards will not be accepted as proof of age.

The MBTA stressed that senior citizens who already have a reduced fare identification card do not need to register again.

To be eligible for a handicapped citizen reduced fare identification card, good only during off-peak hours, handicapped persons must present acceptable proof of their disability, such as a letter from the Social Security Administration; evidence of 70 percent or more disability as determined by the United States Veterans' Administration; or completion of MBTA Form No. SN-7 which must be approved and signed by a physician or state or federal agency serving the handicapped.

The MBTA forms will be mailed to anyone requesting them by calling the MBTA's Special Needs Office at 722-5123.

For the attention of any resident craftsmen: The Tuberous Sclerosis Association of America is holding an arts and crafts fair May 20 at their "Strawberry Festival," to be held at Edaville Railroad, Route 58, So. Carver.

More than 1000 volunteers have been recruited for the New England Hemophilia Association's 1978 house-to-house campaign. The campaign will begin Monday and continue until Apr. 2.

The campaign is directed by the New England Hemophilia Association, a Chapter of the National Hemophilia Foundation in New York. Funds from the campaign will help support the Association's summer camp, scholarship, social service and education programs for hemophilic families and those involved in the treatment of the disease.

Any questions about the campaign or hemophilia in general will be answered by writing to the Association at Box 310, Lincoln, Ma. 01773.

Glad to be out

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Recently I returned to Winchester from college with the express purpose of seeing the high school musical. As usual, it was a fine example of how students can work together to put something like this difficult play off as well as they did. The entire cast did a very good job; I was impressed and proud to have been a part of the high school drama society.

However, my impression of the high school, and therefore the town in general, built up over the years I lived in Winchester, was shattered. I learned that the only black teacher at the high school felt forced to resign.

This throws a bad light on the town, supposedly well-educated and liberal. But it confirms a trend in high schools in general: away from the eye-opening radicalism of the 60s toward the vandalistic apathy of the 70s. The old cliché, "kids these days..." is said each year, I'm sure, but now it is no longer cute.

Of course I realize that not every high school student was responsible for the action taken by a few, but it is the entire school system, teachers, administration, and students, that has to live with this embarrassment. I am sorry to be so cynical, but I am glad to be out of this town.

My initial outrage has now turned to disgust.

Commends actions

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I think we should all commend not only the vote of Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh in calling for a blue ribbon panel to investigate irregularities in the awarding of state contracts, but his later actions in pressing for that probe.

These irregularities may well prove to be one of the worst scandals in the history of the Commonwealth. The sooner the new commission can be appointed, the sooner we can take steps to insure that this will never happen again.

Deadbeats

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to take this opportunity to remind all members that annual dues are now payable for continued membership in the Mass. Deadbeats Association.

Remember, that in order to remain in good standing, you have to be consistently looking for a better job (as I am), and periodically contemplating taking a job which would normally be far below your standards (which I have). Also, in order to be considered for an officer's status within the association you must, I repeat — must have been unemployed, laid off or fired for at least three months within the last two years.

Furthermore, you must be in the average middle class, with a working wife (part-time or full-time) and absolutely non-eligible for any help from any agency in this country. Also, you must have at least one child. (Married couples without children do not qualify fully for the local association but may, when close to despair, apply for temporary admission to the Vermont chapter of Deadbeats, Inc.)

Finally, I would like to thank all the federal, state and local legislators (and any other sectors of society I may have forgotten) for their continued effort on our behalf. (I don't know how they get by!) And, in case you're wondering, applications are available at all unemployment and personnel offices. Definitely yours,

Peter G. Keenan

Giveaway

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

One of the strangest objections to the giveaway of the Panama Canal is the fact that it will surely fall into the hands of the Soviet Communists since Omar Torrijos is a staunch friend and ally of Fidel Castro and Castro is a faithful footlocker of his Soviet masters.

Recently, though totally ignored by our mass media in the U.S., the Soviets went to Panama and quietly began negotiating for a trade and economic agreement with the Torrijos government.

The agreement involved: 1. Purchase of 50,000 tons of crude sugar by the Soviets at a price much higher than the current world market rate.

2. Soviet construction of a major factory in Panama related to the sugar industry.

3. Construction by the Soviets of a hydro-electric plant.

4. Permission by the Soviets to use the free trade zone near Colon to avoid customs.

5. Establishment of a Soviet bank in Panama.

For those who still hope that Communism will not play a major role in Panama in the days to come, these facts may be of interest:

1. The number of diplomatic employees in the Cuban embassy in Panama is 225, greater than any other embassy.

2. Cubans supervise the Panamanian National Guard.

3. The only political party in Panama is the Communist's People's Party!

Let there be no mistake, our future security is at stake in this treasonous giveaway. "Treason doth never prosper, what's the reason? Why, if it doth prosper none dare call it treason."

Time to change

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It will be two years ago this April that I presented to the editor of the Winchester Star a loving tribute to my recently deceased mother, which I asked to be published in her memory. My request was denied on the basis that it was the policy of the newspaper not to print subject matter to this affect. I respected their decision and accepted their denial on this basis.

However, I am well aware of the fact that there are exceptions to all rules, or in this case, to all policies of newspapers. I am also a firm believer in the fact that once a newspaper has made a policy on certain issues it should stand by their policies, regardless of exceptions or content of material. If the newspaper feels from time to time it has the right to change its mind on a policy, then of course it may do so.

However, in order to save hurt feelings to those whose articles are denied, I suggest this recommendation to the editor. The time has come that you should seriously consider a change in your policy. I am sure there have been and will continue to be many well-written and heart-warming articles submitted to your newspaper for publishing. I feel that these articles deserve to be read by the citizens of this town. I also feel that memories of well liked and loved citizens of Winchester should be shared and treasured with all your readers. Please remember that these people helped mould this town into the kind of place we can be proud of.

It seems to me that reading and sharing loving thoughts on our citizens who richly deserve them, would only make this newspaper that much more enjoyable to read. After all, isn't caring about people what life is really all about?

Sen. Rotondi gives support to special investigation

Senator Samuel Rotondi today announced his strong support for legislation to create a blue ribbon commission to investigate allegations of corruption in the state's awarding of contracts.

This proposal, which received the support of Governor Dukakis, was prompted by allegations of irregularities involving the consulting firm of McKee-Berger-Mansueti, Inc. for the building of the University of Massachusetts at Columbia Point.

The commission will consist of one member each of the House of Representatives and Senate, elected by a majority vote of those respective bodies; the attorney general or his designee; the state auditor or his designee; and seven members to be appointed by the governor. Six of those members appointed by the governor shall not hold any public office or be a member or employee of any political committee. One shall be a registered architect, one shall be a member of the state bar, one shall be a registered certified public accountant, and one shall be a professional engineer.

The commission may employ an executive director and other assistance as it may deem necessary. Also, this blue ribbon panel will have the assistance of the attorney general, state auditor, and the commissioner of public safety.

The legislation imbues the body with full subpoena powers and allows them access to the granting of immunity.

All hearings of the proposed commission shall be public. Upon order of the commission, its counsels shall present to the grand jury for its action, or submit to the attorney general and district attorney or other law enforcement agencies, any evidence that the commission determines warrants such a submission of presentation.

The scope of the commission is to investigate and study the existence and extend of corrupt practices concerning state and county construction contracts of buildings from Jan. 1, 1969 to present. The investigation shall specifically include the consideration of the awarding, implementation, and the subsequent events concerning the contracts between McKee-Berger-Mansueti, Inc., and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts relating to the management of certain buildings on the Boston campus of the University of Massachusetts.

The senator commented, "There has been substantial doubt and suspicion raised in the minds of the citizens of Massachusetts concerning the way in which public contracts have been awarded for the construction of state and county buildings. This sense of doubt has precipitated a dangerous collapse of faith and trust in the very essence of democratic government. Therefore, it is my firm resolve that immediate and sensible action must be taken to impartially and diligently investigate the basis which has caused this breakdown of public confidence. I have examined, closely, the details of this proposed commission, and believe that it provides a rational, meaningful, and necessary approach to a much needed cleansing process. There are adequate safeguards in the legislation which will mitigate against its becoming a witch hunt."

Sen. Rotondi further commented, "The scope of this commission may very well be unrealistically vast, but I prefer that its breadth be too wide rather than too narrow. Also, the cooperation of the state's law enforcement agencies as well as its court system will provide a substantial, supplemental work force. The joint committee on judiciary will conduct a public hearing on Thursday, March 23, 1978 at 9 a.m. and it will be held in the Gardner Auditorium located in the State House."

"The Massachusetts State Senate has demonstrated that it can react swiftly, impartially, and with dignity when the public demands an accounting of their government. The painful process which leads to the expulsion of a member of the senate, several months ago, should be adequate proof of that fact."

"The time has come when once again the Senate must make such an accounting to the people of Massachusetts, and I am confident that the Senate will again arise to the occasion."

As Dr. Paul B. Connerly, President of the American Public Health Association, said, "If the fish are dying, the people are not far behind."

When small pets and animals are dying from the chlorine, the tap water in Town has reached crisis proportions.

Only the space age Multi-Pure Home Water Purification system can remove the many toxic impurities and chlorine in tap drinking water.

The Multi-Pure health unit can provide clean safe drinking water that removes all bad tastes and odors for better family living.

Local input sought for April 30 bicycle race

Clint Paige and Peter Mooney would like to sponsor a bike race in Winchester on April 30 in support of a state-wide "Bicycle Week."

The two, partners in Winchester's Wheelworks bicycle shop at 167 Washington st., have worked out preliminary safety requirements and received the go-ahead from the police department. Now they are awaiting the okay from the board of selectmen.

Safety for riders and spectators means that certain roads along the route would have to be closed to automobile traffic for a couple of hours and other access roads would have to have detour signs put up.

Selectmen questioned Paige in considerable detail but failed to take a vote, despite undisguised enthusiasm for the undertaking. Selectman Arthur E. Dunbar wanted to "make sure we have some input from the residents" who would be affected by the temporary closing of their streets.

The 42-mile route would require 30 laps around a 1.4-mile course beginning at Mystic Valley parkway and Main street. It would proceed up the parkway to Bacon street and back up Main street to the starting point. Paige, who presented most of the material at Monday night's board of selectmen's meeting, indicated that a Sunday afternoon would "prove to be the least disruptive" to the town. He also said that traffic in and out of the route area would be permitted during the break in races and that the longest period the streets would have to stay closed would be two hours.

The five-hour event, beginning at 1 p.m., would be broken down into two kinds of races. The first part of the Sunday afternoon would be devoted to local youngsters competing in one of three age divisions, 9-12, 13-15, and 16-18. The later events would follow national cycling federation rules and be divided according to the ability of the cyclist.

Mooney is himself a two-time 1977 state bicycling champion.

In addition to closing streets, other safety requirements suggested by Safety Officer John W. McKinley and agreed to by Paige and Mooney, include the following:

Notify all houses within the circular route of the detour routes by leaflets distributed door to door.

Provide all signs, small and large.

Place all cones and horses at specific points.

Provide manned road blocks at key points. Employ detail police officers as needed, if requested to do so by the town.

Officer McKinley, the police chief, and the department of recreation all gave approval to the event. The recreation department had offered to assist and the police suggested Explorer Scouts might be interested in working on the races.

The selectmen are asking that residents within the circle bounded by Mystic Valley parkway, Main street, and Bacon street make their feelings known by dropping a note at the selectmen's office, second floor of Town Hall. The board is planning to take a vote on this first-of-a-kind event on Monday night.

Some of the questions put to Paige included anticipated size of the crowd. Paige thought that spectators and cyclists would number in the hundreds. In response to another question, he said that he had no direct commercial interest in the races other than the publicity given the Wheelworks. He also said that in the event that an emergency vehicle would need to get into the race area, the race would be stopped immediately. A lead car with a loudspeaker goes along the route and can notify cyclists of any problems.

"No one would violate the rules of federation bicycling," he said.

Barbara Hankins ended the hour-long discussion by saying, "This sounds like something very exciting, but we want to be sure to hear from residents."

Lawrence M. Murray, president of Winchester Rotary Club (left), gives a hand to guest speaker Paul Andrews, assistant superintendent of the Woburn Public Schools. Andrews was speaker at Rotary's weekly luncheon meeting Feb. 16.

Notes from the WEA

New officers

The Winchester Education Association has elected new officers for the coming year. The entire slate ran uncontested.

Chosen president was Cathy Sheridan, a teacher at Parkhurst who has been on the association's negotiating team and served as vice president for the past two years.

Steve Gorrie from Noonan was chosen vice president. He too has been on the negotiating team and served as treasurer for the past two years.

The new treasurer is Paul Davis from McCall, another member of the negotiating team. The new secretary is Peggy Sullivan, a CLIP teacher at the high school.

The annual elections were held Mar. 15 in all of the schools, reports outgoing President Bernard Silva.

Lynch Junior High

Special thanks are extended to Walton Gagel, science teacher at Lynch, who, in addition to his regular teaching duties, has been sharing some of his expertise in other areas with Lynch students. The social studies department is especially grateful for his lectures on real estate and demonstrations of regional American dialects.

In addition, Gagel has lectured on theater to Mr. Jacobs' music students, teaching the complete structure and organization of a musical comedy production from director to special effects. For Miss L'Oranges' seventh grade English classes, Gagel has demonstrated the organization of a scene, its blocking, and stage movement-including eye and hand movements, timing, etc.

Gagel is directing "Pajama Game," which will be presented at Lynch on May 4, 5, and 6.

Dept. of Education

The elevation of education to cabinet-level status in the federal government, as proposed by President Carter in his State of the Union address, draws much praise from the Winchester Education Association.

"Teachers and students in this nation have been buried too long between Health and Welfare," says Bernard J. Silva, President of the Winchester Education Association.

"A separate Department of Education will establish education as a national priority, as parents have wanted it to be for their children; permit better and more effective use of federal dollars for education; and open discussion for the first time in our nation's history on educational policy for this country."

"Education has little to do with writing social security and welfare checks, the nation's health, and a myriad of other things that HEW is involved with. Consolidation is a goal whose time has come; for instance, placing Indian education under a Department of Education instead of Bureau of Indian Affairs, the school-lunch program under Education instead of the Agriculture Department, and many others."

The National Education Association was responsible for introduction of a bill in 1866 that led to the first department of education in 1867. This department was not of cabinet status, but was within the Department of Interior, where it remained until almost 25 years ago when it became a part of HEW.

With the substantial support in Congress, the National PTA, the National School Boards Association, the American Association of School Administrators, the Coalition of American Public Employees, six former U.S. Commissioners of Education, and the endorsement of President Carter, we will finally see education become a priority in America."

The high school

Nancey Gelowsky, teacher of Spanish and French at Winchester High School, is a member of the professional advisory group reporting to the Massachusetts Department of Education. This advisory group will study the teacher certification laws in the Commonwealth and changes to be made in the laws and will advise the state department of education. Ms. Gelowsky, who is also certified to teach Italian, continues her study of that language with the Harvard Extension Program.

About town

Winchester students were right on top of things as WHS took four prizes in a recent essay contest sponsored by the Golden Ring Council of Senior Citizens and the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Seniors Sean Costello and Thomas Mitchell took second place, winning $150 each. Senior Stephen Delinger took a third place $75 and Sophomore Allison Murray took a $25-fourth place.

The seniors are students of George Watson and Alison is in Mrs. Diane Zeskind's American Studies I class. Gov. Michael Dukakis presented awards at a luncheon on March 3.

Praise for people who helped out during the blizzard of 1978 continues to trickle in. David Cowgill helped to check snowbound cars in the Rte. 138 area to see if anyone was trapped inside. David, a freshman at Curry College, is an emergency medical technician and spent one night of the storm helping out in the emergency room at Milton Hospital.

David also helped evacuees housed in Blue Hills Regional Vocational High School and escorted storm victims who had been brought by army helicopter to Canton High School. He is the son of Brooks and Mary Lu Cowgill and the brother of Ann, a senior at Winchester High School.

Eighth grade students of Mrs. Miriam A. Reid and Mrs. Beverly Cronan were named as winners in a nationwide "golden goose" competition that tested young people's understanding of the American economic system. The class, which competed against more than 28,000 other contestants, won a ceramic trophy and $100.

The contest was sponsored by Wheelabrator-Frye Inc. of Hampton, N.H., an international environmental and energy company which publishes a special annual report for young people.

Dale Beardon, a 1976 graduate of Winchester High School who was active in theatrical performances here, is the sergeant of police in Brandeis University's campus production of "Pirates of Penzance." The Gilbert and Sullivan operetta plays March 30-April 1 at 8:30 and April 2 at 7.

event was sponsored by the New England Amateur Athletic Association Union.

The local runners included Leo Chandler, Bob Barnaby Jr., Saul S. Beaumont, James G. Indolfi, Mark Domaszewicz, George Q. McDowell, Bruce T. Hill, and Thomas B. Spang.

Winchester residents David Croston, Gary Martin, and Tony Simboli left last week to participate in a science program at the Bermuda Biological Station. The three are participating in a program which is being offered to high school students for the first time. A total of 22 students will spend eight days studying Bermuda's reef and mangrove ecology through snorkeling observations and specimen gathering.

Auxiliary social Monday at 8 p.m.

The Aberjona Ladies' Auxiliary No. 3719, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold its monthly social at the post quarters on River street on Monday evening at 8 p.m.

The social will be for the benefit of the organization's charitable endeavors. Chairman Mary Titiloh invites the public, and refreshments will be served.

VOTE - RODGERS - TUESDAY MARCH 28

Bay State roll call

The House

Panama Canal House refused, 158-30, to suspend rules to allow consideration of resolutions urging the United States Senate and Sen. Edward Brooke to vote to ratify the Panama Canal treaties.

Supporters argued it was important for the U.S. Senate to ratify the treaties claimed the U.S. should not be re-asserting American colonialism in the 1970's, and noted the land was of no strategic value to the U.S.

Opponents argued the Canal was the last free and open canal left, noted the U.S. has paid billions for it already, and should retain it, and noted the Canal Zone, in contrast to the rest of the country, is well-maintained and prosperous because of American presence there.

A second debate also surfaced over the question of whether the Massachusetts House should involve itself in U.S. foreign policy questions. Some legislators voted "present" and urged others to do so, claiming the Massachusetts House was not elected to vote on foreign policy issues. Others disagreed saying the House, in the past, has voted on Vietnam War and other resolutions, and helped focus the grassroots opposition to the war.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted against suspending the rules.

MBM - Attorney General and auditor House passed 115-112, but failed to gain the necessary two-thirds margin for rule suspension to allow consideration of an order inviting the attorney general and state auditor to address a closed session of the House on the allegations of corruption regarding the awarding of state contracts, particularly the MBM controversy.

Supporters argued the two officials should be required to inform the House as to the status of the investigations, noted there have been suggestions that the attorney general has not been pursuing all the proper avenues of investigation open to him, and claimed this resolution was an important move for the House to adopt.

Opponents argued the session would not truly be "closed" and would be inappropriate, claimed it was not the responsibility of the House to react to the inaction of the auditor and attorney general, and urged members who were concerned to speak to the attorney general and auditor themselves and not try to manipulate the House with a grandstand play.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted for suspension of the rules.

Terminally-ill patients (H 5233) House rejected 167-49, an amendment to a bill establishing the rights of patients and residents in hospitals, clinics, and other facilities. The amendment gives the patient the right to have attached to his medical records, a signed and notarized statement indicating his wishes regarding further medical treatment which would artificially prolong his life if he should have a condition certified as terminal by two doctors.

Supporters argued the amendment is a minimal and conservatively cautious measure allowing a patient who wishes to express his wishes to his family and doctors to do so, noted it was not legally binding, but claimed it could be useful in court if the patient's case is ever brought there for resolution.

Many opponents agreed the issue was important, but most argued the patient's right bill itself has been in the works for several years, claimed it was very important and on the verge of passage, and said the "right to die" issue should be considered itself and should not be attached to this bill.

Rep. Saltmarsh favored the amendment.

Elderly housing (H 3433) House gave initial approval 172-40, to a measure providing that ownership of residential property shall not make elderly persons ineligible for public housing.

Supporters argued the bill simply allows senior citizens who own homes to be put on the regular list for admission to elderly housing projects, noted it still requires the homeowners to meet all the necessary standards when they reach the top of the list, and said this was a key vote for the elderly.

Opponents argued the bill was a poor one that gives false hope to elderly homeowners, claimed that with a $10,000 asset ceiling to qualify for elderly housing most elderly homeowners would exceed the ceiling and not qualify after selling their homes, and noted this bill would also help the elderly homeowner at the expense of more needy elderly people.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted for the bill.

Study Boston finances (H 148) House rejected 123-90, a bill providing for a special commission to conduct an investigation relative to the finances, sources of revenue, and costs of the city of Boston.

Supporters argued the investigation would be a valuable tool to help set some standards for an audit of Boston's finances, and noted this would help offset the reluctance of the Legislature to give Boston funds because of its poor financial track record.

Opponents argued the bill was a poor one, noted it interferes with the city of Boston, and claimed the Legislature should not involve itself in an investigation of a city's finances. Saltmarsh voted for the measure.

Review civil service exams (H 1107) House gave initial approval 191-23, to a bill allowing applicants for civil service jobs to review their examinations once the results have been received.

Supporters argued the applicants should have the right to see their graded exam and claimed the Civil Service Administration is a giant bureaucracy which violates individual rights.

Opponents argued the bill would hurt applicants in the long run because it would delay the new procedure which now requires exam results to be reported out in 90 days. They also noted a subcommittee is being created to look into a variety of procedures relating to civil service exams.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted to approve.

Consulting contracts (H 2674) House gave initial approval 179-36, to a bill requiring contracts for consulting services to be awarded on the basis of competitive bids.

Supporters argued this would put consulting services under the competitive bidding laws and require the consulting firm to be chosen from among the top three lowest bids, noted it would require advertising of available consulting contracts for public bidding, and claimed it would help stop corrupt situations, such as the MBM scandal from being repeated.

Opponents argued the bill was completely unworkable, and noted it would require any contract for consulting services over $2000 to be put out for competitive bidding. They claimed it would be impossible to invite and accept bids from firms on all consulting services since oftentimes, the contract is for services like a lawyer for a department for an undetermined amount of hours and unspecified duties.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted in favor of the bill.

The Senate

Panama Canal (S 1389) - Senate approved 21-12, resolutions urging Congress to retain complete control and sovereignty over the Panama Canal.

Supporters argued the U.S. bought the canal for $10 million and has spent $6 billion to maintain it, and claimed the efficient and secure operation of the canal is vital to the economic and security interests of the U.S.

Some opponents argued the U.S. should not be reasserting colonialism practices and claimed the canal is of no strategic value to the U.S. Others voted against the resolutions or voted "present" on them because they claimed the State Senate should not get involved in foreign policy issues.

Sen. Rotondi opposed the resolutions.

Smoking in restaurants (S 410) - Senate refused to table (defeat) a new version of a bill requiring restaurants with more than 100 seats to have a no-smoking area. The measure also provides a $50 fine to restaurant owners who fail to designate a no-smoking area with a sign, and to owners who refuse to request violators who smoke in a no-smoking area to put out their tobacco product.

Supporters of the bill argued that non-smokers have a right to be protected against polluted air and "second-hand smoke" which is very dangerous. Noted similar bills have been adopted in other states and are working well, and noted the bill is a compromise since it applies to restaurants with seating for 100, rather than the original bill which applied to restaurants with seating for 30.

Opponents argued the state should not force restaurants to designate no-smoking areas as this is merely another example of government interference, claimed many restaurants have already voluntarily provided no-smoking areas, and noted the government should spend more time and money on public education regarding smoking rather than trying to change public attitudes and habits by laws.

Sen. Rotondi: voted not to table the bill.

Through an iron gate, under palm trees, is the courtyard of Mother Tongue, an international restaurant. Cruzan rum punch is served at the bar. Lunch is served in the courtyard, dinners indoors in the main room overlooking Frederiksted Harbor. The featured dish of the evening might be French, Italian, or Chinese. Late at night there is pizza in all variations. Dress is casual and the crowd tends to be international. This kind of relaxation, plus all the atmosphere and historical interest of St. Croix make this a wonderful place for a visit.

No matter where you travel, come to MCGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Avenue, Woburn. The largest of the Virgin Islands, St. Croix is best known for its excellent beaches. Golf, tennis, fishing, scuba diving and sailing are the most popular sports. The landscape includes mountains, a rain forest and cactus country. Call 925-0600. Plans underway for "Spring Fling" lunch, fashion show

Plans for "Spring Fling," a fashion show and champagne petite luncheon, were discussed at the March meeting of the Winchester Home and Garden Club.

"Spring Fling" is to be a benefit for the new Winchester Seniors Center, with the proceeds to be used toward the landscaping of the center. It will be held at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church Apr. 12. Tickets are available by advance sale only. Further information can be obtained by calling 729-4584.

After the business meeting conducted by Mrs. Richard Keating, Vice-President, Mrs. James Grassi, program chairman, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Charles E. Butts. Mrs. Butts, author, lecturer at the Museum of Fine Arts, and instructor at the Massachusetts Federation of Garden Club's Landscape Design School, gave an illustrated lecture using many slides of 19th century landscapes, photographs from the era, and photographs of today, to illustrate our vanishing wilderness and what modern landscape architects have done to create the feeling of greenery and space amidst the present day concrete jungles of our cities.

She emphasized that Boston is a perfect example of early planners foresight in creating green belts. Frederick Law Olmstead's Emerald Necklace of The Boston Common, Boston Public Gardens, The Fens, and finally ending at World's End in Hingham being a famous one familiar to all. The modern landscape architects are now carrying on his tradition with the creation of the Quincy Market green area and the new waterfront park.

Correction

The headline last week announcing the engagement of Kathryn J. Perrine to Robert VanMagness, misspelled Mr. VanMagness' name. The article also mentioned that Miss Perrine is attending Boston University; she in fact graduated after a one-year program in 1975.

Concert to benefit ABC

The ABC House in Winchester is sponsoring their annual benefit concert, to feature the Evelyn White Chorale, in the Winchester High School auditorium April 8.

Mrs. White is the director of the Howard University Alumni Choir and Chamber Choir, the Washington Community Chorus, and is visiting professor of music at the Catholic University of America. She is a member of the choral panel of the National Endowment for the Arts and has written and published a comprehensive bibliography of choral music for black composers.

The Evelyn White Chorale is a select, 45-member ensemble which has built a reputation for its performance of choral music representing all styles and periods.

A special effort has been made by this group to publicize the choral works of black composers, including the most neglected area of the Art Songs. The Chorale has won considerable recognition because of the service it has performed in bringing to the attention of the public unfamiliar composers and their music.

This group appeared in concert at the National Gallery of Art; presented a concert in the inaugural series of programs at Kennedy Center; performed at the national meeting of the American Choral Directors Association, Dallas, TX, 1977; has performed at universities and colleges; has presented annual concerts in Washington, D.C. and appeared at the Music Educators National Conference-Eastern Division, 1977.

The chorale was selected with the National Symphony Brass Quintet to perform in honor of the installation of the Honorable Livingston L. Biddle as chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts.

The Chorale's program is designed to give some idea of the wide range of styles which exists in the choral music of black composers.

Almost all of the Afro-American composers are graduates of American colleges and universities and have studied with composers trained in the European tradition; as a result their output varies in content from works characterized by the neo-romanticism so influential among 20th century American composers, to more strongly dissonant compositions reflecting neo-classical as well as more progressive techniques.

The influence of the spiritual is strongly evident among these composers; in fact, the large majority of published works is based directly upon the spiritual.

Compositions in the first three groups of this program are in the European tradition, although "Listen to the Lambs" makes use of an Afro-American melody. The last two groups are devoted to the Negro spiritual as presented by five of its most successful and widely performed arrangers.

The Winchester ABC Program has been in operation for seven years. Tickets for this concert are available from Carolyn Ward, 729-8615 or at the door on the night of the concert.

Haydn mass at Epiphany Apr. 2

The Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church St., will present a public concert featuring Haydn's Lord Nelson Mass, Apr. 2, at 4 p.m. The senior choir will sing under organist-conductor John Corrie. There will be a free-will offering to benefit the organ fund.

At McCall School

"Oklahoma" coming in April

Rehearsals are well underway for the annual McCall Junior High School spring musical. It will be presented on Apr. 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. in the McCall auditorium. This year the producer, Paul G. Davis of the McCall music staff, and the director, Mrs. Sally Murdock have selected the smash Broadway musical comedy "Oklahoma!" as their major production.

Davis, in addition to co-ordinating the production crews and acting as ticket manager, is the choral director for the show. As such, he has held numerous rehearsals to date with the principals and entire cast. This is the third McCall musical production with which Davis has been associated. This year, for "Oklahoma!", almost 200 McCall students will have the opportunity to work together in the various areas of theatre production.

Other McCall teachers will also be offering valuable assistance as chairmen of production crews. They are Nell Gillis, technical stage advisor; Ralph DiBona, set construction; David Ardito, scenic art; and John McGrath, ushers.

Along with the two evening performances on Apr. 14 and 15, there will be a matinee dress rehearsal Apr. 12 at 3:30 p.m. for all elementary students and an evening dress rehearsal Apr. 13 at 7 p.m. for senior citizens. Tickets for "Oklahoma!" are on sale now from members of the cast and from Davis at McCall.

WHS math team finishes third

The Winchester High School math team finished third in the northern division of the Greater Boston Math League held in January at Moden Catholic High School.

In the overall league standings the team is in 10th place in the 44-team league. High scorers after three meets are seniors

Jeff Sample and Steven Watts. Out of the 220 individual competitors in the league, Sample is in 7th place and Watts is in 14th place.

Also on the January team were sophomores Adam Malamy and Mike Bosselaers and junior Robert Boyle.

The next meet will be held April 5.

Students, parents, faculty challenged in '78 Olympics

The combined efforts of the Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Association and the Student Union will once again bring the olympic games to the high school this year.

On Mar. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium, outstanding representatives of physical fitness will compete for the coveted WHS Olympic medals of valor.

Three teams - the parents, the faculty, and the students - will participate in 10 events, including an obstacle relay, a basketball game, a "Project Adventure" series of skill challenges, and the highly-acclaimed tug-of-war.

Principal Vin Larocco will begin the games by igniting the olympic torch. Each team has developed its own set of cheerleaders, with Eve West leading the cheers for the students and Judy Tyson trying to rouse the parents. The head faculty cheerleader is one of the best kept secrets of the sports world.

Clark Cowen will be the master of ceremonies, and the high school band will provide the music for the entire evening.

The evening is the annual fund-raising event for the parent-faculty association. The money raised is used by the association for its many activities, including support for the Red and Black school newspaper, the Aberjona year book, many of the student clubs, the welcoming tea for the teachers, the scholarship fund, and communications with the parents.

Team captains have already been coaching their players to hone their athletic prowess to a keen edge. Bill and Joan Bird, and Lane and Anne McGovern are confident their team of parents will come out on top, while Vandy French has thrown down the gauntlet for his team of faculty.

The students have wisely selected the presidents and vice-presidents of the three classes to co-captain the students to a hoped-for victory. These young upstarts - Charlie Larkin, Chuck Govostos, Don Dirocco, Dan Beaton, Bob Fiore and Bob McGinnis - are certain they have the edge over the more senior participants in the games.

To maintain the stamina of participants and spectators alike, refreshments will be served. Everyone is invited to come and enjoy this spectacular event. Tickets are available at the Winchester Sports Shop, Craddock's Apothecary, or by calling Ann Ferry, 729-5431, or Jackie Hefferman, 729-2511.

Playwright Gurney works in two different worlds

By Theodore Wood Jr.
(Theodore Wood Jr., a Winchester resident for fifteen years, is Professor of American Studies at M.I.T.)

A.R. ("Pete") Gurney Jr. the author of three plays to be performed by the Winchester Unitarian Players Apr. 6, 7 and 8, welcomed me in his office, where I was to interview him for the newspaper.

He teaches literature and drama in the department of humanities at MIT, so I asked him a teasing question: How did he feel about being a "professor-dramatist"? He grimaced.

"I divide up my professions," he said. "Two thirds of the year I'm a professor, and the rest of the time I'm a playwright. Literally, I can't be both at the same time. The're different worlds," he added. "One is solid, intellectual, Establishment — and the other is free, more personal. It calls on me to put something together rather than to show people how somebody else put something together. I hope your publicity won't refer to me as Professor Gurney!"

I knew he had written two novels, "The Gospel According to Joe" and "Entertaining Strangers", so the next question followed quickly. Did he regard himself primarily as a novelist or a playwright? Which discipline did he prefer? No hesitation here at all.

"Writing novels is a lonely job. I don't like it much and I don't feel at home in it. If you look at them as I do, both my novels are really extended dramatic monologues. So you see, even as a novelist the playwright shows through."

He went on to say that the real fun in writing and producing plays is that, once they are written, they are a community activity.

Referring to his recent New York production, "The Wayside Motor Inn," he said, "Right from the beginning, I was part of the action. I helped choose the director and collect the cast. I was in on most of the important rehearsals, and we all worked together to improve the dialogue, the 'business,' even the sets up to the last minute. Then," he grinned, "I hated it. I hate first nights!"

I asked Pete finally why, in his earlier plays (including The Comeback and The Golden Fleece, to be seen in Winchester), he used familiar classical Greek dramas and mythical events to point up the dilemmas and struggles of middle-class life in America today.

"I'm less interested in plot than I am in tone, in adding an essential dramatic irony to the life of our time. Maybe not universality, but at least suggested parallels. But you don't have to know the Greeks to get involved in the circumstances of my characters. I guess. There's plenty of quiet drama in everyday suburban life without evoking echoes of the historical past."

It was five minutes before the hour, time for class, and Professor Gurney dropped his paperback copy of Euripides' "Medea" into his L.L. Bean green bag and headed down the corridor to meet the challenges of one of his two professions.

The Winchester League of Women Voters is sponsoring the Friday, Apr. 17 performance of Gurney's plays. Tickets are available from Mrs. Charles Morgan, 6 Crescent rd.

Six Weeks needs local volunteers

Plans are underway for the Six Weeks Adventure program, to be held from July 5 Aug. 11. This program for city and Winchester children, in a daycamp setting, was originally started due to the efforts of the Winchester Ecumenical Association and other interested parties in town.

If you would like to be part of the planning of the program, or if you like to sew, cook paint, swim, play tennis, like arts and crafts or simply love to be around kids. You are urged to attend the meeting that will be held Tuesday at the First Congregational Church at 7:30.

If you are unable to attend the meeting, call the coordinator of the program, Sandra Wahl, at 729-4739 to volunteer your services.

New deadline

There is a new news deadline for The Star: 3 p.m. on Mondays. All news copy and pictures should be in the office by that time. (Classified deadline remains Tuesday at 4 p.m.; display advertising should be in by 5 p.m. Tuesday.)

Mothers of Twins monthly meeting

The monthly meeting of the Massachusetts Mothers of Twins Association, Inc. will be held Monday at the Park Avenue Congregational Church, Park Avenue, Arlington at 8 p.m.

The program will feature Herbert Boureau, a lawyer from Medford. He will discuss the importance of having a will.

Meeting of the Founding Chapter are open to all mothers, grandmothers and legal guardians of twins and multiple births.

Pee Wees post two victories over Arlington, Watertown

The Winchester Pee Wees added two more wins to their league record as they defeated Arlington 7-4 last Friday evening and blasted Watertown 8-4 on Saturday at Burlington.

Arlington scored early in the first period and the Hawks had difficulty mounting an attack until Bob Divincenzo's blast caught the top left corner to tie the game. This sparked the Hawks as they caught fire for four unanswered goals during late first and early second period action.

Paul Tucci and Mike Griffin each connected twice to put the Hawks in front 5-1. The momentum shifted late in the second period, however, as the Spy Ponders bounced back to cut the lead to 5-3 on goals by Jones and Manfredonia.

Early in the third period, Arlington capitalized again on the power play as they cut the Hawk lead to one goal. The Hawks played sound two-way hockey from then on, led by the sharp goaltending of Pat Falla, the backchecking of Steve Masiello and the defensive efforts of Danny Sullivan and Billy Eaton.

Mike Griffin's third marker of the night on a breakaway with 2:35 remaining added the insurance goal and Coley Wilson's scoring blast sealed the upset victory for the Hawks.

shot behind a downed goalie. Watertown roared back with Lietner scoring 15 seconds later to make the score 3-2.

Less than two minutes later, Masiello again found the scoring touch as he and Paul Tucci combined on a pretty passing play to once again provide the Hawks with a two goal cushion.

Watertown refused to surrender, however, as they found the range again to make the score 4-3. The Hawks did not bend to the pressure and continued their offensive barrage as Griffin tallied what proved to be the game winner with 4:01 remaining during the second period. Vlachos scored again for Watertown to make the score 5-4, setting the stage for third period action.

The Hawks owned the third period, both offensively and defensively, however. Bob Divincenzo's goal at 2:06 was followed shortly thereafter by the game's prettiest scoring play as Mike Griffin's perfect centering pass from the left wingboard was tipped home by Bob Engel to make the score 7-4. Steve Masiello completed the scoring, notching a hat trick with a blast from the left side with 15 seconds remaining.

Playing well up front for the Hawks were Sean O'Connor and Ricky Parker. Jim Coppins showed his versatility, contributing both at forward and defense. Danny Sullivan and Coley Wilson turned in solid performances at the blue line and Tim Donaghey's third period hip check was a game highlight. Billy Eaton turned in several excellent defensive efforts, blocking shots and controlling play in front of the net.

Goalies Pat Falla and David Boyle made spectacular third period saves to help insure the Hawks' winning effort.

Local students in concert

Eighteen junior high school students of music from Winchester participated in a memorable musical experience Mar. 18 at the Sixth Annual Northeastern Junior District Concert, sponsored by the Massachusetts Music Educators Association, at Salem High School.

The 547 students from 56 participating communities performed in orchestra, boys' chorus, girls' chorus, and concert band, to an audience of more than 1000 people who were truly moved by this experience.

The students were selected to participate through competitive auditions by members of the association in January. These young people prepared the music with only three rehearsals in the last two weeks before the concert.

In the orchestra from Winchester were Linda Shea, violin, and Anne Pharo, flute.

Under the direction of Robert Brown, conductor of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra, the 126-member orchestra played the rega, but seldom heard, "Procession of the Nobles" by Rimsky-Korsakov, and the lovely fourth movement of Brahms Fourth Symphony. The graceful "Claire de Lune" of Debussy was performed with a feeling rarely experienced from junior high students. The stirring "Russian Sailors Dance" from the Red Poppy by Gliere, provided a dramatic finale to this inspiring program.

Shirley Laman, choral director in the Belmont public school system, led the 190-voice girls' chorus in a wide spectrum of pieces designed to demonstrate the almost limitless capacity of the young teen-age voice.

From Winchester, singing first soprano, was Margaret Fairbanks, second soprano Joan Baruffaldi and Cindy White, and alto Criss Currier and Mara Reece.

"A Prairie Woman Sings," by Butler, put on vivid display the three parts as they expressed the lament of an isolated prairie family. The lively and energetic "The Sleigh," by Kountz, conveyed the spirit of winter as only young people can witness it. The finale, Sleeth's "Spread Joy," reflected the idealism and hope these singers have for their future in this country.

Winchester's largest contingent played in the concert band. Kathy Durante gave a notable solo performance as first-chair clarinet in "Sakraba," by Norodom. With her on clarinet were Ellen Coates, Steven Rothman and Gregory Kirk. Alice Greene and Kathy Jacobson played flute, Chris Schultz was on alto sax, Joe Reid, tenor sax, Bruce Nichols and John Raso on trombone, and Dan Schutzberg with his famous baritone sax.

Roger Farnsworth, director of the band program at South Hadley High School, led the 134-piece band in the stirring foot-tapping "With Flags Unfurled" by Darcy. Frescobaldi's "Toccata" was a show piece to clearly demonstrate that a band can perform with symphonic beauty. The young performers rose to special heights in the spectacular "Battaglia" by McBeth.

Coordinating Winchester's participation in this concert were Burton Cowgill, director of music in Winchester; John Woodworth, string instructor and orchestra conductor; Mark Jacobs, band director at Lynch Junior High; and Priscilla Miller, band director at McCall Junior High.

Rabbit show

The 4-H Club, the Cooky Cavies and Rolling Rabbits are planning a live Rabbit Show at the Burlington Mall, Mar. 23-25. The 4-H's will feature many unusual breeds of rabbits and covies, as well as the more familiar "Easter Bunny."

Jacqueline Hill (right) and some of the students in her French cooking classes are preparing a "blanquette de veau" (veal stew in cream and mushroom sauce). Registration for classes is underway. Call 729-1232 for information.

Special needs troop braves winter campout

Special needs Troop 333 left Winchester on Mar. 11 for their first polar bear campout. The sky was clear on Saturday when they left.

The Boys set up camp in MDC's Camp Nihan in Saugus. Although the temperatures were relatively mild, the boys were taught how to cross country ski, administer mild first aid, and the importance of the "Buddy System."

After a deserving sleep the boys woke up to the roar of ski mobiles and spent several hours of skimming despite the mild temperature of 60.

Future plans are to once again go camping sometime in May, have a benefit dinner in May, and to attend the Klondike Derby for the first time.

14 certified in Red Cross CPR

The Red Cross CPR (Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation) Course continues to grow in popularity and usefulness. In the adult education program, a course taught by Paul McLaughlin, 14 men and women have passed the final tests and received Red Cross certificates of competency.

Those passing the course are: Shirley Lewis, David Baker, Joan Ferrari, Janet Lisberger, Kathleen Kirkpatrick, Richard S. Gorman, Elinor M. Gorman, Joanne Perocco, Louis Perocco, Janice Serieka, Howard Niblock, Judith Penna, Robert Penna, and William A. MacKenzie.

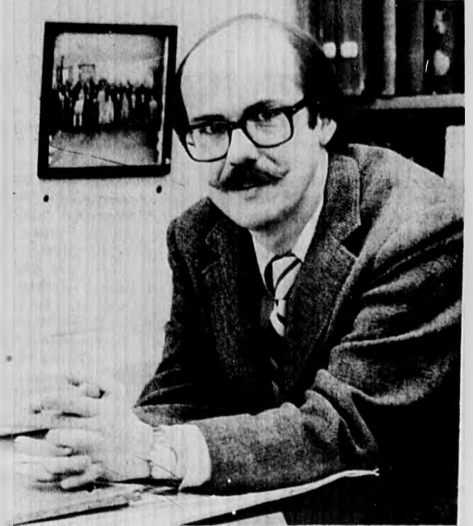

Allen Hill to give lecture series in historical research

The Friends of the Jackson Homestead, Newton's Historical Museum, will sponsor a six-week lecture series in local historical research, "How Old is Your House?" in Newton on Wednesday evenings during April and May.

The illustrated lectures will be given by Winchester resident Allen Charles Hill beginning April 5 at 7:30 p.m. Hill, a member and former chairman of the Winchester Historical Commission, is an architect specializing in historic preservation. His experience includes preservation planning, historical research, restoration and rehabilitation design, technical consulting and building evaluation for public and private agencies, corporations and individuals.

Hill's lectures will survey domestic architectural history from the seventeenth century to the present, and will present approaches to investigating the history of a house and the resources available to help with the job. In addition he will touch on considerations for restoring, preserving and maintaining old buildings. Participants will become acquainted with the varied resources available for their own research.

The lectures will be given at the War Memorial Auditorium, Newton City Hall, 1000 Commonwealth Ave., Newton. For further information

SCHOOL BOB FRANK COMMITTEE

Charles & Lorna Treckles, 263 Highland Avenue

Open Letter to People of Winchester

Assessing is an everyday experience. It is not just a bookkeeping function. This year, in particular, you will need a qualified Board, with the cities' Mayors pushing for the adoption of the classified real estate tax referendum in November.

Basically, there are only three methods used in appraising real estate properties, whether for estate, sale or tax purposes. All three approaches, when done properly, will produce figures within 10% of one another, and then it will be the appraiser's decision to decide the value.

The first approach is market value. This is a figure at which comparable houses are selling in a defined neighborhood. My experience and daily activities, as well as trade publications, provide me with this data.

The second approach is reconstruction less depreciation. Depreciation could be physical, economical and/or functional. As a member of the American Society of Home Inspectors and as a licensed builder, I believe I am well qualified to obtain this figure.

The third approach is capitalization of income. This is used mostly for commercial properties. It is the rate of return an investor expects to receive plus the life expectancy of this rate as it relates to income. As an owner of investment property in other cities and towns, I am well aware of the expected rate of return, and am familiar with this approach.

If properly done, the market value figure will be the highest, the reconstruction less depreciation, the middle, and the capitalization, the lowest. As stated earlier, all figures are within 10% of one another, and the appraiser must make the final determination of value based on his experience and expertise.

To deserve your vote, one should not only be qualified, but have demonstrated a willingness to work. My involvement in our town has been as a Town Meeting Member for 4 years and presently I am serving in my fourth year as a member of the Board of Appeal. I also led a petition drive in Arlington, Medford, Woburn, Lexington and Winchester to insure that State Lottery monies would be returned to the cities and towns as promised, saving Winchester about $57,000. I also have been involved in many other civic activities prior to moving to Winchester.

I believe that I am the best qualified and can make a contribution to our town by serving on the Board of Assessors. I would be grateful for the opportunity to serve you.

Reminiscences updated

(In 1891 and 1892 Nathaniel Andrew Richardson, Winchester's unofficial historian, published several articles in The Star titled "Interesting Reminiscences of Old People and Old Buildings—Winchester of the Past". We take pride in reprinting an updated version of these articles. Mr. Richardson was born in Winchester in 1820 and died here in 1907. His farm house stood on the west side of Washington Street. Nathaniel road is named for him.)

Lyceum Hall was built by Sumner Richardson for a company of gentlemen, mostly of the Baptist profession of religion, in 1853 upon a spot where 12 years before he built a shoe shop for Samuel Steele Richardson. Lyceum Hall still stands, though much changed, on the north east corner of Main and Mt. Vernon.

In Richardson's shoe shop H.B. Howe, Charles Hall, Charles Russell, John Usher and others kept a grocery and dry goods store. Here for a few years was located the post office. Lyceum Hall had been occupied by three apothecaries — David Youngman, Josiah Hovey and George P. Brown, all of whom served Winchester in the capacity of town clerk. In the basement J.C. Stanton kept store, while for many years the next story was used for the sale of dry goods.

In war times the rear basement was used for town meetings; later the large upper hall (burned and removed in 1950) was used for the same purpose and also for lectures, parties and club meetings, while several of the smaller rooms were taken as town offices and by professional gentlemen. This hall, when built, was modern and stylish, now one of the lost arts — its ownership mixed and unprofitable.

On the opposite corner stands the substantial red brick building erected in the late 1800's and known as the "Brown and Stanton Block", with each of the owners conducting their business under its roof. It contained, in 1891, two good halls, a banking room and several convenient offices.

Back in the 1830's the old Abel Richardson house and barn stood in the rear of the brick block, about where the old converted laundry building now stands on Converse Place. A massive elm tree stood by the house, large enough to be noted on maps of the period. Under the shadow of this great tree stages from Lowell and baggage teams from Concord, N.H. stopped to rest their tired horses on their way to Boston.

Under the window of the best room in the old house stood the pig pen, into which Abel Richardson's daughter, "Molly Abel" one day threw half a dozen good sized cheeses to be devoured by the pigs in revenge for her father locking up her best dress to keep her from going to a dance in the old Black Horse Tavern. This Molly was an old maid and a famous nurse. She was nearly blind in the day time, but could see like an owl in the night. She died in the Woburn poorhouse in 1864, four months and a half short of 100 years old.

She owned a wood lot in town which Woburn took for her support. It was situated on Mt. Vernon St. She had a hatred for paper money, but kept a little silver on hand which she stowed away in a bowl of molasses so that it could not be found if the house was broken into. When she had occasion to use money she would pick it out with her fingers, lick the molasses off and pay it away.

Her father Abel was born in 1736 and died in 1831. When 75 years of age he had several new teeth come and his gray hair turned black. He had been a soldier in the French and Revolutionary Wars. Born in Stoneham, he moved to South Woburn when a young man and bought a part of the original Edward Converse farm. This included all of the middle of Winchester, the mill, and the "sheep pasture" running from the Parkway to north of J.B. Judkins' house (now St. Mary's convent). The land took in the Town Hall lot, the parking lot across the street and all the house lots in that region. All this real estate had been in the Converse family for four generations.

In 1830 Church Street was a narrow, sandy lane known in old times as "Drivers' Lane". By 1840 there was but one house on the land from the center to Cambridge Street. It was the old Benjamin Converse house which stood about where the Winchester Trust now stands.

The second house was built by Gardner Symmes at the corner of Wildwood and Church streets. It was still standing in 1891. Symmes built the house, and afterwards exchanged it with Luther Elliot for the mill which was later to become Cowdery, Cobb & Nichols Piano Co. on Horn Pond Brook. Another resident of the Symmes house was Ebenezer Smith.

Ebenezer Smith was the 'anonymous' donor who gave the town $500 to purchase a clock. Nathaniel Richardson was at the time, 1854, one of the three selectmen of the town. He went to the post office, took out the letter addressed to the board of selectmen, placed it in his coat pocket where it remained for a week. When at the next meeting it was opened, it was found to contain a new $500 bill, and an anonymous signature suggesting the object of the gift. Smith's identity was later uncovered.

About 1855 Pleasant Street was built (now Mt. Vernon) and was thought at the time to be a great undertaking. Before that time the carriage way from the east side to the middle was by the way of the junction of Washington and Main. A few years before Mr. Sumner Richardson set a couple of posts upon the banks of the river, and a plank placed across enabled people to cross the stream where the bridge is now located on Mt. Vernon St.

Opposite the Brown and Stanton Block on Main stood the store of B.F. Holbrook (now the Winchester Drug), built in 1843 by Sumner Richardson for James Bridge who occupied it as a dwelling and grocery store. The builder went to Bangor, Maine, and bought the lumber, paying for the boards $4.00 a thousand, and coming home with the lumber on board a schooner, landing it at Medford.

James Bridge was a sharp man, and never pulled off the fins of a salt fish before he sold it. Years before he kept a store in Woburn, was a deputy sheriff, drove a cream colored horse, bob tailed and cropped ears, and on the road took no man's dust. His first wife was a daughter of Dr. Sylvanus Plympton of Woburn; his second wife was a daughter of Samuel Gardner who lived on Cambridge Street.

The house which stood at the corner of Main and Thompson streets (now the site of the News Store) was built in 1836 by Alvah Hatch, a carpenter and native of Wells, Maine. He married a sister of Stephen Cutter, owner and operator of Cutler's Mill. Hatch built the house for Samuel Steele Richardson who afterwards sold it to Deacon B.F. Thompson for whom the street was named. Thompson lived there a few years then built and moved to a house across Main where Woolworth's now stands. Photographs of the above mentioned houses grace the walls of the Archival Center.

We next come to Whitney's Mill where stood the old Converse Corn Mill and later the Abel Richardson Mill. We will stop here and resume in a future article.

Task force lays it on line: close three schools by 1980

If all goes according to plan, by September, 1980, the Winchester school system will look a lot different than it does today.

After months of research, evaluation, questioning and debate, the task force on long range planning for Winchester's schools presented its report to the school committee Monday night before an audience of nearly 200 citizens at the Vinson-Owen School.

The report includes recommendations which would, by 1980, close three elementary schools: convert Lynch Junior High to an elementary school; consolidate grades 7 and 8 at McCall Junior High; and convert the high school to a four-year program.

The plan calls for the closing of Parkhurst School by September, 1979; closing Noonan School by July, 1980; and closing either Lincoln or Washington by July, 1980.

The atmosphere at the meeting was decidedly calmer than similar public hearings held two years ago on the question of closing the Wyman School. Wyman was closed in an effort to contain rising school costs in the face of declining enrollments. Since then, the opposition to closing schools has grown less vocal; and the statistics have become more convincing.

Enrollments have been declining for several years, and the task force report projects that, even with three elementary schools closed, capacity in the elementary schools will exceed enrollments by at least 370 seats by 1979 and at least 870 seats by 1982.

A middle school study committee was established last spring to examine these problems, and they came up with 10 proposals for reorganization of the system. Three more plans were developed by a parents group from the Washington School.

Last fall, the task force was created to study the various proposals and come up with some recommendations for changes in the system over the next few years. The group consists of 26 citizens, including representatives of the school administration at all levels, parent associations from each school, and various town agencies.

The school board reduced the number of plans under consideration to five, and the task force, after looking at these, further reduced the options to three, then two plans — Plan E (from the middle school group) and Plan II (from the Washington parents).

Plan E calls for closing Washington, while Plan II would close Lincoln. The plans are otherwise identical. In presenting both options in their report, the task force left the difficult choice of which school should be the third to close — Lincoln or Washington — up to the school committee.

The task force's 30-page report, which includes numerous charts and a 40-page appendix of supplementary reports, concludes with the following recommendations from Superintendent William C. MacDonald:

For 1978:

- 1) Publish by September, 1978, school district lines for Plan E and Plan II.
- 2) Suspend elementary school open enrollment for the school year 1978-79.
- 3) Continue selected personnel of the task force on long range plans as a monitoring force through 1980.

For 1979:

- 1) Redistrict Cambridge street area (near the Woburn line) to Noonan by July, 1978.
- 2) Assign Parkhurst students to Ambrose and Vinson-Owen schools by June, 1979.
- 3) Reestablish elementary school open enrollment for the school year 1979-80.
- 4) Make the decision on the disposition of the Sanborn property and the movement of the administrative offices to Lynch by July, 1979.

Jenks Center to open

Seniors' hard work, dedication, pay off this Sunday

The hard work and dedication of many Winchester senior citizens will be recognized when the opening of the Jenks Senior Center is celebrated this Sunday.

Ceremonies at the multi-purpose center will begin at 3 p.m. with remarks by J. Raymond Murphy, president of the Winchester Seniors Association, Dr. Richard Norberg, chairman of the center's board of trustees, chief benefactor James L. Jenks, and Rev. Jack D. Zoerheide, chairman of the building fund steering committee.

Over $400,000 was raised to build the center. Seniors volunteered to solicit contributions from citizens, businesses and organizations of the town.

The center, located at Skillings path, is a 39,000-square-foot building which features a 300 seat capacity meeting room, a lounge, a library, a kitchen, and areas for counseling, staff and multi-purpose use.

Actual construction of the center began shortly after ground breaking ceremonies in December 1976. Two hundred and fifty contributors and friends attended the ground breaking. Rev. Jack Zoerheide, instrumental in the center's organization and fund raising, said, "A building of grace, beauty, and meaning will rise on this land... our senior center will be a center for the community and a hope made real."

Plans for the center started late in 1973 when the Senior Service Corps (now the Winchester Seniors Association) recommended to the Council on Aging that a senior activity center be built.

The center would provide a centralized place for seniors to hold activities. The seniors, 3000 in number, had outgrown their offices in Lincoln School. In addition, the 18 steps which had to be climbed to reach the offices were difficult for many seniors. Privacy was also lacking at the Lincoln School site.

After approval of the Skillings path site for the center, an attempt was made by the Winchester Housing Authority to obtain $150,000 from HUD for funding. The request was denied by HUD.

The Council on Aging and the seniors association were "disappointed but undaunted" by the funding refusal. In May 1976 at town meeting the Winchester Seniors Association Trust was given the deed for the center site. The seniors then had the power to start fund raising for construction of their center.

A 12-member steering committee for the building fund, chaired by Rev. Jack Zoerheide was formed. Working in consultation with the board of trustees, they organized the volunteer efforts of seniors involved in the huge task of raising money.

Fund raising activities featured a "Walk to the Center" in June 1976. Seniors, led by Luther Ensted and the Lively Lonely Hearts Band, marched from Manchester Field to the new center site. Seniors carried placards reading, "Age is the rage," "I'm 72 but not through," "Some day you'll be one of us too," "Gray is beautiful," and "Education never stops."

Voter turnout low

Rodgers, Weylman, Hankins elected

Fewer than one third of the town's registered voters turned out Tuesday to re-elect incumbents to all major town offices with the exception of the school committee race, and to approve the liquor license referendum.

Robert S. Frank lost his bid for a second term on the school committee, by 126 votes, giving both Jean Weylman and Sandra Rodgers first-time seats. Ms. Rodgers received 1904 votes and Ms. Weylman 1897.

Barbara S. Hankins ran away with the selectmen's contest, taking 2163 votes, to Edmund Williams' 870, Alvan G. Smith Jr.'s 113, and Anthony M. Peluso's 208. This is Ms. Hankins' second term.

Clarence S. Borggaard and Alice K. Mirak, currently chairman of the finance committee, have taken three-year seats as trustees of the public library. In the remaining contested office, Werner A. Carlson took a very close one by beating Joseph V. Bentley 1435 to 1407.

The rest of the elections were for uncontested seats, with John J. Sullivan the largest vote-getter as he ran unopposed for re-election as town moderator. Sullivan's total was 2711.

In other results, Joseph F. Geary Jr. was re-elected to the planning board for three years, with Anthony F. Pelletier joining him for a two-year term.

N. Bruce Hanes was named for another term on the board of health, and Edward F. Stepper was unopposed in his bid for a five year seat Ceremonies start at 3 p.m.

Hope, was held in September 1976. The event raised $4000 for the building fund.

An equally successful second annual fair was held in October 1977. J. Raymond Murphy, president of the seniors association, organized this event.

A telephone fund raising campaign was organized by Mrs. Russell Thompson. The work of many seniors resulted in over 800 individual donors to the center.

A major donation of $250,000 was made by Mr. and Mrs. James Jenks. There was a unanimous agreement by the seniors association to name the new building the Jenks Senior Center.

Throughout the fund raising campaign, an effort was made to keep the public informed of the senior association's goals and progress. Many volunteers opened their homes and hosted community discussions.

The opening of the center Sunday will kick off "Seniors Week." Daily luncheons and coffees have been planned, along with a variety of discussions and dance classes. A presentation on the Tall Ships will be given Thursday and the movie "Oliver" will be shown on Saturday.

The new center is described by Publicity Chairman Leonor Rich as "a place for gathering; for building new friendships and strengthening old; a place to continue to grow through new knowledge; a place to find companionship, leaving loneliness behind, to have a sandwich with a friend; a place to remain active and productive through expanded volunteer opportunities."

Members of the board of trustees, overseers of the construction of the center, are Dr. Richard Norberg, Ralph Hatch, Lawrence Hutchings, J. Raymond Murphy, and Mrs. John McGuigan.

The architect of the project was Phillip Locashio. Interior design was provided by Joanne Galvin.

Construction was done by Custance Brothers and L.R. England and Sons.

Maurice Freeman, Douglas Footit, Alex Heimlich, and Paul Mahoney were the landscapers.

Paul Amico provided legal services.

Muraco honored for 23-year service

Auxiliary Police Sgt. Francis Muraco, right, is presented with a plaque from Selectmen Chairman Barbara Hankins in recognition of his 23 years service to the town. Muraco retired recently from the volunteer force.

Auxiliary Police Sergeant Francis (Frank) Muraco, of 8 Irving st., was recently honored at a retirement dinner at Randall's Restaurant. Muraco had served the town for 23 years. He was presented plaques from the state legislature by Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh and from the board of selectmen by Chairman Barbara Hankins.

Also attending the festivities were Police Chief John McHugh, Civil Defense Director Richard Sampson, and former Auxiliary Police Chief Frederick Weik.

John Drougas, owner of Randall's, donated the restaurant for the occasion.

★ Task force

- And for 1980:
- 1) Close Noonan School by July, 1980.
 - 2) Convert Lynch to an elementary school by July, 1980.
 - 3) Relocate central offices to Lynch by September, 1980.
 - 4) Establish a 7th and 8th grade school at McCall by July, 1980.
 - 5) Establish a four-year high school by July, 1980.
 - 6) Close Washington School or Lincoln

School by July, 1980.

7) Assess whether or not other schools need to be closed in future years.

Joseph Forte, McCall Principal and a task force member, explained to the gathering the criteria used by the group in developing the final recommendations. Research was done on staffing, redistricting, transportation problems, and the costs of the various proposals.

Forte noted that because it appears that the elementary schools will be below capacities even with the closings, a major consideration was at what cost and what level of enrollment would schools be maintained. "Our major problem — the school committee's problem — is to look at minimum capacities, because we're going to be below capacity all along the line," Forte said.

"The problem," he added, "is not how many schools to close. The problem Winchester has is how many schools to keep open if you want to maintain the neighborhood school concept."

The task force decided that four elementary schools should be retained at all cost: Vinson-Owen, Muraco, Lynch and Mystic. This decision was reached on the basis of school location, investment in facilities, size of the schools, density of the population in various areas of town, and the principle of maintaining a balance of schools on the east and west sides of town.

Forte noted that these four schools have a capacity of 1600 students, while the best available forecasts project an enrollment of 1200 elementary students by 1982.

Ambrose was added to the list, leaving three schools on the west side and two on the east. The decision then comes to whether Lincoln or Washington will be the third school for the east side. Even though either arrangement leaves the schools under-enrolled, Forte said, "The task force feels that six elementary schools responds well to the neighborhood school concept... and that they should be retained through 1980-81."

Lincoln has a larger capacity than Washington and would mean more empty seats in the system. It is also centrally located and perhaps less of a neighborhood school than Washington. However, keeping Lincoln open would make redistricting simpler.

Lincoln would cost about $24,000 more to keep open, according to figures presented by another task force member, Finance Committee Chairman Alice Mirak. However, Mrs. Mirak explained that the difference varies according to which set of enrollment projections are applied. She commented, "$24,000 is a very insignificant difference in the $2.5 million school budget we're talking about."

Forte also presented two redistricting plans developed by the task force — one for closing Lincoln, one for closing Washington. He said the major considerations in drawing the lines were maintaining the neighborhood school concept; minimizing transportation costs; and optimizing the balance between the schools.

Another consideration addressed by a subcommittee of the task force was disposition of the closed schools. Once the schools are closed, they become town property; however, the task force felt they should study some of the possibilities, since disposition could be a factor in deciding which schools to close.

Noreen Arcari explained the recommendations of the subcommittee. The group suggested a committee of citizens and professionals be established to work with the selectmen in disposing of closed buildings. The subcommittee strongly urged that no buildings be left vacant for any length of time. For the schools to be closed, they suggested the following:

That Noonan be torn down and the land be maintained as a recreational area at an estimated cost of $20,000.

That the Sanborn House (where the central offices are now) might be converted to a restaurant or a creative arts center.

That Lincoln be rented to another educational institution, sold to become office space, or converted to luxury apartments.

That Parkhurst be converted to senior housing, an arts center, or a day care center for seniors or children.

That Washington be rented to Winchester Hospital or converted to a medical office building.

It was also suggested that the Ambrose School could be converted to an office building.

Mrs. Arcari noted her group was opposed to the idea that Parkhurst be closed as early as this September because of the time involved in deciding what to do with closed buildings, re-zoning where necessary, and finding occupants.

Director of Data Processing Arthur Sarno addressed the efforts behind the enrollment projections. Two basic methods were applied to the task force's decisions: a projection based on a formula worked out by Sarno, school board member Heinrich Holland, and FinCom member James B. Lane; and a straight-line projection based on the number of students in the system today and the number of children living here who will be entering the system over the next five years.

The school administration relies mostly on the formula projection, since it takes various social factors into account. The formula projects a lower enrollment over the next several years than the straight-line method. But both methods predict a decline overall. Sarno noted that one factor built into the formula is how many people move out of Winchester. "What we're building is a paradox," he said, pointing out that as schools close, the town becomes less attractive to potential residents, more children are sent out of the system, and enrollments decline even further.

But, Sarno cautioned that the decisions to be made "ought to be tempered with a feeling about the children and their education and not just the numbers."

A number of parents at the meeting questioned whether Ambrose and Vinson-Owen would be over-enrolled in 1979 as a result of Parkhurst closing and being redistricted to those two schools.

"It certainly doesn't appear that we'd have a problem of over-utilization at V-O," responded Supt. MacDonald, "I just can't believe that would happen." As for Ambrose becoming overcrowded, MacDonald said, "I won't let it happen."

When asked by another parent what data was missing to enable the school committee or the task force to choose between closing Lincoln and Washington, the superintendent replied, "None." He explained that having another year to watch the enrollments might help in making the decision.

The school committee said they will accept written questions on the plans, which are available at various town offices and at the library for the public to examine. No decisions were made regarding the proposals Monday night, and it will be up to a new school committee to take the first step toward reorganization.

MacDonald said he hoped the report "will allow the school committee to move expeditiously forward" to give the administration and the town plenty of time to prepare for the changes to come.

70% abatements ok'd by board for Dean road

Four butters of Dean road may receive 70 percent abatements from the town if the road is constructed as a public way.

The proposed road was placed in the warrant article for the spring town meeting by selectmen two weeks ago. The lay-out was recommended by Town Engineer John Garcia because of severe drainage problems.

The board voted on their intention to give the abatements by a three to two margin. Selectmen Hankins, Wilsack and O'Connell were in favor of the abatements.

The abatements were considered by the board because four lots will not receive maximum benefit from the road's construction. Using a professional appraiser was suggested to determine the amount of abatements.

Selectman Arthur Dunbar opposed the use of an appraiser because of cost.

"I'm afraid this would become a precedent setting situation," he said.

Appraiser services would cost between $250 and $300, Town Counsel Douglas Randall said.

Selectman Edward O'Connell proposed the 70 percent abatements. When questioned by the board why the figure of 70 percent was chosen, he said, "because it's greater than 50 percent and less than 100 percent."

O'Connell added "I think we gave the residents more than tacit encouragement that we would go in the direction of abatements. I don't like to pull the rug out from under them."

Chairman Barbara Hankins said she agreed with granting abatements in the "moralistic" sense but questioned the board's ability to pull an arbitrary abatement figure out of the air.

The town normally would grant 50 percent abatements to the two corner lots involved and no abatement to the two end lots.

THE WINCHESTER STAR

Serving The Community For Over 95 Years

A sad showing

What if they gave an election and nobody came?

That's pretty much what happened in Winchester this Tuesday: Only 27 percent of the voters in the town showed up to elect candidates to the board of selectmen, school committee, and other town offices, and to vote on the liquor question.

Of course, the turnout probably reflected the general temper and preferences of the town. But the numbers are pathetic. The most votes anyone received was 2711 by John Sullivan, running unopposed for moderator. In all, 3472 out of 12,658 registered voters went to the polls.

The only clear consensus appears in the selectmen's race, where Barbara Hankins glided back into office for a second term with 2163 votes; and on the liquor question, where voters favored allowing limited licensing by 1180 to 486.

In part because of the low turnout, there were some very close races. Werner Carlson outstripped Joseph Bentley for a position on the board of assessors by only 28 votes.

The race for two school committee seats was also close, with Sandy Rodgers in the lead by seven votes over Jean Weylman. Both were elected, while last year's chairman, Bob Frank, was knocked out, coming in 126 votes behind Mrs. Weylman.

The school committee race was a tough one to call from the start. All three candidates had a lot to offer in the way of credentials and experience, and all three had substantial followings and some hard-working campaigners.

Bob Frank had been in a position to make some weighty decisions in the past three years, and he undoubtedly turned a lot of people off, in particular with his votes on the Wyman School closing issue. He learned the hard way that it does not pay to change your mind on that kind of issue, even if you do it for the best of reasons.

Bob Frank put a lot of hours and effort into his term on the school committee, and he ran the board's meetings smoothly and fairly. He had a critical eye for the administration and committee policies and a good sense for the legal points involved in any number of school issues.

We are sorry to see him go. And the other members of the school committee are sorry to see him go as well. The terms are up for both Frank and Jack Noble, and at Monday night's board meeting members of the committee said a few words in honor of the two men.

Connie Papas said of Noble, "He has been an asset to the committee and has brought a different perspective to the committee." She praised his sensitivity to the role of the school committee as policy-makers versus the administration as the operators of the system; and she praised his sense of humor which she said brightened a few late-night meetings.

"For my colleagues," concluded Mrs. Papas, "Thanks for the time and efforts and all of his sincere interest in all of our children." The crowd must have agreed: they gave Jack a standing ovation.

Bob Frank received equally gracious credits from Dick Holland. Since it was Frank's last meeting, Holland had every right to get up and thank Bob for the work he's done — someone should — but the timing was poor and the message overplayed.

Holland's speech came the night before the election at a traditionally non-partisan meeting of the school committee. And his speech went too far: not only did he praise Frank to the heavens, he told people to go out and vote for him Tuesday. Bad form, but it's over now anyway.

Our congratulations go to the two who did win, Sandy Rodgers and Jean Weylman. Both bring plenty of valuable experience to the board. They have taught, they have attended board meetings and listened, and most important, they have shown their concern for the future of the schools by taking active roles in the community.

To the winners in all the elections, congratulations. To the others who ran, thanks for taking the time to participate. To the voters, well, you could have shown a little more enthusiasm. — DKF

Craig Bradley (right), WHS '78, and Kathryn Corkum, Stoneham High School '78, receive good citizenship pins from Mrs. William Burrows, Regent of the Committee of Safety Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Winchester. The awards go to students "who by their personal acts and attitude have proven themselves the most outstanding citizen in their high school class." Mrs. Ernest A. Phillips, awards chairman, notes that March is the DAR's "Good Citizenship" month. Both students will receive certificates from the DAR at their class night awards ceremonies. (Photo by Paul Frink)

Letters from readers

Note of appreciation

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Everyone should run for public office once in their lives. In a short month you can learn more about friendship and humanity than in years of living!

Although the school committee election results are undetermined as I write this letter, I wish this note of appreciation to be in this week's Winchester Star. I want to thank the many people in Winchester for their warmth and interest. At the front door, a friendly smile, and at the train station a word, "Good luck." When you get into politics, the rose colored glasses are quickly broken; you face the real world and there are some moments when you wonder why anyone enters this arena. But, I must say, the over-riding feeling is always how great and kind most people are.

Some are so special to me I would like to share their names: their hard work and tremendous helpfulness will never be forgotten. In district one, Mary Lou Shattuck and Mary Ann O'Callahan; in two, Jane Parry and Helga Biggs; in three, Nancy Mills; in four, Janet Lavey and Jean Lucero; in five, Marion Crandall and Mary Barger; in six Sally Cincotta; in seven Marilyn Pastore, Jo Ricciardelli, and Vicky Wiedwald; and in eight, Marietta Bruno.

Giving financial and fund-raising advice were two remarkable husband and wife teams Gail and Bill Macneill and Mary and Ron Skates. Assisting with printing were Jack Sutherland and Rick Buchheim. Sacrificing their precious Saturday mornings were Dick Santos, Charlie Perenich, John Carroll, and Jim Ulwick. Working with publicity and newspaper coverage were Sharon du Long, Dot Ulwick, Ann McGovern, and Nina McCully. A lot of effort, sprinkled with warm laughter filled many March days for this wonderful crew.

If I win this election most credit must go to two remarkable ladies whose wit, wisdom, and warmth inspired many. Barbara Charlson and Joan Pelletier are two special friends without whom I could never have campaigned. This candidate will be forever in their debt.

To all my campaign workers, to the many people who graciously opened their homes, to the friendly faces all along the election trail, come my sincerest and deepest thanks.

Intolerable

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was angered on reading that Mrs. Clinton's resignation from a high school position followed reported racist remarks from students. This reflects the idea that high school students have still failed to learn the most basic values of human respect, and this is appalling. The present generation of students is no more capable of experiencing a true sense of "community" than was the last one.

The assault upon Rafael Acevedo is equally distressing. All the facts are not yet known, but if the incident had any racial basis we are confronted with further proof that the youth of this town have adopted the same racist attitudes which have been permitted to continue unchallenged for so long.

Many people will sit back and claim that racial prejudice is an insoluble problem. But when accompanied by violence it is intolerable! It is very easy to point to South Boston for examples of unrestrained racist behavior, but perhaps, in fact, we only have to look as far as our own town limits.

Grandstanding

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your "grandstand" approach to coverage of the Acevedo assault incident on Friday, Mar. 24 sickened me. The combination of front page visibility and your inference of "racial" overtones serves no purpose other than to illustrate your journalistic incompetence.

I concede your right to a hypothesized opinion such as a possible connection between this incident and the resignation of a former black teacher...but put it on the editorial page where it belongs.

I am not a bigot. Furthermore, I am not a proponent of such overblown reporting. A re-evaluation of your criteria in choosing what is and what is not front page news seems in order.

How about a Rolls?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I believe that the raise of $1800 given by the board of selectmen to the town manager, which must be approved by the town meeting members, is not enough and should be increased by $25,700 so the total salary would be $60,000. After all, the resources in our town are unlimited and 90 percent of us are so very wealthy that the $1800 raise is a mere pittance. His present salary is $32,500 and with the proposed addition of $1800, that salary would be a paltry $34,300.

Seriously speaking, a few people seem to think that Tom Groux is so marvelous that he really should receive more than the President of the United States does.

Mr. Groux has proposed in his budget the purchase of a new car for his use. I approve of this on one condition — that the car shall be a Rolls Royce, air conditioned, equipped with a bar, a color TV, and a shower. This would cost approximately $150,000. Of course this car would have to be chauffeur-driven because we wouldn't want the town manager to lose even one minute of his valuable time. I am sure our current board of selectmen will approve of these minimal goodwill expenditures!

Toward the light

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I'm afraid that letters to the editor can help very little in combating the bigotry, ignorance, and cruelty shown by the recent racial incidences in Winchester and the forced resignation of one of the few black educators in the Winchester school system.

Nonetheless, I noticed in your last issue that the only protesting letters were from very young citizens and from black parents. They were justifiably appalled, but so am I, a not-so-young, white parent. I am embarrassed, ashamed, and afraid that I am neglecting my duty to my children in allowing them to grow up in such a closed, prejudiced community. How, in this town, will they acquire the experience to live and work and grow in the multi-racial world that exists outside our tight little enclave?

Maybe, if enough of us protest and try to change the situation, we can prove (to ourselves, our children, and the "outside world") that the bigots are just a small minority. I can only hope that we can also discourage these bigots by showing them that they do not have the support of the majority.

I'm bewildered about the best way to help right now, but we have to get started. A first suggestion would be to have the matter explicitly discussed (in spite of our shame) in the schools themselves. We might also launch an explicit, dedicated program to discuss and combat prejudice in the grade schools, where the children are still highly idealistic and (one hopes) not yet corrupted by the prejudices of their elders. Perhaps, then, the next generation of high schoolers will find bigotry sufficiently appalling that it will not be allowed to exist.

Perhaps, if enough of us protest and begin the change now, a movement toward the light will start in this town.

Incredulous

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Does it seem incredulous to you that the very time the US Post Office honors the memory of an uneducated black woman who led many blacks to freedom in the north (Harriet Tubman) that a group of malicious young high school students in Winchester could cause a talented, educated black teacher to resign her position in our Winchester High School because of taunts, gibberings, criticisms and intimidation?

Newspapers in other states are copying articles written in this area! Recriminations will be coming back!

Our young people who had caused this event are without self-respect. We must build into their minds and souls a spirit of fairness. This changing world requires men and women of good judgment and fine aspirations. These were totally lacking in this instance.

What does Winchester do about it? These young people and their families must pay for all this. The hardest part of all is mental. What a burden!

What program are you using to develop strong young people, our future leaders in America? Fairness, straight thinking, strong convictions of the rights of citizenship all come into the picture. Yes, this is a changing world!

Town watch...

Inspection time

By The Observer

Spring inspection for motor vehicles gets underway Apr. 1, so tune up your wheels and get in there early to avoid the lines. Inspection runs to May 15.

The salary level for the town comptroller is still up in the air.

The personnel board voted Monday night to increase the salary to an M18 level. This level has a range of $18,272 to $25,580.

The board, which had previously recommended a range of $17,400 to $23,900, reviewed a revised job description of the comptroller provided by the board of selectmen. The new description made data processing knowledge a requirement.

The board's recommendation will now be considered by the selectmen. Chairman Barbara Hankins said that one of the candidates, Guy LaPriere withdrew from the job consideration. The remaining candidates, Robert Burke, Sarah Saccone, and Alphonse Faggiano, have been interviewed by the board. Chairman Hankins said the board has not publicly narrowed down the field of candidates.

Legal notice watchers may notice this week an application from the Old Colony Bank & Trust Co. to move into Winchester. The company proposes to move into 791 Main St., where Nelson's Bakery used to be.

The Middlesex Canal Association is working on plans for a big celebration for the canal's 175th anniversary. They're planning a barbecue-picnic, visits to canal sites, rides on the packet boat Colonel Baldwin, and maybe even a gala ball up in Woburn to top off the occasion.

Plans are far from finalized; the celebration will probably take place in August.

The Senate

No-Smoking Areas (S-410) Senate reversed a vote of two weeks ago and last week tabled (defeated) 17-12, a bill requiring restaurants seating 100 or more customers to have no-smoking areas.

The Senate two weeks ago had refused 21-3 to table the measure, which also provides a $50 fine to owners who refuse to order smokers in a no-smoking area to put out their tobacco product and to owners who refuse to designate no-smoking areas.

Sen. Sam Rotondi voted for the ban.

Aerosol Sprays (S-823) — Senate refused to table (defeat) 23-4, a bill banning the sale of all aerosol sprays with fluorocarbons in Massachusetts by January 1979, except for cans containing drugs for special medical purposes. The measure also provides a $50 fine and/or thirty-day jail sentence for violators.

Supporters of the bill argued fluorocarbons do serious damage to the ozone layer and can cause skin cancer, and noted other states have already banned the sprays.

Opponents argued the federal government is working on banning the sprays and claimed the state should not interfere. They also questioned whether many jobs will be lost by banning the aerosol sprays.

Rotondi voted for the ban.

Open Meeting Law (S-1077) — Senate refused, 20-7, to table (defeat) a bill amending the open meeting law. The bill applies the open meeting law to any public or private entity receiving federal or state funds constituting five percent or more of its budget.

Supporters argued the open meeting law has worked well with governmental agencies' meetings and argued it should be applied to any entity receiving a substantial amount of state or federal money, to give the public a right to information.

Opponents argued the bill would cause confusion and chaos in the state because it could apply to hundreds of private businesses which receive federal and state money.

Rotondi voted for the bill.

The House

Polling Places (H-1008) — House defeated 136-88, a bill clarifying the law which prohibits campaigning for elections within 150 feet of polling places. The bill would clarify the definition of "entrance to a polling place" to mean "the last doorway in the building through which a person must pass in order to enter the polling place."

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted for the bill.

Governor-Lieutenant Governor Teams (H-1009) — House defeated 169-54, a measure requiring that the name of candidates for governor and lieutenant governor appear on nomination papers and primary election ballots as a team. Under present law, the candidates appear separately.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted "Yea" on the ban.

Random Ballot Listing (H-1530) — House barely defeated 108-107, a bill requiring listing of candidates on the ballot for any elective office in Massachusetts by a random lottery.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted in favor.

Signature Gathering (H-1763) — House defeated 152-70, a bill allowing persons obtaining signatures for initiative or referendum petitions to solicit signatures in any public area of a shopping center or mall consisting of at least five stores.

Saltmarsh voted against the bill.

Pre-Primary Conventions (H-13668) — House rejected 148-70, a bill restoring the pre-primary nominating conventions for the state's political parties.

Supporters argued the conventions would encourage participation by citizens and party members all over the state, and claimed the bill has many safeguards providing for a fair convention without the abuses of the old system.

Opponents argued the conventions were abolished because they were full of abuses and irregularities and run by bosses. They

The Medford CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Program) Consortium will be running a youth employment program this summer under federal Title III funds.

The program will provide employment, vocational assessment and counseling, GED instruction and remedial education services to approximately 46 area youths between the ages of 16-21 who have not completed high school.

The program will place 26 youths in work experience jobs in either private non-profit or public work sites. An additional 20 youths will be placed in on-the-job training sites in private industry. All work experience jobs will be paid 100 percent by the youth employment program; the on-the-job training wages will be split between the program and the employer.

Eligible youths must be school drop-outs (16-21) who reside in Winchester or one other of the Medford Consortium towns. They must also meet the income guidelines set up for the program.

Those interested should contact Frank Mitchell or Marie Hetu at the program office, 9 Foster St., Wakefield, or phone 245-2416.

Interested private and public agencies should also contact the program if they have jobs to offer or if they would like to participate.

The Middlesex County Jail needs volunteers — but not to sit behind the bars. They're looking for persons with interesting occupations or hobbies to conduct evening mini-courses for individuals awaiting trial.

Volunteers don't have to be experts in their field — these are introductory programs. All that's needed is a desire to share what you know with others.

For more information, call Pamela Stevovich at 494-4490 or 494-4495.

Bay State roll call

also argued political parties have been successful in running "issue" conventions to bring ideas and people from all over the state together.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted to restore pre-primary conventions.

MBM — Attorney General (H-282) House approved 117-98, but failed to gain the necessary two-thirds margin to discharge the House Rules Committee from consideration of the House order requesting the attorney general to address a closed session of the House on the status of his investigation of alleged corruption and wrongdoing regarding the awarding of state building contracts.

Supporters argued it was outrageous to further delay a simple request to the Attorney General to speak to a closed House session about the status of the investigation into a scandal of major proportions. They also claimed that the leadership's refusal to debate the discharge motion thoroughly was an indication of its arrogance.

Opponents argued a private House session was not the appropriate vehicle to solve the questions of the MBM and contracts scandal. They also claimed the House is overstepping its bounds by trying to act as a super grand jury in the matter.

Saltmarsh voted for discharge of the order onto the House floor for debate and a vote.

Delays in Bus & Rail Service (H-3972) — House refused to reconsider, 146-77, its earlier defeat of a bill requiring the MBTA to notify local police and fire stations of delays in bus or rail service so that no traveler will be delayed or unnecessarily subjected to inclement weather.

Saltmarsh voted "nay."

Forced Busing (S-12) — House approved 145-74, resolutions requesting the U.S. Congress to call a Constitutional Convention to amend the U.S. Constitution to prohibit forced busing.

Supporters argued forced busing has caused violence and problems in Boston and noted some 30,000 students have dropped out of Boston schools because of busing. They also pointed out the quality of the children's education has diminished.

Opponents argued the city has made great progress on the whole busing issue and said the people spoke at the polls in the last election saying they were tired of politicians who continue to harp on the busing issue and use it as a cover for their racist feelings. They also claimed the school system is functioning well and overall is offering more equal educational opportunities.

Saltmarsh voted in favor.

Shellfish Plants (H-1854) — House defeated 114-111, a bill providing for the state's general fund, through the state budget, to pay the costs of operating the shellfish purification plant in Newburyport, which purifies clams from mildly contaminated flats in the state.

Presently, communities from which the clams are dug are assessed the costs. Under the present law and proposed law, the costs the communities or state would have to pay are the difference between the $85,000 costs of operating the plant and the $150 per half-bushel the diggers pay.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted for the bill.

Consumer Credit Reporting (H-1950) — House approved 130-93, a bill further regulating consumer credit reporting.

The bill basically requires every consumer reporting agency in the state which issues investigative consumer reports to register with the banking commissioner and file a comprehensive report along with a filing fee.

MDC approval needed

Selectmen ok bike race

The proposed bicycle race, sponsored by the Mystic Valley Wheelworks was granted approval by selectmen Monday night. The race is still in question, however, because Wheelworks must gain approval from the MDC.

The race is scheduled for Apr. 30 from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. The course starts on Main street near McCall Junior High School and runs to Symmes corner, Bacon street, Mystic Valley parkway, and back to the junior high.

Roads will have to be blocked off during the race. The board received only two replies from residents in the areas that would be affected. Both residents were in favor of the race.

Clint Paige from Wheelworks told the board the MDC might require police to be stationed at every intersection of the parkway. This would mean about $500 in police costs for Wheelworks, which Paige said would make the race impossible. The Wheelworks has a $250 budget for the race.

The board will require a variety of safety regulations at the race. Wheelworks has been working with Safety Officer John McKinley on planning the race.

Town Counsel Douglas Randall recommended the Wheelworks get public liability insurance for the race.

Marjorie Moore from the bicycle safety committee said she was in favor of the race. "It's a good opportunity for publicity on bicycle safety," she said.

The board said they were "excited" over the possibility of the race.

All real estate tax bills for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1978 have been mailed, reports the office of the town treasurer. The second payment is due May 1, 1978.

Any new homeowner having purchased property after Jan. 1, 1977 who has not received a bill should contact the tax collector's office for a duplicate. All real estate bills have been mailed out in the name of the record owner as of Jan. 1, 1977.

There has been a recent change in the law: All real estate taxes not paid by May 1 are subject to a 10 percent interest charge from Apr. 1.

The tax collector's office will be extending office hours on Saturday, Apr. 29 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The town treasurer-collector is Carol A. Thomas, and her office is in Town Hall.

Scholarships for Red Cross camps open to students

The Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross will again offer a scholarship to a high school senior to attend either of two Red Cross aquatic camps in New England this summer. This announcement was made this week by Paul Colella, chapter chairman.

The camps are Camp Mah-Kee-Nae in Lenox, and Camp Tevya in Brookline, N.H. and both operate from June 11-21. Applicants must be at least 17 years old.

The camp programs develop skills necessary for employment as summer life guards. Included are instructor training in water safety, basic swimming, swimming for the handicapped, first aid, and cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Any high school senior interested should visit the Red Cross Chapter House on Church street and secure application blanks.

Mystic Valley board to meet

The Mystic Valley Mental Health and Retardation Area Board will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Burlington Town Hall in the Main Hearing Room, Burlington.

The area board, made up of citizens from each of the six communities in the Mystic Valley Area, include Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn, and is charged with the responsibility for management and oversight of mental health and mental retardation services provided in the area.

The board will review applications for funds for department of mental health contracts for fiscal year 1979 at the meeting. All meetings are open to the public.

Winchester residents currently serving on the board are Mrs. Deborah Cary and Mrs. Katrin Cooper.

The Saga of Silver

There's much more to silver than teaspoons and dimes—as chemists and engineers are discovering daily

Health. Silver's effect on bacteria is almost as remarkable as its response to light. One part of it, used in a filtering system, kills the germs in ten million parts of water, yet does no harm to people or animals. Thus, a teaspoonful can purify over seven billion gallons—making silver ten times as effective as chlorine. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration therefore chose silver to purify water in the upcoming Space Shuttle.

Doctors drop a one-percent solution of nitrate into newborn babies' eyes to prevent infection which could lead to blindness. And the most advanced methods of treating bad burns use silver compounds, which kill infection without inhibiting healing. Surgeons sew up wounds with silver thread, bind bones with silver bands, replace missing parts of the skull with silver plate.

AUGUST 1976 ISSUE OF READER'S DIGEST

Silver is toxic to bacteria but nontoxic or irritant to humans - animals - fish and house plants.

Chlorine on the other hand is toxic to bacteria - humans - animals - fish - house plants and living cells.

Chlorine for example is used in treating bacteria in raw sewage pumped into the ocean.

Many studies and pilot plant operations over the past seven years have indicated the harmful effects of chlorination of waste waters, resulting in fish kills and destruction of many forms of waterborne life.

Dr. Herbert Schwartz: "Chlorine has so many dangers, it should be banned."

Silver carbon filtration in comparison is the cleanest, purest, safest, and most effective way of purifying tap drinking water.

Why drink unfiltered tap water with high amounts of chlorine, bacteria at times, unknown amounts of viruses, carcinogenic chloroform, heavy metals, pipe corrosion, copper poisoning, bad tastes and odors when they can all be effectively filtered out.

Thanks to space research the home owner can now drink crystal clear, sparkling clean water with a Home Water Purifier rather than wait for the Government to make a move.

Remember that water is life, and good health starts with clean water.

The Multi-Pure silver carbon drinking water system can make life more enjoyable with sparkling clean drinking water and better health.

Nothing in years has made more sense than purifying tap water for better family living.

DiBlasi, board square off on water problems

"We would proceed if we thought there was a hazard. Someday we will reach the point where we will feel uneasy about our drinking water. If we felt there was a concern we would do something. We always have."

So said Board of Health Chairman N. Bruce Hanes Monday night in response to resident Maurice J. DiBlasi's claim that Winchester's drinking water is unsafe.

DiBlasi had asked for time at the board of health meeting to present his case for water purification. DiBlasi sells home water purifiers and has been advertising his product in The Star in recent months.

Referring to the ads, some of which claim that illnesses and diseases are caused by drinking water, Hanes said, "I have seen your ads and I cannot disagree with them."

He added, "We don't share your concerns and so we have not answered you in the press."

Lawrence F. Quigley Jr., DMD, a member of the board of health, accused DiBlasi of "alarmist tactics" and "misrepresentation of a number of things."

"We do meet the federal and state standards in Winchester. I suggest you go and change the standards if you think they are wrong," he said.

Both he and Public Health Director Michael Saraco noted that "in the long run, DiBlasi is trying to sell water purifiers." They also noted, however, that he has made himself "very knowledgeable about drinking water."

DiBlasi responded that "the facts are alarming" and that he would like to see an education program which would inform the public about the "bugs and worms" which he thinks are found in excessive amounts in the drinking water.

DiBlasi bases his concerns on tests which he has conducted in various locations in the town. DiBlasi used his own equipment for these tests and concluded that corrosion, metal poisoning, and organic contaminants are responsible for a variety of illnesses and diseases.

In response to comments that he was trying to sell water purifiers, DiBlasi said, "I could sell purifiers without being in the public eye. This is the Christian way of doing it, letting the people know what is going on."

Learn to swim

If this spring and summer is like every other summer, a lot of people will die by drowning. What a waste of human resources. What a tragedy. What a shame.

The North Suburban YMCA will offer a series of five lessons next week for non-swimmers. The program will provide basic skills in swimming.

Registration is now taking place at the YMCA for classes beginning Apr. 17. For further information call the YMCA at 935-3270.

Jogger bumped in hit-and-run; in fair condition

Anthony Guarente of 44 Church st. is in fair condition at Mass. General Hospital after being struck by a car in a hit-and-run incident Saturday evening.

Guarente, 23, was jogging near the intersection of Yale street and Foxcroft road around 6:30 p.m. when the car hit him, stopped, and drove away, leaving Guarente lying in the street, according to police reports.

Officers John Oliver and Theodore Yeanacopolis responded to a call from Stephen Johnis of 245 Ridge st., an acquaintance of Guarente's. Johnis told police he was driving down Foxcroft road when he saw Guarente lying in the gutter, waving his arm. He said he went over to Guarente, who told him that a car had approached him head on while he was jogging, hit him, stopped, someone opened a car door to look at him, and then drove away.

Guarente then fell unconscious; the only visible injury, according to police, was a cut over his right eye.

The ambulance was called, but it was already out on a call, taking another patient to Winchester Hospital. Engine 2 and the rescue truck responded in the meantime, and the emergency medical technicians on the rescue truck treated Guarente. They also called for an ambulance from Stoneham.

(State law forbids transportation of a patient in the rescue vehicle except as "a last resort." According to Fire Chief Robert McElhinney, the EMTs on the scene determined that Guarente's condition did not require him to be taken at once to the hospital. "If Stoneham had said they couldn't come, then we would have moved him," noted McElhinney.

Meanwhile several local doctors had arrived on the scene, including Dr. Mortimer Buckley, who lives on Foxcroft road, Dr. James McDonough, and Dr. Howard Rubenstein, who lives on Yale street.

Another Winchester doctor, F. Gregory Curtin, arrived at the hospital with the ambulance on the first call and heard the ambulance called out for Guarente. The first reports were that Guarente had been seriously injured; Dr. Curtin contacted several other doctors to notify them that they might be needed.

By this time the ambulance had gone back through town to Foxcroft road, arriving before the Stoneham ambulance. Guarente was taken to Winchester Hospital, where Dr. Curtin and the others decided Guarente needed a CAT scan (a computerized x-ray used for head injuries). They had the ambulance take Guarente to Mass. General for the test.

Curtin and Dr. Hugh McCarthy accompanied Guarente into Mass. General; Dr. Buckley also drove in town to help out.

As of Tuesday afternoon, Guarente was reported to be in fair condition, and he may be out of the hospital by the end of the week, according to a friend who visited him Monday.

Police are investigating the incident.

Two injured in accident Saturday

Two Woburn residents were injured Saturday morning at 1:40 a.m. when their car left the road and struck a telephone pole at the corner of Main street and Clark street.

Paul Dowd and Joanne Golles both suffered facial lacerations and were taken to Winchester Hospital. Dowd was discharged Sunday and Ms. Golles was transferred to Massachusetts General Hospital on Monday, where she was listed in good condition.

The return of spring has brought on a rash of vandalism and theft, reports Police Chief John P. McHugh. Police believe it was young boys who broke a window and entered the town incinerator Sunday morning at 5 a.m. The building was ransacked, but nothing was taken.

On the 24th, windows were found broken at the Noonan School, and the face of a gas pump was reported damaged at a station under construction at the corner of Cambridge and Pond streets.

A '77 Ford was reported stolen from Swanton street at 2 p.m. Sunday, and it was later recovered in Billerica, totally burned Sunday night, the windshield was broken and the tires were slashed on a car parked on Richardson street.

Residents of a house on Lakeview road returned from a weekend vacation to find a basement window broken and a clock-radio and a pair of speakers missing from the house. Police suspect it may have been youngsters involved.

A '72 Ford pickup truck, containing electrical tools was stolen from a driveway on Thornberry rd. on the 22nd, and a van was reported stolen from Colonial Manufacturing on the same day.

A number of people have also reported radios and tape decks stolen from cars parked in the Winchester area.

The Ford reported stolen on the 19th from the Parkview Apartments parking lot was recovered intact in Woburn, and the vehicle stolen from the Wedgemere depot lot on the 16th was recovered in Braintree with the ignition popped.

Locals at work for hunger project group

The "Hunger Project" is a new non-profit international organization dedicated to ending hunger and starvation on the planet in two decades.

The Boston Hunger Project Committee, which coordinates all project activities in the central New England area, is served by two Winchester residents. Rich Buchheim of 8 Wyman Ct. chairs the committee, and his wife Linda coordinates Hunger Project activities with other hunger organizations. Rich reports that more than 4800 people in the Boston area and at least 40 people in Winchester are participating in the project.

"The purpose of The Hunger Project is to create a climate, a context in the world, for the end of hunger and starvation," says Buchheim. "At least 400 million people in our planet are seriously mal-nourished, and between 15 and 20 million people will die as a consequence of hunger this year. Three quarters of these people are children. The Hunger Project feels that the end of starvation is an idea whose time has come."

The work of The Hunger Project is not about researching new technical solutions, growing food or feeding people directly. "The solutions of ending hunger already exist," Buchheim notes. "More than 30 nations have successfully handled starvation in their countries since World War II using existing models of land and water management, agricultural techniques and preventive health measures. In a presidential study made public last year, the National Academy of Science declared we now have the resources and technical wherewithal to end starvation on our planet in 20 years and that all we lacked was the will."

Anyone interested in participating in The Hunger Project or desiring further information should contact Rich or Linda Buchheim at 728-5039.

French cooking: from high art to simple taste

Françoise Moros, a native French woman now living in Winchester, has been teaching local men and women how easy it is to prepare fine French cuisine. Since last fall she has been conducting a series of classes for small groups in her kitchen. Each week a complete menu, suitable for everyday meals or for entertaining, is prepared.

After each lesson, the class enjoys the meal, accompanied by an appropriate wine in the Moros' home, which has recently been featured in both the Boston Globe and Better Homes and Gardens.

Françoise demonstrates both regional specialties and the traditional 'haute cuisine,' combining a group of dishes into a well-balanced meal. During a single series she covers a wide range of recipes, from simple and nutritious dishes such as quiche (French cheese pie), poached salmon and soupe au pistou (vegetable soup with basil) to delicacies like chicken supreme (boned chicken breast), French tarts and chocolate mousse. Her expertise also extends to international cooking — such as paella, cous-cous and osso buco — drawn from her travels and her love of family recipes.

"Many people are somewhat afraid of French cooking," says Françoise. "But it is really quite easy to master, especially once you've seen it done. Nor need it be fattening. On the contrary, I stress the nutritional element in my cooking, concentrating on dishes which are both delicious and minimize calories."

She also feels that it is important to learn how to cook using ingredients available in local markets, rather than trying to follow directions using unnecessarily expensive or difficult-to-obtain materials.

Her goal is to go beyond her recipes and show her students that good cooking is in large part knowing how to deal with food and gaining the confidence in oneself to be able to master a wide variety of dishes. "Once you have such confidence," she said, "cooking becomes an extraordinarily creative and satisfying activity."

The next series of morning and evening courses will be beginning in early April. Ms. Moros may be reached at 729-7391.

Winchester, Inc.

The first public movement in regard to a new town was made Nov. 26, 1849, when a meeting of the inhabitants of South Woburn and vicinity was held in the vestry of the Congregational Church, "to take into consideration the subject of petitioning the Legislature for an Act of Incorporation into a separate town, or to do anything in relation to the same."

John A. Bolles, Esq., was moderator. A committee was appointed from the various sections of the proposed town for the purpose of investigating the propriety and practicability of a separate town organization.

Dec. 3, 1849, the committee reported favorably. The report was accepted and a committee appointed to draft a petition to the Legislature.

Dec. 7, 1849, the committee reported the draft of a petition, which was accepted, and a committee was appointed to obtain signers thereto. Messrs. S.S. Richardson, Oliver R. Clark and John A. Bolles were chosen to present the same to the Legislature.

Dec. 24, 1849, a committee was appointed to select a name for the town and insert the same in the petition, which had received 176 names.

A great deal of difficulty was experienced in agreeing upon a name, but the committee finally decided upon calling the town "Winchester," because it was intimated that by doing so it would probably receive a handsome donation from Colonel William P. Winchester.

The petition was presented to the Legislature Jan. 19, 1850, and referred to the Committee on Towns. While it was pending, remonstrances were presented, and referred to the said committee, from Luke Wyman and 89 others of West Cambridge (now Arlington); from Dana Fay and 53 others of Woburn; from John Symmes and 9 others of Medford; also the selectmen and 93 others of Medford.

At a town meeting held in Woburn, Feb. 7, 1850, it was "voted that the town is willing that the prayer of the petitioners should be granted on just and equitable terms, to be agreed upon by a committee from each part of the town."

After a protracted hearing before the committee of the Legislature, at which the petition was strongly opposed, a bill was reported.

Divers additional petitions and remonstrances in regard to this were introduced and laid upon the table after the bill was reported. "And there probably never has been a case of the kind accompanied by such constant, earnest, and wholesome lobbying."

The bill passed both branches and was signed by the Governor, Apr. 30, 1850. May 7, 1850, the first town meeting was held and officers chosen.

Hist. l society visit to Sturbridge Village

The Winchester Historical Society has chosen Sturbridge Village for its Apr. 2 field trip. Sturbridge Village is widely known as a living museum of early New England life.

The village, a recreation of an agricultural community of the 1800s, was first opened July 15, 1938 through the efforts of Albert and Joel Cheney, who wished to place their collection of Americana in a natural setting. Construction was renewed after World War II.

The village includes a farm and farm animals, a pottery shop, a bake house, a carding mill, and a Quaker meeting house, among other attractions.

Participants in the field trip, which is open to members and other history buffs, are asked to meet at the main visitors' gate of the village at 2 p.m. for a special lecture and demonstration. For further information and reservations, call Mrs. Harold Gold, 21 Jefferson rd.

High school athletes honored at winter sports awards night

By George Parker

Last Wednesday, the varsity athletes of the high school gathered for the annual winter awards ceremony. At this banquet, varsity letters and bars were presented, along with any awards for outstanding performance during the season.

The ceremonies started with the most successful team this season, the basketball team.

Receiving bars for the second year were Co-captains Glenn Mills and Donny Allard. Those awarded bars for the first time were: Bob Brosnan, Anthony Davis, and John Waite. The players given letters, indicating their first year of varsity competition, included: Jeff McGoldrick, Jim Kohr, Randy Pearl, Jon Kalman, Gary Floyd, Steve Herder, and Gary Tedesco. Also receiving letters were the managers, Steve Deininger and Dean Ranzo.

However, the ceremony was not limited to the handing out of letters. This year's individuals reaped many honors.

Glenn Mills, of course, leads the list, as the team's MVP, from both Coach Wheeler and the Woburn papers, who chose him as the MVP for Winchester, Woburn, and Burlington. Glenn was also unanimously chosen as the league's outstanding player by the coaches of the Middlesex League. Glenn will be playing in Connecticut Apr. 1 with the Mass. All Stars against the all-stars of Connecticut, Vermont, and New Hampshire.

Donny Allard was given the Coaches' Award as the hardest working and most dependable player on the team. Next year's co-captains will be Gary Tedesco and Steve Herder.

The next team that was presented was girls' basketball. This year's team showed a marked improvement over last year's performance, upping their record to 10-8, compared to 4-14 last year.

Receiving letters or bars were: Laurie Redmond, Christine Driscoll, Barbara Jacobs, Kathy Day, Terry Burns, Carol Hollahan, Kelly Gately, Diane Cullen, and co-captains Holly Stevenson and Linda Pierce.

The MVP award went to Holly Stevenson in particular, but also to Laurie Redmond, Kelly Gately, Linda Pierce, Kathy Driscoll and Diane Cullen for their integral parts of the team this season. Holly Stevenson was also chosen to the Middlesex League All-Stars. She led the league in scoring, racking up 334 points this year alone, including a league high 34 points in one game. This brings her two-year total to 504 points, a school record.

Next year's co-captains will be Kelly Gately and Linda Pierce.

The cheerleaders were the next to receive their letters, though 14 out of the 15 received bars, for cheerleading is considered to be a two-season sport. Those receiving certificates included Terry Amoroso, Cheryl Banks, Debbie Lazatt, Susan Mahoney, Leslie Allen, Carla Buzzotta, Janet Constantine, Lindsay James, Cheryl Thomas, Jane Landry, Dory Redding, and co-captains Eve West and Laurie Constantine. Next year's co-captains will be Lindsay James and Carla Buzzotta.

The next team to gain control of the stage was the boys' gymnastics team, which ended with a record of 4-4, in the Colonial League (the Middlesex League does not have enough gymnastics teams to qualify as an official league).

Those given letters were: Steve Galante, John DeMars, Anders Bjargard, Steve Campo, Jon Belinowitz, Paul Selvitelli, Paul Maxwell, Mark Mulvaney, and captain Peter MacDonnell. MacDonnell was the all-around performer for the team, and averaged 30-35 points a meet.

The girls' gymnastics team followed the boys' team. The girls managed to finish with a winning record, 6-5 overall, and 5-4 in the league.

The girls who received letters were: Joyce Fricklund, Eileen McCabe, Lisa Melilli, Terry Allard, Ann Bird, Peggy McCabe, Carrie Hosmer, and co-captains Maureen McCabe and Laurie Vincent. Also receiving letters were the managers, Betty Jo Hicks and Marjorie Paulson. In a continuation of the McCabe dynasty, Peggy McCabe will be next year's captain of the team.

The next team to have the attention of the audience was the least successful team, if one looks only at records. The hockey team, despite their miserable record, still maintained a very high morale throughout the season.

Those who maintained this level of enthusiasm and earned their letters included George Surabian, Paul Mahoney, Ken Carlson, Mark Carzo, Dan Murphy, Mark Simpson, Steve Ferullo, Frank Vozzella, and captain Mark McGoldrick. Also receiving letters were Peter Mahoney, Mike Hill, Ronnie DiVincenzo, Bobby Coppins, Jack Collins, Bubba Sanford, David O'Neil, Buddy Pronski, Bobby Surabian, and manager Chuck Kendrick.

Those who were given awards included George Surabian, who was given the Players' Award; Mark Carzo, who was presented with the Coaches' Award; and Ken Carlson, who was named to the Middlesex League All-Star squad. Next year's tri-captains will be Peter Mahoney, Jack Collins, and Bubba Sanford.

Following the hockey team was a more successful squad: the boys' swim team. Unlike the girls, who compete in the fall, the boys must struggle with vagaries of New England's winter. This year, these vagaries resulted in the cancellation of three dual meets and the Middlesex League meet. Despite this, the swim team finished very well, with an 8-4 record. Those who made this record a reality included Co-captains David Blasi and Mark Opel, Mark Vernaglia, Charlie Boyle, Dick Gardner, Kevin and Kenneth Gosselin, Richard Palumbo, Steve Ciscio, Paul MacDonough, Brian Berkley, Mark Estabrook, Mickey Minutoli, and Chris Porter.

The last four of the above, all sophomores, performed very well, and will be the backbone of the team for the next two years. Mickey Minutoli, in particular, almost went undefeated this season, garnering 98 points, second only to Richard Palumbo, who had 123 points, and was named to the Middlesex League All-Star team. Rich was also named the MVP for Winchester, Woburn, and Burlington, by the Woburn paper.

Also named to the all-star team were David Blasi, Mark Vernaglia, Mickey Minutoli, and Chris Porter. The MVP for the team was diver Mark Vernaglia, who took 66 points in his event, going undefeated in the league. Only one of the three captains was announced, Mark Opel. The other two will be added at the beginning of next season.

The track team is another of the many winning teams the high school had this season. They squeaked by with a 5-4 record.

This team had a core of five athletes, all of whom qualified for the finals in the state meet: Charlie Larkin, the state Class B champion in the 600; Brian O'Connor, who took second in the Class B shot-put; Ed Kirkpatrick, who placed eighth in the 1000; Andy Wilsack, who was unable to compete at the states; and Scott Farrar, who came in fifth in the 50-yard dash.

The other varsity members of the team include: Steve Criscione, Eileen Curry, Joy Flynn, Ken Kirk (potential to be an excellent runner), Feza Koprucu, Don MacMillan, and Judy McPhee.

Also receiving letters were John Baker, Greg Cummings, Michelle DeMars, Mark Lovett, Paul Mafra, Phil Mulvaney, Jane Terry, Jim Wilbur, Richard Doron, and John Kruger. The list goes on: Mike Haukedalen, Reilly Atkinson, Jackie Driscoll, Tim Morgan, Bonnie Price, and Scott Kajiander.

The awards for this season's individuals include four Middlesex League All-Stars — Charlie Larkin, Brian O'Connor, Andy Wilsack, and Scott Kajiander. Both Brian and Charlie were undefeated in league competition, and both hold the school record for their events, as does Andy, in the mile. Larkin was also named MVP by the Woburn paper for their tri-city area. The captains will be elected next year.

Last, but not least, was the wrestling squad, which was severely hampered by a lack of manpower this season. Despite this, there were a couple of bright points, namely: Sean Costello and Rob Romeo, both of whom had outstanding seasons. Rob was undefeated, while Sean only lost once in league competition. These two both went to state competition, where Rob finished third in his weight class, and Sean finished fourth.

The other wrestlers include Lenny Rallo, Richard Calarese, Terry Costello, Don Pigott, John Mistrretta, Mike Bossalaers, Brad Cowens, Tom Hall, and Lenny Bellino. The members of the team who will replace Mike

Glenn Mills, Middlesex League MVP

Calarese and Rob Romeo as captains were not announced.

Well, that's all of the varsity athletes Winchester High can boast, and I think Winchester should take pride in the quality of their student-athletes, for they all worked with great determination and diligence to accomplish what they did this season.

Early Birds

The Pheasants in the Winchester Early Birds bowling league are still maintaining their first place position. Team members are Heather Bass, Diana Couture and Roseann Pasquariello. The Pheasants also captured the high team single game of 457 and the high team total of 1285.

Bowler of the day was Rose Bezjian, captain of the Larks who bowled three very nice strings and captured the high individual three game series of 511.

Congratulations to Ann Davoli who bowled five consecutive strikes in one string. She is a member of the Starlings team.

The Doves are in second place. Team members are Mary Jane Brooks, Jo Vaca and Mary Sullivan. Mary Jane Brooks also captured the high individual single game of 183.

The Larks are now in third place. Team members are Rose Bezjian, Delia DeMarzo and Maria Nicolai.

New bowlers are welcome and should contact Diana Couture, 21 Old Colony Rd., Arlington.

Music lectures

Vivian Borek, who teaches piano in Winchester and the local Boston area, will present the last of six lecture presentations tonight from 6:45-8 p.m. at the Midtown Motor Inn, 220 Huntington Ave., Boston. For more information call 325-4093.

John Heffernan (right) of the WHS Parents Association explains to MC Clark Coven and team captain Bob Fiore what the events will be at the Winchester '78 Olympics, to be held this evening at 7:30 at the high school. The three met at the Winchester Sports Shop to go over plans for the evening, which will see students, parents and faculty pitted against each other in a variety of off-bet competitions. Junior high students want soccer

A group of the town's junior high school students has presented Winchester's school administration and school committee with a petition containing the signatures of nearly 800 citizens seeking the addition of soccer as an interscholastic sport at the junior high level.

In their petition, the youngsters cite the inability of most of them to play football in the fall because of size or parental disapproval. Their petition also points out the fact that soccer is a sport benefitting a large number of students at a low cost per child. Soccer is also mentioned as a sport attracting many youths who are not necessarily talented in the present interscholastic sports of football, hockey, basketball, and baseball.

Although well over one thousand Winchester youngsters are presently enrolled in the town's youth soccer program, the only competition available to them on the interscholastic level is not until they reach high school.

The petitioners invite interested parents and other adults in town to support their cause by communicating with school authorities.

Laurie, Robbie Glynn

Brother-sister skaters capture national titles

At the U.S. National Indoor Speedskating Championships held in Evanston, Ill. Mar. 17, 18, and 19, Laurie and Robbie Glynn of 20 Churchill rd. won the national title of their respective divisions. This was their first national meet.

In a sport completely dominated by mid-western and western skaters, Laurie, 12, a sixth grade student at the Washington School, won the Midget Girls Championship with wins in the 200 and 500 meter and a second in the 300 meter. She received two gold and one silver medals as well as the high point gold National Medallion.

Robbie, 9, a fourth grade student at the Washington School, won the Pony Boys Championship with wins in the 200 and 300 meter and a second in the 400 meter. He received two gold and one silver medals as well as the high point trophy.

More than 300 of the top-ranked speed skaters from all over the United States competed in the National Championship.

Winning the National Indoor Championship was the climax to a perfect indoor season for both Laurie and Robbie. They have both been high point champions of all their indoor meets on the regional circuit, including Troy, N.Y.; Saratoga Springs, N.Y.; Pittsfield, Mass.; the Free State Championships at Baltimore, Md.; the Eastern States Championships at Binghamton, N.Y.; as well as the Eastern Seaboard Championships held in Boston.

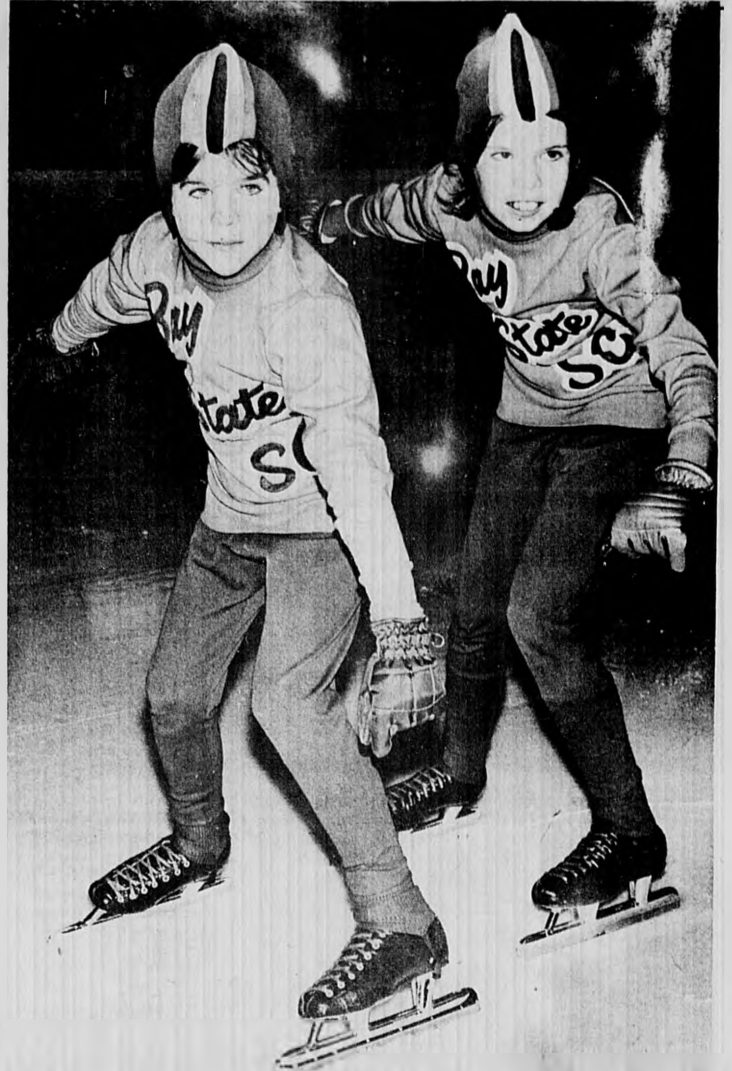

The outdoor meets Laurie and Robbie won the high point championships in were the Berkshire Hills Outdoor at Pittsfield, Mass.; the Middle Atlantic Outdoor at Newburgh, N.Y.; and the Eastern Seaboard Outdoor at Saratoga Springs, N.Y. Also, Robbie had a perfect outdoor season winning High Point Champion at the Capital District Outdoor at Albany, N.Y.; the Eastern States Outdoor at Saratoga Springs, N.Y. and the Lake Placid Outdoor at Lake Placid, N.Y. Laurie was runner-up in her class in these three outdoor meets.

Also competing at the National Indoor Championships were Debbie, George, and Beth Nowell of 515 Washington st.

Debbie was runner-up in the Pee Wee Girls Division with a win in the 100 meter and a second in the 200 and 300 meter. She received one gold and two silver medals.

George was runner-up in the Pony Boys Division with a second in the 300 meter and a third in the 200 and 400 meter. He received one silver and two bronze medals. Beth tied overall for fourth place in the Midget Girls Division with a second in the 500 meter and a fourth in the 300 meter. She received a silver medal. The Nowells also had a very successful season on the Regional Circuit.

The skaters are trained and coached by Mrs. Ruth Moore and Dick Ring, both former National and North American champions. They represent the Bay State Skating Club of the Northeastern Skating Association.

Science Museum plans garage sale

The Boston Museum of Science is now soliciting items for its fifth annual garage sale to be held May 6-7 at the museum.

Museum Service League volunteers say they're looking for everything except used clothing and items broken beyond repair. Desirable discards include household items, appliances (large and small), stereos, televisions, photographic and sports equipment, books, toys, and games.

Setting a goal of $30,000, the league says the proceeds will be used to help match challenge grants the museum has received from the National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities. The funds help provide free admission to inner-city children, and they help support existing educational programs.

The tax-deductible donations may be brought to the admissions desk at the museum Monday through Friday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Pick-up of large articles may be arranged by calling 723-2500, ext. 259.

Last chance to register for Little League

This Saturday, Apr. 1 will be the last day that applications for the 1978 Winchester Little League or Senior League will be accepted. Registration will be held at the Knights of Columbus Hall from 9 a.m. to noon. Application blanks and information concerning the coming season can be obtained at the Winchester Sport Shop or the Winchester Hobby Shop.

As previously announced, any Winchester youth who will have reached 9 years of age and will not have become 16 years of age on or before July 31, 1978 is eligible to apply. It is requested that a donation accompany the applications to help defray the cost of operating the leagues.

It is currently planned to continue the Senior Minor League program initiated last year, expanding the league to eight teams, and combining the American and National Senior Leagues into one league of six teams. This will allow every eligible candidate from 13 to 15 years old will be able to play baseball.

It is again emphasized that all Little League and Senior League players must be registered prior to the start of the season even if they played on teams last season.

All uniforms not yet returned must be turned in at the Winchester Sport Shop, clean and ready for lettering, immediately, if they are to be ready for issue by the beginning of the season.

Mites win 10-1 on Regan's six goals

The Winchester Mites added a 10-1 victory to their score card when they clobbered Lexington at the Burlington Ice Palace on Saturday morning.

The Mites needed this win to stay in contention for a play-off berth as the league race tightens. The win keeps Winchester one point behind Waltham and Medford who are tied for first place.

There was no doubt in the players' minds that Winchester came to win. Peter Regan scoring six goals in the game, scored his first with slightly more than a minute played in the game. Sukjong Chung was given an assist on the goal. Forechecking and hard work by David Butt and Derek Sullivan set up Marc Todisco for the second goal. Regan scored unassisted to end the first period for Winchester, 3-0.

Timmy Day opened the second period by scoring the fourth goal at 38 seconds. Peley Regan hit Timmy Day with a pass at center ice. As Day lost control of the puck, the Lexington goalie attempted to tie up the puck, coming out almost to the blue line. A collision occurred and as bodies fell to the ice the puck was sent into the net for Day's first career goal.

David Butt scored Winchester's fifth goal after an excellent display of stick handling. The goal was David's sixth league goal and was unassisted. Regan duplicated the first period and closed out the second period with an unassisted goal.

Third period was all Winchester, as had been the previous two. David Butt scored his second game goal, assisted by Derek Sullivan. The balance of the third period scoring was done by Peley Regan. His first was scored unassisted. His second of the period was assisted by Greg Winn after a pile up in front of the Lexington cage. Scott Paine earned an assist on Regan's sixth goal of the game.

Lexington's only goal came with 3:48 left to play in the game by young Schmitz of Lexington. Schmitz spoiled Kevin Boyle's bid for a shutout. Boyle had made some good saves, including one that came in the second period on a breakaway attempt.

Billy Coppins and Ted Dever were used as forwards and defensemen. Marc Falzano, Matt Quill, and Ronny Settipane saw plenty of action.

Winchester's last league game of the season will be played at 7 Saturday morning against Newton. Newton is two points behind Winchester; therefore it is a "must win" for both teams.

Unitarian Players to present 3 one-act plays next week

Winchester Unitarian Players spring production, three one-act plays by A. R. Gurney Jr., will feature several well known local actors, and performances are scheduled for April 6, 7 and 8 at Metcalf Hall in the Winchester Unitarian church.

Mary Klug plays Miss Carroway, a teacher of English literature, in "The Love Course" and the part of one of the students is played by her daughter Wendy. Mary and Wendy have performed together before and they are an experienced team.

Appearing with Mary Klug as her colleague Professor Burgess is Steve Brown. Steve has been an active member of several local theater groups and he has the skill and experience to handle the varied moods of Professor Gurney's skillfully written work. The play deals with the presentation of the final class of a college course on the literature of love.

Winchester residents are a majority of the cast of "The Comeback", a play that shows the dilemmas of modern life, but told in the frame of reference of the Greek story of Odysseus' return from the Trojan War.

Shirley Puffer, who starred as Fanny Cavendish in the Player's production of "The Royal Family" last fall, is Penelope, the wife of Odysseus. Strong supporting roles are filled by Marcia Morris as the nurse Euryclea and by Al Leach as the reporter. These two talented players have also been seen in many past productions of the Unitarians.

Janice Carrigan gives an exciting performance in "The Golden Fleece" a story of contemporary relationships based on the legend of Jason and Medea.

The director, Edward T. Burdakin of Belmont, has guided his actors with strength and sensitivity so that the roles are varied and interesting. Curtain time is 8:15 P.M. and ticket information is available at 729-6260.

Jeanne Everett

McCall choreographer joins fight to save Radio City

Mrs. Jeanne Culhane Everett, choreographer for McCall Jr. High's production of "Oklahoma!", is a member of the Showpeople's Committee to Save Radio City Music Hall. She is collecting signatures on a petition which will be sent to Washington asking for federal assistance for this famous entertainment facility. This would enable it to remain open in its present state.

Radio City Music Hall is an integral part of America's architectural and cultural heritage," states Mrs. Everett. Its closing would be a great loss to all Americans. The Music Hall has the world's largest, most complex motorized stage and is one of America's finest tourist attractions. It is slated to close after the Easter show Apr. 12.

Jeanne danced in the Corps de Ballet, Radio City Music Hall, New York and taught for the Fred Astaire Dance Studios. She studied with the Corbett Sisters, Margaret Craske, Ballet Mistress of the Metropolitan Opera Co. Ballet Arts, New York and the Boston Ballet School.

A member of the Dance Teachers' Club of Boston, she had her own dance studio for many years. Mrs. Everett is currently working with McCall Junior High School students on their forthcoming production of "Oklahoma!". It will be presented on Apr. 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. in the McCall Auditorium under the direction of Mrs. Sally Murdock.

3-act comedy revolves around 'eternal youth'

The Winchester Chapter No. 175, Order of the Eastern Star, will present their first production of the three-act comedy, "Hope Springs Eternal" tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Church of Christ, Congregational, Lexington street, in Burlington.

The story revolves around a group of senior citizens, ranging in ages from 78 to 101, who have found the secret of eternal youth at a nursing home in Florida. Winding in and out of the plot is another story of love and romance and mystery.

Winchester residents in the cast are C. Emery Knight, Elizabeth Knight, Mortimer French, Rhona French, Joseph Faga, Louise Faga, Blanche Croft, Drusilla Armstrong, Mildred Benson, and Barbara Polleys.

Others in the play include Virginia Keramas of Woburn, George R. Ford of Tewksbury, Evelyn and Robert McPherson, Hazel Leiblein of Burlington, and Wendy Sue Bell of Malden.

REALTOR

BE CAUTIOUS WITH DEEDS

Probably the deed to your property is filed away, all but forgotten. Probably you've never checked it since the day it served to pass title from the previous owner to you. Perhaps you didn't even check it then. There may have been no urgent reason to. Nevertheless, an apparently secure deed can turn out to be a worthless piece of paper.

For instance, suppose the deed states the name of the seller, but doesn't contain his signature? Suppose the seller was under 21? Suppose the seller died before you received the deed? Suppose there's an error in the way the deed describes the property? Any of these defects—as well as many others—could make your deed invalid. But defective deeds are the exception, not the rule, so don't be frightened. Just be cautious. And the best way to be cautious is to deal with a reputable real estate professional and a knowledgeable real estate lawyer.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER, PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

Composed of students, teachers, graduates of Christian schools, and other church-related people interested in living with a church family in an English-speaking culture, 90 percent have been between 18-30 years old.
